5 Nazis Get Posts.

By the United Press.

Vienna (Wednesday), Feb. 16.—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler of Germany, backing up an ultimatum with strong military forces along Austria's northern frontier, today forced Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg to place five Austrian Nazis or Nazi sympathizers in his 18-man cabinet. Several reputed pro-Germans were reappointed.

Schuschnigg, long a bitter foe of Nazi penetration into Austria where the Nazi Party has been outlawed since June, 1933, announced his capitulation and submitted his new cabinet list to President Wilhelm Miklas after Hitler's three-day ultimatum expired at midnight.

In accordance with Der Fuehrer's foremost demand, he appointed Dr. Arthur von Seyss-Inquart, a leader of the outlawed Austrian Nazis, to the major cabinet posts of minister of interior and public security.

As a counterweight to appointment of Seyss-Inquart as minister of public security, Dr. Michael Skubl, the secretary of state in that ministry, was appointed actual chief of the state police and gendarmerie throughout the entire country.

In the old government Skubl, who also is president of the Vienna police, was secretary of state in the ministry, with jurisdiction only over the state police and without command over the gendarmerie. Under his new post, it was understood all Austrian police and gendarmerie forces will be under his direct command.

It was pointed out in informed circles that without this change the new minister for public security would have directed, and possibly controlled, the Austrian gendearmerie.

The reconstructed cabinet, as announced officially, also contains pro-Nazis, although not in all instances actual party adherents, in the cab-

GEN. JOHN J. PERSHING, who was reported stricken with arthritis last night at Tucson, Ariz., and suffering from a cold. Sergt. Crawford Shaeffer, his military aide, said the general had been forced to cancel several engagements and his condition required attendance of a nurse. Pershing is 77.

Doctor Is Held After Woman Is Hit by Auto

The 80-year-old mother of Dr. Francis Johnston, George Washington University mathematics professor, was struck and critically injured by an automobile while crossing Eighteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue last night.

Police later arrested Dr. Ernest Morgan, 52, of 1909 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, well-known Washington physician, on charges of reckless driving and failing to report an accident, though Mr. Morgan took the injured woman, Mrs. James E. Johnston, widow of a former Alexandria, Va., customs house employe, to Emergency Hospital. He was released on $1,500 bond.

Other Doctors Called.

Dr. Morgan called in several of his colleagues for consultation and an immediate operation in a fight to save the aged woman's life. A blood transfusion was performed but Mrs. Johnston was not expected to live.

Hospital attendants said she suffered fractures of the skull and hip and probable internal injuries.

Arrested at Offices.

Mrs. Johnston lives with her son at 1737 H street northwest.

Embassy Picket Bill Is Signed by Roosevelt

President Roosevelt yesterday signed a joint Congressional resolution making political picketing of foreign embassies in Washington unlawful. The legislation gives the District police court jurisdiction over such cases and provides a maximum fine of $100 and 60 days imprisonment for violations.

The bill excepts picketing in bona fide labor disputes arising out of construction or repair of buildings occupied by representatives of foreign governments.

Child Labor Amendment Rejected in N.Y. 107-40

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 15 (AP).—New York assemblymen again overwhelmingly rejected ratification of the proposed Federal Child Labor amendment today after an American Labor party warning they were committing "political suicide."

There were 40 votes for ratification and 107 votes against it. 76 votes were necessary for approval.

Light Streets At D. C. Cost, Board Urges

Proposal Would Increase District's Deficit by $765,000.

By James D. Secrest.

Washington taxpayers may have to pay $765,000 more in taxes in the next fiscal year as a result of a recommendation yesterday by the Commissioners to the Senate subcommittee on District appropriations.

The District heads advised Senator Thomas that they believed the street lighting cost, which the Budget Bureau charged to the highway fund, should be returned to the general revenue. The effect of this recommendation, which Thomas indicated would be adopted, will be to increase the anticipated District deficit by that amount.

Sultan Explains Situation.

The decision represented a victory for the motorists and other groups who have been working against what they termed "a diversion" since the District budget was submitted to Congress. The same group achieved a similar victory in the House during consideration of the District supply bill.

Col. Dan. I. Sultan, Engineer Commissioner, explained that the District heads were afraid the District might lose Federal highway aid and that they also wanted to keep faith with the organization which had helped set up the highway fund in last year's tax act.

The Budget Bureau had made the "diversion," he said, over the opposition of the Commissioners.

$3,000,000 Deficit Seen.

While the exact District deficit, which must be met by new taxes, will not be known until the supply bill is enacted, present indications are that it will be close to $3,000,000. As reported to the House, the bill carried a deficit of less than $2,000,000.

The removal of the street lighting cost from the highway fund enhances the prospects for funds for a new Pennsylvania Avenue Bridge because of the likely surplus that will be created in the highway fund.

Senator Thomas indicated his opposition to the building of underpasses and overpasses carried in the bill, and if he persists in this attitude the highway fund may have a surplus of as much as $1,300,000 at the end of the next fiscal year.

Income Tax Favored.

While the Federation of Citizens Associations and the Washington Real Etate Board were urging the Senate sub-committee to hold the 1939 appropriations measure to approximately the total of the current act, or $46,000,000, the House fiscal affairs sub-committee heard further attacks on the business privilege tax.

A highlight of the brief hearing, which revealed a lagging local interest in the tax threat, was the testimony of Charles A. Franklin, of the Columbia Heights and Conduit Road citizens' associations, that if Washingtonians were permitted to vote they would choose the income tax.

"Sentiment in favor of this form of taxation," he said, "is growing, particularly among labor groups."

Both the associations he represented favor the income tax, he said, as well as an increase in the Federal payment. They oppose the business privilege tax on the ground that it may be passed along to the consumer.

Rufus Lusk, of the Washington Taxpayers Association, assailed the business privilege tax and proposed income tax. At the same time he told the sub-committee that the $1.75 realty tax is driving prospec-

Alcatraz—An Inmate's Story

Capone Made Center Of Hatreds Bred in Alcatraz Prisoners

Former Inmate Doubts Ex-Gang Czar Is Paretic, Thinks Bitterness of Felons and Torture of 'The Rock' Are Breaking Him.

[The Post presents this story by a former inmate of Alcatraz Prison at its face value with no idea of criticism of the Department of Justice or any official of the island prison. This is the fourth story in a series.—Editor's note.]

By William Malcolm Ritchey,
Copyright, 1938, by The Washington Post.

I read the other day where Al Capone was driven mad by paresis. I don't believe it. Capone is physically clean. Paresis is an advanced stage of syphilis. We in prison can spot those fellows. And I'll stake my life that Capone isn't one of them. Up to a year ago his eyes were clear, his skin was clear, his mind was sound, his nerves steady.

Those long Alcatraz years broke Capone. He couldn't stand the mental tortures. If he had been ill the way they said he was, the island administration wouldn't have permitted him to mingle and eat with other prisoners.

Capone Hated on "Rock."

Capone sat at the same table with me at one of the regular mess tables. There is a special table in the dining hall set aside for prisoners with social diseases and paretic tendencies. Al never sat at that table.

They are very careful in Alcatraz about the physical condition of prisoners. Hospitalization and segregation are provided for those who have contagious ailments. Until recently Capone was in the hospital only once—and that was the time he was stabbed in the back.

There was a time when Capone was feared for his power and influence. But in Alcatraz he is hated.

On the outside, he lived like a king. He had plenty of money and never knew what it meant to be deprived of having his own way.

Even in Atlanta Penitentiary, where they sent him first, Capone was permitted to spend his money. At the commissary, he could buy fruit, cigars, candy, silk shirts, silk socks—almost anything he wanted.

Kept Out of Trouble.

He came to Alcatraz with $900 in his pockets, expecting to spend it as he saw fit—to lavish himself with special privileges and luxuries. But there is no commissary in Alcatraz. Inmates are not permitted to take any personal belongings inside the walls—not even a scrap of paper.

Capone was forced to send the $900 to his brother in Chicago. He wore no silk—just plain prison garb like all the rest. That gave the other fellows a big laugh. They hated the former racket czar for his money and privileges in Atlanta. They scoffed at him in Alcatraz.

The sentiment against Capone was partly due to jealousy. Most

Plan Offered For Unification Of Playgrounds

King to Introduce Bill Containing Program of Delano.

Climaxing years of controversy, Frederic A. Delano, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, yesterday submitted to Congress a plan for unification of Washington's diversified recreational units.

The plan was set forth in a bill, which Chairman King, of the Senate District Committee, will introduce, and was explained to the Senate sub-committee on District appropriations.

It proposes establishment of a recreation board "for the District of Columbia and environs," comprising the following members: The District Commissioner in charge of public welfare, the superintendent of schools, the superintendent of National Capital parks, the chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, and a citizen to be selected by the Commissioners.

The board would be empowered to appoint a co-ordinator of recreation, who would be the administrative officer actually in charge of all local recreational activities.

While the bill makes no mention of the existing recreational agencies, it foreshadows the ultimate abolition of the playground department and the community center department so far as they deal with recreational activities.

Likewise the National Capital Parks office and the Welfare and

Capone Sanity Report Given Prison Director

Removal From Alcatraz Made Doubtful by Experts' Findings.

Al Capone, Chicago racketeer who became the first of the Nation's public enemies during the prohibition era, has been examined by psychiatrists at Alcatraz and adjudged sane, The Post was informed last night.

Capone collapsed February 5 and reports were current then that he had suffered a complete mental breakdown due to advanced paresis.

A report on the findings of the psychiatrists, to be made public soon, has been received by James V. Bennett, director of the Bureau of Prisons in the Department of Justice, Bennett admitted last night.

He declined to deny that the report holds Capone sane, saying that he had "no comment to make."

It was understood, however, that the report discounts Capone's mental breakdown, which would be a basis for his removal from "The Rock."

4 Red Scientists Drifting on Floe Missed by Plane

Moscow, Feb. 15 (AP).—The first rescue flight attempting to locate the camp of four Russian scientists adrift on an ice floe off Greenland failed late today because of poor visibility.

Gennady Vlasoff, piloting a plane from the Soviet rescue ship Taimyr, which earlier had reported herself only 14 miles from the floe and within sight of the explorers' signal fires, flew for two hours during the afternoon without finding the camp.

He finally landed on the ice beside the icebreaker Murman, which took him aboard for the night. The Murman earlier had reported she was 12 miles from the camp.

Zog Wedding Approval By Pope Held Unlikely

Vatican City, Feb. 15 (AP).—Osservatore Romano, official Vatican newspaper, without mentioning either King Zog of Albania or his fiancee, Countess Geraldine Apponyi by name, today indicated a dispensation for their marriage would be difficult.

The paper devoted three columns on its front page to the subject and said it was written apropos the coming marriage of a "Moslem sovereign and a young Catholic."

Radio Men Move to Pick 'Czar' To Rule Whole U. S. Industry

Radio operators of America yesterday moved to place their industry under a "czar" shortly after an address in which Frank R. McNinch urged "an exhaustive probe" to determine if "monopolistic practices exist" in the industry.

More than 500 owners and operators of radio stations met at the Willard Hotel and elected regional directors who, at some time, perhaps a month hence, will choose a salaried executive of the industry to be the final arbiter of what they broadcast and what they don't.

The new executive head of the radio industry will have the same arbitrary powers vested in Judge K. M. Landis in baseball and Will Hays by the movies. The plan was strengthened by the Mae West—Charlie McCarthy broadcast of several months ago, which brought severe censure from the public and from the Federal Communications Commission.

Earlier McNinch told the National Association of Broadcasters that what was needed was "an exhaustive probe of the radio broadcasting industry with emphasis on determining whether monopolistic practices exist."

McNinch added that such a probe will be recommended shortly to the FCC.

McNinch condemned those who advertise intoxicating beverages by radio.

"May I make so bold as to suggest," said he, "that you consider

Tax Bill Still Tied Up After Third Month

13-to-12 Split Indicated in Ways and Means Committee.

Vinson Hopes to Hand Draft to Committee by Friday.

Just three months after President Roosevelt in his special session message recommended "the elimination of any injustices in our tax laws," the House Ways and Means Committee yesterday was still at loggerheads over the final draft of a bill.

Chairman Robert L. Doughton said he hoped to call his full Ways and Means Committee together for final consideration of the measure by Friday and to move a tax bill before the House in early March.

Since full committee hearings were concluded several weeks ago on a sub-committee report recommending complex changes in the whole business tax structure, work on an actual bill draft has been confined to Democratic members of the group.

Republicans "in Dark."

Yesterday, some features of the program were referred back to the sub-committee headed by Representative Fred M. Vinson (Democrat), of Kentucky. Only Democratic sub-committee members participated.

"We haven't been told or consulted on what they are doing," said Representative Harold Knutson, of Minnesota, a Republican member of the commitee. "They will just call us in at the end, as they always do, to tell us what they have done."

Meantime, agreement among Democratic members has been delayed by differences over proposed penalty taxation of family corporations and companies controlled by ten or fewer individuals.

Minority Holds Balance.

After minor modifications in the proposed levy, 12 committee Democrats recently voted for it and six against it. When the proposal goes to a full showdown, seven Republican votes combined with the Democratic opposition would make a majority of one against the penalty, unless there had been a "switch" in the meanwhile. Sponsors of the special levy on "closely held" companies are not expected to carry it to the full commitee test until they are certain of the extra vote needed.

Although modification of the undivided profits and capital gains taxes—assailed by business leaders as a contributing factor to the present recession—is the principal objective of tax revision, committee controversy has centered almost entirely around the special penalty levy.

In the background was President Roosevelt's insistence that provisions of the present law prohibiting "improper" accumulation of corporate surplus be tightened, as a tax avoidance measure.

Liberals Dissatisfied.

The sub-committee went farther and proposed penalty surtaxes on all "closely held" companies which earned over $50,000 and distributed less than 60 per cent of it in dividends.

After prominent committee Democrats complained that this penalized companies which clearly were not used for individual tax avoidance, committee leaders last week made two minor concessions. These would permit companies to exempt surtax amounts set aside to pay old debts, providing debt payments exceeded other exemptions. In addition, such taxpayers were given the privilege of taking from 60 to 90 days to declare dividends to meet deficiency assessments by the Internal Revenue Bureau.

The Democratic minority is still dissatisfied with the provision. It asks that exemptions be allowed for plant expansion, reduction in

House Gets $250,000,000 Bill For Relief, May Pass It Today

By Robert C. Albright.

Approval by the House of a $250,000,000 deficiency appropriation to add 500,000 needy unemployed to WPA relief rolls for the balance of this fiscal year was recommended yesterday by the House Appropriations Committee.

Leaders arranged for immediate consideration in the House today and passage, if possible, before nightfall. The committee said speedy action was necessary to meet "the drastic change which has taken place in private employment since last September."

A drive to increase the appropriation to $800,000,000 to provide 1,500,000 additional WPA jobs was inaugurated at once by Representative Gerald J. Boileau (Progressive), Wisconsin, to maintain work relief rolls at 3,500,000 during the recession.

A Republican counterattack will be led by Representative John Taber, of New York, ranking minority member of the House Appropriations Committee, who declared actually 7,375,000 persons are receiving various forms of local, Federal and unemployment insurance relief.

Committee managers hoped to bring the $250,000,000 appropriation recommended by the President to a vote after four hours of debate, so the Senate can complete action this

Senate Group Votes Jackson Approval, 5-2

By Sidney Olson.

By a vote of 5 to 2, a Senate Judiciary sub-committee last night reported favorably the nomination of Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson for the post of Solicitor-General.

The smiling young Administration "trustbuster," teetering comfortably back in the witness-chair at three separate cross-examinations yesterday, came happily through one of the most extensive grillings a Senate committee ever has staged on such a nomination.

Monopoly Attacks Cited.

Only two New Deal foes, Senators William H. King (Democrat), Utah, and Warren R. Austin (Republican), Vermont, who had collaborated in repeated two-hour examinations of Jackson for several weeks, voted against a favorable report.

Those for Jackson were: Chairman George McGill, Kansas; M. M. Logan, Kentucky, and William H. Dieterich, Illinois, all Democrats; William E. Borah (Republican), Holds Costs Too Low, But Warns He Doesn't Mean All Goods.

President to Get Treasury Report

Statement 3 Weeks Ago, Condemning High Prices, Recalled.

By Franklyn Waltman.

President Roosevelt yesterday asserted that the Nation's price level is too low and should go up, but he immediately warned against interpreting his statement to mean that the prices of some commodities, such as copper, should advance too rapidly or too much.

The President made this observation at his press conference when asked to comment on a Treasury conference held during the day to consider the price situation. Mr. Roosevelt said the conference was studying the situation for him, that he expected a report tomorrow and that he may be in a position to comment on it at his Friday morning press conference.

1926 Level an Objective.

Mr. Roosevelt's remarks came three weeks to a day after he issued a formal statement at a press conference calling on mass production industry to reduce prices, asserting that "a mass-production industry in its own interest should ask for its products what the people can afford to pay."

"Industrialists," he added, "kill the goose which lays the golden egg when they keep prices up at the expense of employment and purchasing power."

Simultaneously with the White House press conference the Department of Agriculture issued a statement bearing the caption: "Livestock and livestock product prices in 1937 highest in eight years." The statement explained that "prices received by farmers for livestock and livestock products averaged about 5 per cent higher for the calendar year 1937 than a year earlier" and added that "prices of these items were about 36 per cent above the depression low of 1933, but still about 19 per cent lower than in 1929."

What, if anything, the President proposes to do to raise prices was not revealed. But the fact that on Monday the Treasury modified its gold sterilization policy, thus indicating that it is again thinking in terms of monetary moves, led to speculation that further efforts might be made to force prices to the 1926 level. The President indicated that the 1926 price level remained one of his objectives.

Friendly to Super-Roads.

The President also said he was sympathetic to proposals for construction of self-liquidating superhighways across the country as desirable public works projects. He said he was having proposals for a super-highway program costing eventually $8,000,000,000 studied. Aside from tolls, such highways could be made self-supporting, he said, by taking advantage of excess condemnation—that is, the Government buying land which would be benefited by the project and reselling it at a profit.

Aside from expressing favorable reaction to that undertaking, Mr. Roosevelt revealed no other specific undertakings he has in mind for dealing with the industrial recession. He said he had discussed the problem of industrial loans for small business with Thomas W. Lamont, J. P. Morgan partner, but did not disclose whether any action would be taken on pending suggestions.

Mr. Roosevelt's remarks regarding prices, however, constituted the highlight of his press conference. Asked about the Treasury conference, which sat most of the day, the President said it was studying the price situation. He added the thing to be emphasized, however,

Meeting Told Unco-ordinated Medicine Fails

Doesn't Utilize Known Methods of Prevention, Says Dr. Roberts.

Present-day medicine is failing to make use of "known methods of prevention," Dr. Kingsley Roberts, director of the Bureau of Co-operative Medicine, charged yesterday at the Interfaith Conference on Consumers Co-operatives and Credit Unions.

If patients are to receive full benefits of preventive medicine, Dr. Roberts declared, the individual practitioner must be replaced by organized groups of physicians representing all branches of science.

"By making good doctors available, co-ordinating their activities, and stressing preventive medicine, adequate medical care will become a reality for a great many people who can not now know the meaning of the term," he said.

Other Speakers.

Other speakers on the closing program of the two-day conference were Boyd Fisher, director of the division of operation supervision, Rural Electrification Administration; Leroy A. Halbert, district manager for the Farm Bureau Mutual Automobile Insurance Co., Washington; Alfred Kastner, architect; William T. Brown, manager, Konsum, Inc., Washington; H. Haines Turner, executive secretary of the District of Columbia Co-operative League.

Brown said that Konsum, Inc., buys its products where the best bargain is to be found and that many of them were now purchased from numerous firms not in the co-operative movement. "Due to transportation costs and other factors, it is sometimes cheaper not to get our supplies at co-operative headquarters," he said.

Since insurance money runs into the second greatest amount collected from the American people, it is imperative that the people themselves get wise to the advantages of operating their own insurance companies, Talbert declared.

The place of farm producers and organized labor in the co-operative movement was stressed at yesterday morning's session by R. N. Benjamin, president of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau Federation; Donald E. Montgomery, consumers' counsel, AAA; Jacob Baker, president of the United Federal Workers of America, and Marion Hedges, director of research for the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

Should Join.

Hedges said workers should join co-operatives when they saw them become more efficient than private business.

"The co-operatives must fill a need that private business does not, and must fill it better than private business. This simple axiom has been fulfilled in most countries where co-operatives have been most successful," he declared.

The interdependence of farm producers and city consumers was emphasized by Benjamin, who said that no producer or marketing association can "come any way near to solving the market problem except by some form of producer-consumer compact."

This was the first co-operative conference held under auspices of three great religious groups of the Nation—National Catholic Welfare Conference, Central Conference of American Rabbis, and the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

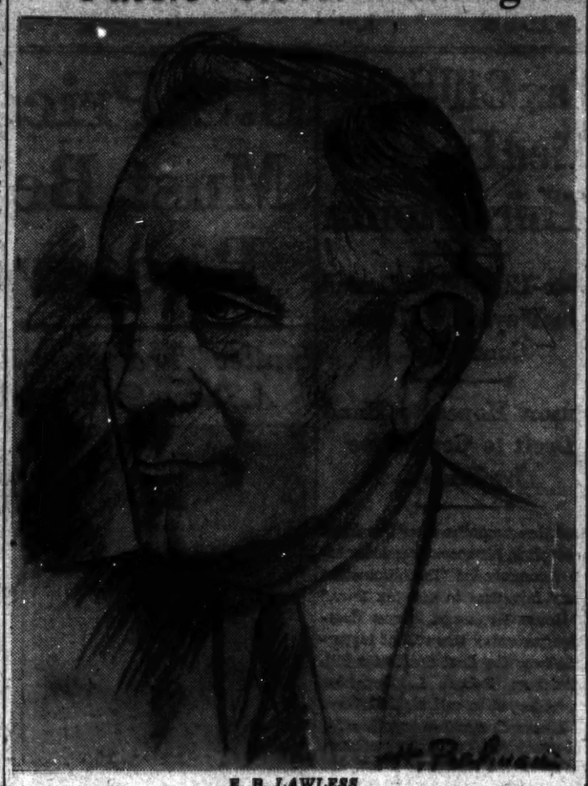
Working for Washington

North Capitol Citizens' Leader Favors Vote for Washington



E. B. LAWLESS.

By Christine Sadler

The job of trying to keep property values up is the principal problem facing members of North Capitol Citizens Association, according to E. B. Lawless, the president.

This association was formed by the merger 18 years ago of two civic groups—the old North Washington and the Emery Eckington associations. Lawless joined the Emery Eckington unit 23 years ago and has continued in civic work since that time.

When a "matter of moment" is looming, the association can get 300 members out to a meeting easily. In ordinary weeks, when things are moving along slowly, nothing like this large a block of the membership of 480 persons can be obtained, according to Lawless.

One of the first fights the united associations made was to obtain McKinley High School for their area. Later they made a similar effort to get Langley Junior High School.

Too Much Politics.

The association is deeply interested in backing up work of the Community Center, according to Lawless, who says there was opposition to the move which would put the Center "under the Commissioners and into politics."

There is much too much politics in the District's setup to benefit Washington citizens even as it is, Lawless feels. He believes that to put an "outside political appointment" at the head of a District agency destroys the incentive for promotion among workers in that agency and works to destroy discipline.

"I feel very strongly," Lawless declares, "that we do not get a square deal from the Government in the matter of District expenses. I sincerely believe that if the property owned here by the Federal Government were taxed on the same assessment basis as that used for private property, more than 40 per cent of the District's expenses would be borne by Congress."

Favors Vote for D. C.

He also believes that the District should have full suffrage and State's rights. "We have more people than some of the States put together, yet every time we want a curb in front of our house or need a new policeman we have to beg Congress for it."

Lawless has nine votes in his family and would like to see them all cast here in Washington. As it is, they are voted in Dutchess County, New York.

He has lived in this city for 24 years and for most of that time was in the trucking and hauling business for himself. He is now connected with the City Refuse Department. He has been in civic work for many years.

He believes in the value of citizenship work, but thinks there should be more to it "than just passing resolutions" and that citizenship bodies should consider the welfare of the city as a whole even before they pass resolutions.

"I don't mean they should not be looking out for their own particular interests, but that the city-wide picture should be kept in mind," he says.

Lawless lives at 310 Randolph place northeast, has a wife and six children.

On Friday—C. Virginia Diedel, president of First Ward Citizens Association, will be next in the "Working for Washington" series.

Senator Vandenberg mopped his brow yesterday as he settled down to read the hundreds of letters received since his Lincoln's Birthday speech in Boston in which he invited Jeffersonian Democrats to unite with Republicans in defeating the New Deal this fall and in 1940.

'Soft' Answer Fired at Farley By Vandenberg

By the Associated Press.

Senator Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, offered yesterday what he termed a "soft" answer to Postmaster General James A. Farley's criticism of his Lincoln Day speech in Boston.

"I am complimented no end to see that that the Farley-Michaelson mimeographs have rushed two pages of typical abuse to the country in alleged answer to my Boston speech," Vandenberg said in a statement.

"I didn't know the speech was that good. Meanwhile, however, I can understand how deeply good old Jim feels when he speaks of 'coalitions that will not coalesce.' He is perspiring in the midst of one himself at the moment."

Vandenberg referred to a statement released by Farley in which the Postmaster General and Democratic National Committee chairman said:

"As a fellow politician, I naturally understand the Senator's desire for such a coalition as he visualizes, but I cannot overlook the difficulty of a coalition that will not coalesce."

Farley was referring to Vandenberg's suggestion that Democrats dissatisfied with the Administration join Republicans in the next election.

"Unless he (Farley) and his President can 'coalesce' again pretty soon in this matter of picking favorites in Democratic primaries, and unless the two wings of his party can 'coalesce' once more on fundamental economics, it won't be necessary for the rest of us to worry," Vandenberg said.

Dr. Leech Honored; Ill, He Listens to Praises by 'Phone

Although confined to his home because of serious illness, Dr. Frank Leech, recently retired chairman of the medical board at Children's Hospital, yesterday heard—via the telephone—the high tribute paid him by fellow workers at dedication exercises marking the unveiling of a bronze plaque in his honor at the hospital and establishment of the Frank Leech Laboratory Fund.

Grasping a hand telephone, Charles D. Drayton, president of the board of directors at the hospital; Dr. Joseph S. Wall and Canon Anson Phelps Stokes, of the Washington Cathedral, all paid high respects to Dr. Leech, who served with the institution for more than 46 years.

"Dr. Leech's skill in organization, his agreeable temperament in handling the many problems of administration," Dr. Hall said, "and his gentleness of manner in contact with patients, parents, physicians and personnel, have endeared him to all of us."

"In stepping aside from active connection with the hospital," Dr. Leech said in a letter read by Dr. John Alian Talbot, secretary of the board of directors, "my interests in it will remain unimpaired until the end, and my heart will beat in unison with yours as I continue along the way."

Francis Leech, son of Dr. Leech, accepted the plaque and expressed his personal appreciation for the honor paid his father.

FBI Finds Crime In U. S. Increased 6 Per Cent in 1937

Every 39 minutes in 1937 a criminal homicide occurred in the United States, the Federal Bureau of Investigation declared yesterday in reporting a 6.3 per cent increase in crime over 1936.

Every one and three-quarters minutes a burglary took place; every 40 seconds a larceny was committed; every two and a half minutes an automobile was stolen, and every 13 minutes last year someone was the victim of an aggravated assault.

This is an increase of 83,290 crimes over 1936, but these figures do not include lesser crimes—embezzlement, fraud, receiving stolen property, forgery, counterfeiting, arson, drug violations and carrying concealed weapons, of which it is estimated there were 14,000,000 last year.

Joseph A. Padway Made AFL Counsel

President William Green of the American Federation of Labor yesterday announced appointment of former Judge Joseph A. Padway, 47, of Milwaukee, Wis., as counsel for the Federation. An outstanding authority on labor law, Judge Padway will open offices immediately at the Tower Building, here.

For twenty years Judge Padway has represented the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor and its affiliated unions as general counsel. In 1926 he served in the Wisconsin State Senate and later as Civil Court judge. He took his law degree at Marquette University.

Langdon Ready To Return for Limerick Trial

Ex-Policeman Indicted, to Waive Extradition; Denies Guilt.

Former Policeman Robert F. Langdon, 44, indicted yesterday largely on the testimony of his own wife for the murder seven years ago of Beulah Limerick, will be turned over to Washington police today by authorities of New Haven, Conn., where he is held on another charge.

State's Attorney Samuel E. Hoyt will appear today before Judge Rufus Booth in Criminal Superior Court to ask that the Connecticut charge be waived and Langdon released to Washington police. After conference with Thomas R. Robinson, public defender, Langdon announced yesterday he would waive extradition.

Grilled Two Days.

For two days Lieut. Floyd Truscott and Detective Sergt. Earl Hartman have been grilling the former officer, a warrant for whose arrest was issued Saturday by United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage.

Langdon appeared more concerned over the possibility of being held in New Haven than of being returned to Washington.

"It don't worry me a damn bit," he said. "My conscience is clear. When you're innocent, you're innocent.

"The dirty part of it is I'll bring in an innocent kid." He did not elaborate upon or explain this statement.

"If I can get somebody to do my defense," he added, "I'll give them a story afterward that would blow some of their heads off down there."

The big former policemen has been in jail at New Haven since last March, when he was arrested on a charge of obstructing the tracks of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad. He flagged a a crack express train and showed trainmen a length of steel chain bolted across a rail. Also he said a man fled the scene on his approach. He was held on $15,000 bond. The jury disagreed on his first trail and he has been awaiting another.

Wife Was Questioned.

That attention in the old case was once more directed toward Langdon was indicated when Mrs. Rose V. Langdon, 27, his wife, was returned here for questioning. After long hours of grilling, she was released "under surveillance" and an early break in the old mystery was promised.

She was the principal witness before the grand jury which returned an indictment of her husband at 10:30 a. m. There were several other witnesses whose identity authorities would not reveal.

Immediately afterward, Assistant District Attorney John J. Wilson had a certified copy of the indictment prepared and a bench warrant issued. This was airmailed to New Haven.

Langdon, the "cop on the beat" which included the gaunt frame house at 13 Nineteenth street southeast where Beulah lived, was dismissed from the Washington police force after two stills were discovered in his home in the 1200 block Oates street during the long investigation following the whoopee girl's death. Before that, he had been a central figure in the investigation and testified at length before the coroner's inquest.

Wound Filled With Hair.

Beulah Limerick, 19, was an usher at old Poli's Theater and secretary of the Sky High Whoopee Club, one of those merry products of the Jazz Age. She lived in the old house with her brother, Vernon, and Richard Reed, a roomer.

The morning of December 31, 1930, she was found by Vernon lying fully clothed and completely made up in a downstairs room. After she has been pronounced dead from a hemorrhage, an undertaker discovered she had been shot in the top of the head.

The wound had been plugged with hair and the bed clothing bore no bloodstains and was fresh.

Mrs. Dora Limerick, her mother, told police Beulah once told her "Langdon had been anoying her." Langdon, on the other hand, said such disorderly and protracted parties had been held in the house he had ordered the girl, to vacate, which she promised to do January 1, 1931.

"She was shot behind," he said in New Haven yesterday. "She lay in bed fully clothed, he hair fixed and lipstick on her lips. . . . If a guy was going to knock off somebody he certainly wouldn't put clean sheets on the bed afterward and wait around to dress the person up as if she were going to a party."

Bicycle Bandit Rides Into Cell For 135-Day Term

Ralph H. McCalip, 23, colored, will spend some time atoning for a crime spree he indulged in.

Tuesday, according to police, he stole a bicycle which had been rented by Leon Slavin, 1131 Fourteenth street northwest. Later the same day, police say, he snatched a pocketbook from Mrs. Earl Clyde, of 1712 Seventeenth street northwest.

Attempting to escape from the scene of the pocketbook snatching, which occurred in the 1600 block of Riggs place northwest, he fell from the bicycle and was stopped by witnesses to the incident. Attempting to escape, he entered a cab operated by Lonnie Adams, colored, and threatened him with injury unless he drove him to safety.

In Police Court yesterday on charges of pocketbook snatching, petty larceny and assault, McCalip was sentenced to 90 days for the bicycle theft and 45 days for threatening the cab driver. Judge John P. McMahon ordered him held for the grand jury on the pocketbook-snatching charge.

Man Slugged, Cars Crippled In Beer Strike

Repeated acts of violence were reported to police yesterday as striking beer and soft drink truck drivers or sympathizers traveling about the city in autos, halted trucks, beat at least one helper and broke windshields and disabled vehicles by pulling ignition wires.

Alarmed at the sudden outbursts of violence, Maj. Brown instructed Inspector Bernard Thompson, chief of detectives, to issue orders to the entire police department to make immediate arrests of any persons seen tampering with trucks. "We are determined to break up this strike violence," Inspector Thompson declared.

Out Since Friday.

Meanwhile, A. D. O'Connor, spokesman for the eight distributing companies affected by the strike, asserted that nonstriking drivers were warned by strikers to "get off the streets by 10:30 a. m. Wednesday or take the consequences."

The walkout was called early Friday when distributors failed to agree to terms of a contract providing for a 54-hour week, an $18 weekly wage and a 6-cent commission on the case. The strike was called by the Beer and Soda Drivers, Chauffeurs and Helpers Local No. 67. More than 100 drivers are affected by the walkout.

According to O'Connor, two trucks belonging to the Edward Zupnick & Sons Co., were badly damaged by strikers who halted one truck at Ninth and L streets northwest, and the other in the 2200 block of Eighteenth street northwest.

Edgar W. Potts, a helper on the truck, stopped at Ninth and L streets, reported that three men, two of them white and one colored, attacked him while the driver of the truck was delivering beer in a nearby store. Potts suffered the loss of several teeth and a cut lip, he said.

William Reed, a driver employed by the Dr. Pepper Co., reported to police that three white men stopped his truck at Seventh and Massachusetts avenue northwest, broke the glass in the doors and windshield of the car and pulled the ignition wires.

Union Hurls Charge.

Other disturbances were reported in the 600 block of H street northwest and in the 3700 block of Georgia avenue northwest. A report that a driver was assaulted and his truck damaged somewhere in the southeast section, was not confirmed by police.

The eight distributing companies, O'Connor said, deliver beer to about 1,800 establishments in the city and soft drinks to more than 4,800 concerns. The figures, he said, accounted for the majority of distributing business in the city.

Henry Myers, agent for the local union, announced yesterday that "we have evidence that the distributors are employing salesmen who do not possess a license to sell beer, but who are selling it just the same."

Myers visited the office of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board yesterday to determine what action could be taken against a concern using unlicensed salesmen. He announced later that the union would obtain sufficient information by today to convict the violators.

Denying the union charge, O'Connor said all of the company's salesmen had licenses and that "business is picking up every day in spite of the strike."

Two Gun-Girls Get Life for $2.10 Slaying

All-Male Jury Convicts Jersey Killers in Less Than 4 Hours.

Newark, N. J., Feb. 15 (AP).—Mrs. Ethel Strouse Sohl, policeman's daughter, and Genevieve Owens, her companion in a $2.10 holdup in which a bus driver was slain, were convicted of first-degree murder tonight by an all-male jury which recommended mercy.

The verdict, reached after 3 hours and 44 minutes deliberation, makes life terms mandatory for both the girls.

Mrs. Sohl, 20, based her defense on an insanity plea in that she was under the influence of marihuana during her brief crime career.

Miss Owens, 18, testified during the eight-day trial that she remained in an automobile while "Bunny" Sohl shot and robbed William Barhorst as he stopped his bus in suburban Belleville on December 21.

Bunny in Tears.

Tears came to Bunny's eyes and she pressed a handkerchief to her face as Jury Foreman Zoltan Zilahy, 28, of Nutley, replied to Common Pleas Judge Daniel J. Brennan:

"Yes. We find both defendants guilty of murder in the first degree, but with the recommendation of life imprisonment at hard labor."

Patrolman Frank Strouse, of Newark, Bunny's father, who testified in her defense, bit his lips as he checked himself from crying. His wife had gone home to await the verdict.

Miss Owens' mother had also gone home.

Judge Brennan thanked the jury, all of whom were married men.

"You have reached to your very great credit," he said, "what the court conceives to be a just verdict on the facts of the case."

Mrs. Mary Kelly, a matron, led the girl-defendants quickly out a side door of the courtroom.

Undecided on Appeal.

The girls' attorneys said they were undecided whether to appeal.

Counsel for Mrs. Sohl and Miss Owens had asked for acquittal.

"Bunny's" 23-year-old husband, William, who testified he introduced marihuana cigarets to her and did not know of their dangerous qualities, was returned to Rahway Reformatory, where he is serving out a forgery sentence.

Genevieve's mother, Emily, who has five other children, did not attend court today.

Mrs. Theresa Barhorst, the bus driver's mourning-clad widow, who became hysterical several times during the trial, wept quietly as the judge read his charge.

Smithsonian Art Gallery Sought in New Senate Bill

A revised bill to establish a Smithsonian Gallery of Art was introduced in the Senate yesterday and referred to the Public Buildings and Grounds Committee.

Similar to a measure on which hearings were held two years ago, the bill authorizes the setting aside of a site between Fourth and Fourteenth streets and Independence and Constitution avenues.

The gallery is not intended to rival the National Art Gallery, which is now being built with a contribution from Andrew W. Mellon, it was said. It will house less pretentious art, portraits, and bric-a-brac which has accumulated in the Smithsonian Institution.

The commission proposed to supervise the gallery is authorized to receive private donations to build the gallery, although an appropriation of $40,000 is authorized to finance the preliminary work.

Man Is Arrested For Tearing Deeds

Dr. Waldo H. Jones, identified by police as a specialist in diseases of the feet, was arrested last night on a warrant charging destruction and defacing of public records.

Police said the charge was brought by Recorder of Deeds William J. Thompkins after Renee Settle, a clerk, complained that signatures had ben torn off a deed in the file of the National University of Therapeutics, and after Jones' name had been written in among the names had been torn off a deed in the file

Lawyer Pays Fine To Free Boy Hero Of 1931 Blizzard

Golden, Colo., Feb. 15 (AP).—Bryan Untiedt, the boy hero of a Colorado school bus disaster seven years ago, walked out of the Jefferson County Jail today because an aged Denver lawyer believed it was "too bad that a fine boy like that should be a prisoner for a petty offense."

The tall, shy 19-year-old youth, who was welcomed to the White House in 1931 after he helped save the lives of other children in a blizzard-bound bus, was serving a 13-day jail term for driving a motor truck without an operator's license.

A. L. Doud, 87, known as the "dean of Denver lawyers," read about it in the newspapers, then telegraphed to the jail here the $7 required to free the youth.

'Bad Memories' Bring 3 Jail Terms

Harry (Spike) Behrle, William R. ("Country") Carpenter and Joseph E. O'Brien (inset) each received a minimum sentence of two years in District Court yesterday after conviction of perjury in connection with an attack on O'Brien by the Warring gang in 1936. None was able to recall details when the Warrings were on trial.

3 Who 'Forgot' Gang Shooting Are Sentenced as Perjurers

O'Brien, Warring Mob Victim, Behrle and Carpenter Draw Terms of 30 to 32 Months Over Affray Two Years Ago.

Found guilty of perjury because they testified they could not remember details of a shooting they were said by police to have witnessed, and in which one of them was the victim, Harry (Spike) Behrle, William R. (Country) Carpenter and Joseph E. O'Brien, the man shot, were sentenced to prison yesterday by Justice Jesse C. Adkins in District Court.

Behrle was given a sentence of from 2 to 2½ years; Carpenter drew a term of 2 years to 2 years and 7 months, and O'Brien's was from 2 years to 2 years and 8 months. Differences in the terms were accounted for time the men have spent in the District Jail awaiting sentence.

The three were indicted for perjury when they "forgot to remember" vital details of how Charles (Bags) Warring and four of his followers leaped from two automobiles and attacked O'Brien while he stood near the corner of Second and C street southeast.

O'Brien was felled and then shot through the knee by one of the Warring mobsters but when he, Carpenter and Behrle were called into court to testify against the Warring gang, none was able to recall how the shooting happened.

Their insistent "I don't remember" replies nettled Roger Robb, assistant United States attorney, who obtained indictments for perjury and then insisted on conviction of all three.

All of the members of the Warring gang which participated in the attack were found guilty of assault with a dangerous weapon and now are serving prison terms. The attack occurred July 21, 1936.

Md. Farmer Freed In Laborer's Death

William Thorp, farmer of near Laurel, Md., was released on $3,000 bond yesterday after being held for investigation since early Sunday when the bruised body of Harry Janish, 43, laborer, was found in his yard. A coroner's inquest scheduled for yesterday afternoon in Laurel, was postponed to Friday.

Alan Bowie, State's attorney, requested the postponement after he told Justice of the Peace James Vewter, acting coroner, that Dr. Bryan J. Warren, who performed an autopsy, said he was unable to testify cuts and bruises on Janish's head might have caused death. Dr. Warren said he found a broken nose and bruised chin, upper lip and left ear.

Youth Surprised In Junk Shop to Face Grand Jury

Isadore Leavitt had been sleeping in his junk shop at 338 E street southwest as a precaution against thieves he heard were in the neighborhood. Friday morning he got his man—and nearly lost him again, according to his testimony in Police Court yesterday.

He awoke at 4 a. m., he said, to see a colored man in his office, about to make off with a battery. He reached for his gun and fired. The youth, whom he recognized as a resident of the neighborhood, darted through a hole Leavitt had cut in the wall as an entrance for his dog.

The youth, charged with housebreaking, was ordered held for the grand jury under $1,000 bond by Judge John P. McMahon.

Military Rule For D. C. Hit by Hazen, Brown

McGehee Proposal to End Crime With Troops Draws Fire.

District Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen and Superintendent of Police Maj. Ernest W. Brown joined last night in attacks on the proposal of Representative McGehee (Democrat), of Mississippi, to invoke virtual martial law to bring law and order to the Nation's Capital.

McGehee, husky banker-planter-lawyer, said he believed 1,500 soldiers and marines should be able to make Washington a law-abiding city.

Both Hazen and Brown said soldiers lack a sufficient understanding of police work to make them efficient suppressors of crime.

"Even if soldiers were to make Washington an armed camp, I doubt if they would prove efficient in police work," Hazen retorted. "They wouldn't know how to run down a criminal."

"Would Scare Citizens."

"Army men," the police chief declared, "are totally unfamiliar with police work. They would be of little assistance. And then, their presence on the streets would tend to frighten citizens."

Hazen's first comment upon learning of the proposal was:

"Why not give us more police?"

Just Occurred to Him.

McGehee admitted the idea of calling in troops to chase criminals, reminiscent of Washington race riots 20 years ago and the Bonus Army riots of 1932, had just occurred to him and that he hadn't worked out the details.

"I don't see why it couldn't be done," he said. "I know the soldiers would do the job quickly and thoroughly and more cheaply than the police could."

McGehee asserted an invasion of the military similar to those of 1918 and 1932 would be welcome now.

"I have no particular criticism of Washington police," he went on. "They're my friends. But I do know that robberies and holdups are happening here every day in the shadow of the Capitol."

Held Bad Publicity.

One of the chief objections to use of soldiers and marines in the war on crime would be the unfavorable publicity the city would receive, Hazen said. He indicated, however, that the proposal would be considered by the Board of Commissioners today.

Hazen refused to acknowledge existence of a crime wave here, "any more than usual for this time of the year."

In event the proposal should receive Congressional endorsement, Hazen declared that the soldiers would "have to be placed directly under the chief of police."

Hazen said he doubted the President would approve the plan, but declared:

"I want it understood that I am in favor of any measure that will reduce crime but I think this plan would not be workable."

Britons Are to Hear 60 Families Talk

By the Associated Press.

The Interior Department press section said the invitation came from London offices of the company. The broadcast will take place Tuesday, February 22.

'Wild Life Week' Set by Roosevelt For March 20-27

Proclaiming March 20-27 as National Wild Life Week, President Roosevelt yesterday called upon Americans to become game conservation-conscious.

"I call upon all citizens in every community to give thought in this period to the needs of the denizens of the field, forest and water and intelligent consideration of the best means for translating good intentions into practical action in behalf of these invaluable but inarticulate friends," he said.

"Only through the full co-operation of all can wild life be restored for the present generation and perpetuated for posterity."

Emphasis was placed on the same point by John C. Page, commissioner of reclamation, in an address yesterday to the Third North American Wild Life Conference in Baltimore.

The Bureau of Reclamation, he asserted, has watered 3,000,000 acres of desert lands, making them "ideal habitat" for quail, ducks, geese and other fowl and is co-operating with the Bureau of Biological Survey on other conservation projects.

"First he pulled my hair and then he slapped my face, but I didn't pay no mind," Martha Parker, colored, of 704 Third street southwest, told Police Court Judge John P. McMahon yesterday.

Martha's patience gave out only when her assailant, Paul Aloysius Speaks, colored, of the same address, picked up a meat platter and struck her with it. After receiving treatment at Casualty Hospital for facial lacerations, she complained to police.

Speaks pleaded not guilty to a charge of assault. He said she threw things at him, too. Besides, she went out all the time and never fixed him anything to eat, he added.

Marines Repel 2 Japan Patrols From U. S. Area

By the Associated Press.

Shanghai (Wednesday), Feb. 16 Japanese sought to settle new difficulties with United States marines in Shanghai's International Settlement today while their armies in northern Honan Province continued their drive to bottle up 400,000 Chinese defending the important Lunghai Railway.

The marine incident arose when Japanese patrols tried to enter the American defense sector of the settlement to "exercise supervision over Japanese, both civilian and military, who informally enter the American sector," a Japanese spokesman explained.

The marines turned the patrols back twice, marine officers indicating they felt capable of patrolling the area without Japanese assistance. They said the Japanese were informed of their attitude and they expected the issue to be settled by today.

Capital Threatened.

The Japanese said their drive in north Honan was "jeopardizing the expected retreat westward" of the huge Chinese force defending Suchow, junction of the Lunghai and Tientsin-Pukow railways north of Nanking.

As a result of Japanese successes in this rector the newspaper Nippo, organ of the Japanese command in Shanghai, predicted Chinese troops soon would abondon both Suchow and Hankow, provisional Chinese capital, and retreat to southern provinces for a last stand, moving the capital southward instead of to Chungking, in the interior, as had been expected.

In north Honan, one Japanese column was reported attacking Sinsiang, 45 miles north of Chengchow, junction of the Lunghai and Peiping-Hankow railways. The Chinese were retreating slowly down the latter line, tearing up tracks, destroying bridges and opening canals to flood the countryside.

A squadron of Japanese planes bombed the railway junction city of Chengchow for more than two hours, leaving 1,000 persons dead or injured, many of them women and children. The large foreign community, including three Americans, was unharmed.

The attack demolished 600 houses and the two leading hotels, damaged the railway station, the Chinese-American Hospital and the Southern Baptist Mission.

Capture of Chengchow, obervers believed, would enable the Japanese to launch a death-blow campaign against Hankow by following the Peiping-Hankow railway.

Chinese Report Successes.

On the broad Lunghai battlefront east of Kaifeng, Japanese told of advances both from the north and south, narrowing the corridor along the railway from 180 to 140 miles.

North of Suchow, near Tsining, Chinese said their forces had wiped out a Japanese garrison at Wenshang, defeated 700 cavalry reinforcements and captured Peikwan, just outside Tsining.

(A Hankow dispatch said Chinese authorities were investigating reports that a Chinese air raid on Pengpu February 12 had resulted in injuries to several Italian nuns. The Italian Embassy filed a protest with the Chinese government.)

Schuschnigg, who went secretly across the German frontier to Berchtesgaden last Saturday and conferred with Hitler on a "reconciliation" of Austria and Germany under their July 11, 1936, pact of friendship, was said to have objected to naming Dr. Seyss-Inquart as minister of interior.

This wavering on Austria's part reportedly led to the massing of German army divisions along the Bavarian frontier.

Schuschnigg held a 20-minute telephone conversation with Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy, who is said to have advised him to accept Hitler's "modified" demands, altered somewhat in the last 24 hours.

Italy is allied, in separate pacts, to both Germany and Austria.

It also was reported that Premier Mussolini was concentrating troops on Brenner Pass along Austria's southern frontier, but this was denied in Rome.

The new cabinet took its oath of office during the early hours of today, while most Austrians—radio broadcasts were discontinued shortly after midnight—were unaware of what had transpired.

The new cabinet reflects many political shades, ranging from clerical deep black of the Christian Social Party to the Nazi Brown Shirts of Austria.

There remained, in addition to Schuschnigg as chancellor, such veteran Christian Social leaders as War Minister Gen. Wilhelm Zehner and Minister of Education Hans Pertner.

May Join Axis.

Vice Chancellor Ludwig Huelgerth and Foreign Minister Guido Schmidt, the latter a pronounced pro-German, remain in the cabinet although they are listed as members of the Christian Social Party.

Prof. M. V. Adamovic, new minister of justice; Dr. Rudolf Neumayer, reappointed minister of finance; Franz Matschnigg, new minister of forestry, and Adolf Watzek, new secretary of state for labor.

However, considered even more pronounced in this direction is Dr. Edmund Glaise-Horstenau, a minister without portfolio, who was appointed the pro-Nazi spokesman in the cabinet following the July, 1936, agreement.

Dr. Seves-Inquart went to Berlin last month and discussed with Hitler the latter's plans in regard to Austria.

However, considered even more pronounced in this direction is Dr. Edmund Glaise-Horstenau, a minister without portfolio, who was appointed the pro-Nazi spokesman in the cabinet following the July, 1936, agreement.

Dr. Seves-Inquart went to Berlin last month and discussed with Hitler the latter's plans in regard to Austria.

It appeared that Germany and Austria were on the road to "gleichschaltung" — harmonization —in domestic and international fields.

There was widespread speculation that Austria's next step might be adherence to the German-Italo-Japanese pact against communism.

Some quarters envisioned a possible military alliance, perhaps embracing Germany, Italy, Austria and Hungary to upset the balance of power in central and southeastern Europe and overshadow the French-dominated Little Entente.

Eventually, it was said, German penetration in Austria might even lead to Vienna's withdrawal from the League of Nations.

Although the developments of the last 12 hours did not actually constitute "anschluss"—Austro-German union—they brought such a possibility sensationally nearer, a prominent observer commented.

The new cabinet was called into session immediately by Schuschnigg who proposed an amnesty decree covering all political crimes and reinstating pensions canceled because of illegal Nazi activities.

A communiqué issued immediately after the cabinet meeting said, in part:

"Carrying out the measures which were announced yesterday, the cabinet decided upon the demand of the chancellor to submit a proposal for a political amnesty bill to the federal President. The amnesty includes all political crimes which were committed before February 15, 1938, if the malefactors remained in Austria . . . .

"The amnesty, however, is not conditional upon the nonrecurrence of the crime until the end of 1941."

The official newspaper Weiner Zeitung explained, in eight lines, that the cabinet change meant a "concentration of positive elements" and that "important personalities have been summoned to collaborate in the new government."

Schuschnigg, who has bitterly fought attempts at Nazi penetration in Austria, capitulated to Hitler after a day of war-like rumors strongly reminiscent of the Nazi putsch in Austria in the summer of 1934, following the assassination of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss.

The cabinet list which Schuschnigg presented to President Wilhelm Miklas and which will be published shortly was understood to include:

Chancellor, Schuschnigg.

Vice Chancellor, Gen. Ludwig Huelgerth, reappointed.

Interior and Public Security, Dr. Seyss-Inquart.

Foreign Affairs, Dr. Guido Schmidt, reappointed.

Education—Dr. Hans Pertner, reappointed.

Finance—Dr. Rudolf Neumayer, reappointed.

Industry—Col. Stepsky-Doliva, reputed Nazi.

Dr. Edmund Glaise-Hortsenau, who surrendered the interior ministry to Dr. Seyss-Inquart, was understood to have become minister without portfolio but with full rank in the new cabinet.

Guido Zernatto, secretary of the Fatherland Front and foe of the Nazis, and Hans Rott, outgoing secretary of state for labor, also were understood to have been taken into the cabinet without portfolios.

Dr. Seyss-Inquart, in his post as minister of interior and public security, will be able to restore a vast amount of the lost power of the Austrian Nazis and wipe out many of the restrictions upon them.

"Concessions" by Hitler.

Hitler had agreed to these restrictions, including the outlawing of the Austrian Nazis, under the Austro-German accord of July 11, 1936.

It was to remove "certain difficulties" in the operation of that accord—meaning the ban of Austrian Nazis—that Hitler and Schuschnigg conferred at Berchtesgaden last Saturday.

Dr. Seyss-Inquart, born July 22, 1892, at Iglau in the former Austro-Hungarian province of Moravia, studied law at Vienna University, served as an officer in the World War and was wounded several times. After the war he became a lawyer in Vienna.

Since the organization in 1925 of the Pan-German "Austro-German Folksbund" he has been a member of its executive committee and deputy leader since 1934. A year ago he was appointed a member of the state council and entrusted with "folkspolitical" affairs, meaning the reconciliation of the Austrian-Nazis.

As the deadline of Hitler's ultimatum approached it was understood that Hitler telephonically agreed to "some concessions as his last word" regarding his original demands.

Mussolini was understood to have told Schuschnigg telephonically to submit to Hitler's "modified" demands.

Vatican Reports Troops.

The high Catholic clergy, close to Schuschnigg, said it had been learned from the Vatican that two German army divisions had been concentrated in the Berchtesgaden district along the Bavarian frontier.

Premier Mussolini, the Catholic sources said, immediately increased his armed forces along Brenner Pass on the south by two divisions, bringing his fascist armed watch there to a total of four divisions.

Rebel Forces Mop Up Foe in Teruel Sector

Cavalry Raids Gain Territory for Insurgents in New Drive.

By the Associated Press.

Hendaye, France (on the Spanish Frontier), Feb. 15.—Cavalry raids gained fresh territory for the Spanish insurgents today in the Serena sector 180 miles southwest of Madrid while forces operating north of Teruel were mopping up captured Alfambra Valley territory.

There were flurries of activity on the Madrid front, where the government reported stopping an insurgent sortie at Cuesta de la Reina, northwest of the city, with machine-gun fire.

Government batteries laid down heavy fire on insurgent lines in the Jarama sector, near Madrid.

Insurgent communiques said cavalry cleaning up newly-conquered territory in the Argente sector north of Teruel found 200 government troops hiding the woods who surrendered without a fight.

Generalissimo Francisco Franco's cavalry, taking advantage of bright moonlight, engaged in widespread raids through the Serena Valley, seizing new territory.

Severely cold weather tended to slow down the conflict in the Alfambra River sector, where the insurgents recently advanced about 14 miles.

(In Paris, the French cabinet unanimously approved a plan today to humanize war.

(Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos, who submitted the plan, said negotiations were under way with other powers to stop the bombing of civil populations in Spain and create a permanent world pact to prohibit nations "from resorting to barbarous methods which war itself cannot justify."

(He said Great Britain had agreed to associate herself fully with French efforts to obtain such an agreement.)

Sleuth Says Girl Admitted Hitting Child Found Dead

Philadelphia, Feb. 15 (AP).—The detective who arrested Mary O'Connor on a charge of killing 5-year-old Nancy Glenn testified at her trial today that she told him:

"It was an accident."

Murphy testified that the 19-year-old girl athlete told him:

"She got on my nerves and I hit her."

British Concerned Over Austria Action

Paris, Feb. 15 (AP).—French and British concern over the Austrian situation today led Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos to confer with the British Ambassador, Sir Eric Phipps, on Germany's apparent new foothold in Vienna.

Informed quarters said Count Dino Grandi, Italian Ambassador to Britain, had assured British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden last week that Mussolini would stand firm for Austrian independence.

Berlin (Wednesday), Feb. 16 (U.P.). Informed Nazi quarters said early today that the reshuffle of the Austrian cabinet to include Nazis was only the first step in "pacification" of Austria, and that other developments would follow.

Navy Adequate For Two Coasts Declared Need

President Says Experts Agreed Single Defense Is Insufficient.

President Roosevelt said yesterday that experts on national defense are generally agreed the United States must have a Navy adequate to protect both Atlantic and Pacific Coast lines.

At his press conference, the President said that the experts believed the United States could not rely on a single defense on one ocean side as attacks could come at the same time from both directions.

Asked if he was opposed to an increase in Japan's naval ratio to this country, he remarked merely that experts believed a double defense is necessary. He then refused to comment on the King-Maverick resolution demanding an arms limitation conference.

In discussing a conference he held earlier with five churchmen representing the Federal Council of Churches, the President said foreign policy and peace had been discussed, and noted that all the clergymen had agreed with him in opposing aggression and in advocating peace.

Secrecy Invoked.

The Navy, meanwhile, as predicted a month ago, put rigid secrecy regulations on the progress of its warship construction program, omitting all details and progress data from the shipyards from its monthly report, issued yesterday, for the first time in 13 years.

The new policy will include a general tightening up of all channels of information, it was believed.

Yesterday's report listed 63 warships and two auxiliaries under construction, five fewer than last month, since the light cruiser Brooklyn and four other craft have been completed.

Before the House Naval Affairs Committee, Representative Hamilton Fish, jr. (Republican), of New York, charged flatly that the President's foreign policy is one of "power diplomacy" which will lead to war entanglements.

Held Contrary to Peace.

He said:

"The President wants this super-Navy for purposes of power diplomacy. He may think he is protecting the peace. Actually the policy is contrary to peace diplomacy, although it may not lead us into war.

"... No nation in the world wants to attack us. No nation would dare attack us, even if we had a Navy only half as large as our present fleet.

"Furthemore, our present Navy is strong enough to enforce the Monroe Doctrine, the principles of which I indorse. I believe we should oppose any outside aggresion or invasion of Latin America by force of arms if necessary.

"But we don't have to worry about Japan for 50 years at least. Germany and Italy wouldn't dare to make such a bold attempt. Their fleets are too inferior for that."

Committeemen noted, however, that Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, testified that the United States fleet, even with the proposed 20 per cent increase, could not successfully stand against another naval power south of the Panama Canal.

Profiteering Bill Opposed.

The House Military Affairs Committee yesterday decided to defer until today action on the May bill, which is aimed at the prevention of war profiteering.

Intense Congressional criticism of this measure, on the basis that it does not strike actually at wartime profits but instead sets up a dictatorship, is being followed by public opposition, according to Chairman John O'Connor, of the House Rules Committee.

Representative Fred Bierman (Democrat) Iowa, David Lewis (Democrat) Maryland, Byron Scott (Democrat) California and Jerry J. O'Connell (Democrat) Montana, petitioned the House Foreign Affairs Committee yesterday to hold hearings on their resolutions, all of which seek to amend the present neutrality act.

The four stated in their petition to Representative Sam D. McReynolds, committee chairman, that public hearings would do much to clarify issues now disturbing the Nation and would help answer their question: "What is America's foreign policy?"

French Fly Stratosphere.

Paris (Correspondence of the Associated Press)—French bombing pilots are learning to fly at the 36,000-foot level, which their officers say will be the normal cruising altitude for bombers in "the next war."

Equipped with light masks and oxygen tanks, the French "high fliers" make daily flights in the substratosphere, preparing for the day when antiaircraft gunners will be looking for planes in lower altitudes.

Moscow (Correspondence of the Associated Press)—Soviet Russia has set herself the ambitious task of outstripping all other nations in the naval armaments race.

Premier Vyacheslaff Molotoff has announced a program of bigger ships for a bigger navy. Peter A. Smirnoff, naval commissar, went even farther, saying Russia would build not only the best but the biggest navy. Reports abroad spoke of possible 35,000-ton craft.

Britain Gears Arms Program 20 Pct. Faster

By the Associated Press.

London, Feb. 15.—Great Britain tonight ended the first year of a $7,500,000,000 five-year "non-profiteering" rearmament program and planned a heavy increase in defense expenditures in the second year.

In the 1937-38 fiscal year, the nation has spent £269,739,000 ($1,348,695,000.)

Sir Thomas Inskip, minister for co-ordination of defense, said the 1938-39 figure would be between £325,000,000 ($1,625,000,000) and £350,000,000 ($1,750,000,000.)

Worried Over Singapore.

A large slice of the increase was expected to be for battleship construction following Japan's formal refusal last week to disclose her battleship and cruiser building plans.

Twenty-seven warships, 100 planes and 10,000 troops joined in the maneuvers, which were followed yesterday by the opening of Singapore's great naval dock.

60 New Warships.

Navy:

Sixty new warships will join the navy in 1938 compared with 32 in 1937. The new ships will consist of 1 aircraft carrier, 4 cruisers, 32 destroyers, 7 submarines and 16 minesweepers and other craft. Three battleships are scheduled to be laid down in 1938.

Air force:

A further boosting of the Royal Air Force's first line airplane strength, pushed from 586 to 1,542 aircraft in two years, was promised for 1938. First line airplanes in the fleet air arm, Britain's naval air force, make the present total 2,031 machines against Germany's estimated total of more than 3,000.

More first line bombers, now numbering 840, are to be built. The naval air force will develop under recently inaugurated navy control.

War Minister Leslie Hore-Delisha was credited with plans for replacement of rifles by machine guns in infantry battalions, construction of more high speed tanks, mechanization of artillery battalions and intensive production of antitank guns.

Viceroy Pitted Against Gandhi In Indian Crisis

By the Associated Press.

Bombay, India, Feb. 15.—Aging Mohandas K. Gandhi, squatting in a secluded mud hut in the village of Haripura, today became the center of a political storm which enveloped India when the cabinets of two provinces resigned.

The new Indian crisis arose when the intensely nationalistic Congress Party, which assumed control of six of the 11 provinces eight months ago, came to grips with British governor over the issue of freeing political prisoners.

This long had been an important issue, but did not come to a showdown until the governors—apparently upon instructions of the viceroy—refused to approve liberation orders submitted by the cabinet of Bihar and the United Provinces. Both resigned immediately.

Gandhi, spiritual leader of the masses, was believed to have directed the resignations, and the four other provinces controlled by the Congress Party were said to be ready to follow suit if Gandhi should give the word.

The situation has resolved itself into a virtual dual between the nationalist leader and Lord Linlithgow, the viceroy. The number of prisoners in the six congress provinces is in itself not of great importance, for there are only 34. Consideration of all India, however, would include 400 prisoners in Bengal.

Gandhi is at Haripura, 200 miles north of Bombay, preparing for the annual session of the Congress Party which will begin next Sunday. The party's working committee, equivalent to an executive council, already is in session there.

The viceroy apparently holds some hope of reaching an eleventh hour compromise before the other four provincial governments resign.

Grayson Rites Set Tomorrow At St. John's

President, Other Notables Lament Death; Burial in Arlington.

Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, chairman of the American Red Cross and physician and confidant of Presidents, who died at his home early yesterday, will be buried tomorrow in Arlington Cemetery, resting place of fighting men. Yesterday messages of condolence and praise poured in from persons high in the counsels of the Government.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 11 a. m. in old St. John's Church, where Admiral Grayson had been a vestryman more than ten years. Services will be conducted by the Rev. Oliver J. Hart, rector of St. John's, assisted by the Rev. Albert H. Lucas, headmaster of St. Alban's School for Boys.

While national headquarters here of the American Red Cross, and branch offices in St. Louis, Mo., and San Francisco, Calif., were ordered closed tomorrow as a token of respect to Admiral Grayson, who had been chairman of the Red Cross since 1935, public officials paid tributes to the Navy doctor who attended President Wilson during his long illness and later stood on the steps of the former President's S street house to announce his death.

"As physician, as humanitarian and as Red Cross executive, Admiral Grayson touched life at many angles and did outstanding work in every field of his endeavor. His earlier activities were a logical preparation for his work in these later years as chairman of the American Red Cross. Whether directing relief at home or co-operating in the alleviation of human misery in far lands, his tact, industry and genius for getting things done made his work outstanding.

Swanson in Lament.

"But it is as a friend that so many of us will always think of Cary Grayson—a friend in the truest and finest sense of that fine word. A stanch friend, an old and close friend has been taken from us."

Expression to the sincere affection in which his associates of long standing held Admiral Grayson also was given by Secretary Swanson, for many years. His judgment could who declared:

"Admiral Grayson was my friend always be relied upon and his intimate association with four Presidents as medical adviser and friend is evidence of his sterling character and professional ability.

"His death is a profund personal loss to me and I feel keenly the loss to the Navy in the passing of one of its most distinguished officers."

The civilian heads of the Nation's land forces also expressed their sincere and heartfelt regrets when informed of the death of Dr. Grayson.

Secretary Woodring said, "The services have lost a good friend and the country has lost a splendid patriot."

He was joined in his expression of grief by Assistant Secretary Johnson, who declared that "a most distinguished and unselfish American has passed. He was the friend and counsellor of Presidents, but he never lost the common touch."

Many Regrets Received.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull said in a telegram of condolence to Mrs. Grayson that Admiral Grayson rendered particularly meritorious and distinguished service to his country."

"During late years he gave unsparingly of his splendid talents and exceptional ability to civic and humanitarian work," he added, "and

Bernard M. Baruch, who was at the admiral's bedside during his illness, yesterday penned the following expression of his own personal feelings about his long-time friend. He said:

"Christian gentleman, humanitarian, healer of the sick, comforter of the helpless and lowly, wise counselor, loyal friend and companion, devoted husband and father, best of sportsmen, beloved and admired by all, he made happy all whom he touched and left the world better because of his presence here."

George Harrison, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, who was in attendance, said, "To know him was to lean upon him, to lean upon him was assurance of support. Ever since he was a young man the old and the young, the rich and the poor, the great and the lowly have turned to him. And he never failed. He never hesitated. He gave generously. There was something in Cary Grayson, something very noble and yet very rare, which perhaps explains his being taken from us so soon—a victim of his unreserved tireless and unhesitating generosity of body, mind and spirit."

The admiral's home, at 3825 Wisconsin avenue, and his offices in the national headquarters of the Red Cross were deluged with cablegrams, letters and personal calls. Telegrams were received from several hundred chairmen and other officers of Red Cross chapters.

Huber Sends Cablegram.

Among the many messages was a cablegram from Max Huber, president of the International Committee of the Red Cross, Geneva, who sent a personal message to Mrs. Grayson and the following to Red Cross officials:

"Heartfelt sympathy to American Red Cross. International Red Cross Committee deeply regrets great loss of most distinguished and genial leader."

Condolences also were cabled by the League of Red Cross Societies, Paris, to Mrs. Grayson, and a cablegram to the Red Cross staff read:

"Red Cross leaders throughout the world will share profound sense of loss sustained by American Red Cross through Admiral Grayson's sudden death. Will deeply miss his devoted guidance."

Garner, Hughes Call.

Callers at the home represented the Cabinet, official, diplomatic and social life of the Capital. Among those who called in person were the Vice President and Mrs. Garner, Chief Justice and Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, the Secretary of Commerce, Daniel C. Roper; Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Senator and Mrs. James F. Byrnes (S. C.), Mrs. Dolly Gann, Commissioner Hazen, Breckinridge Long, former Ambassador to Rome; Senator and Mrs. Robert M. La Follette, jr., Senator and Mrs. William G. McAdoo, the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Frank Sayre, Corcoran Thom, the Military Aide to the President, Col. and Mrs. Edwin M. Watson. Among the many messages were ones from the Secretary of State, Cordell Hull; Joseph P. Tumulty, John Stewart Bryan, president, William and Mary College; Senator Tom Connally, Senator Carter Glass, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cudahy, of Chicago; the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington; Dr. Francis P. Gaines, president of Washington and Lee University; R. Walton Moore, Counselor of the Department of State; Frank R. Kent, William S. Paley, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System; Mrs. Henry R. Rea, of Pittsburgh; Mrs. Mary Roberts Rinehart and Frank L. Polk.

Among other fraternal organizations, Admiral Grayson was a prominent member of the Alfalfa Club, of which he had been president in 1934. Friends recalled yesterday that he had been associated with the organization for 20 years.

Frank Muller, Artist, Is Dead

Works Include Paintings of Battleship Maine and Manila Conflict.

Frank Christian Muller, 78, 705 Quackenbos street northwest, former artist for the Navy Department, died Monday in Homeopathic Hospital following illness of more than six weeks.

Mr. Muller's paintings of ships are widely known through the Navy Department. During service at the department and the Washington Navy Yard he was assigned to make paintings of the new ships for the department archives.

His better-known works included paintings of the battleship Maine and the battle of Manila. He had made official paintings of the President's flag and others for the department's flag book.

A native of Denmark, Mr. Muller came to this country in 1887, and three years later moved from Baltimore to Washington. As a young man he went to sea, and it was there he began painting the ships he sailed on and their captains.

He entered the Government service with the Bureau of Ethnology at the Department of Agriculture. His work included making enlarged paintings of insects, from microscope examination. He retired from the Government service 20 years ago.

He leaves two sons, Harry G. Muller, of Washington, and Albert Muller, Alexandria, Va., and six grandchildren.

$103,000 Asked For Symphony Here Next Year

L. Corrin Strong, Chairman of Campaign Beginning Feb. 23.

Leaders in Washington's business, Governmental, social and artistic circles will join in active support of the National Symphony Orchestra's drive for a $103,000 sustaining fund, L. Corrin Strong, general campaign chairman, announced yesterday.

The ten-day campaign will be launched February 23.

The association has announced that unless the money is raised by March 15 the association will not make plans for another season. The orchestra's budget for the entire season of 1938-39 is estimated on the basis of a symphony of 90 players giving the same number of concerts as this season, at $172,000. Of this total, $69,000 comes to the orchestra in revenue from ticket sales and concerts outside of Washington.

Eleven committees are working under the general committee headed by Strong. To these groups will belong more than 800 volunteers, who will contact potential subscribers. Sub-committees are now being completed.

Special gifts, Thomas P. Morgan, jr.; men's business, Edward Gorins Bliss; women's business, Mrs. Foster Adams; Mrs. David Cox and Mrs. C. Stanley Thompson; Army, Mrs. H. H. Arnold and Brig. Gen. D. T. Merrill; associations, Mrs. Eugene Byrnes and Mrs. Reeve Lewis; education, Miss Grace Denniss Guest and Dean Henry Grattan Doyle of George Washington University; Government, Walter Bruce Howe and Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins; Navy, Mrs. Emory Scott Land and Mrs. William Rogers Munroe; Orchestra Guild, Mrs. Charles Ellis Singer; suburban, Mrs. Edwin B. Parker and Mrs. Robert Lefevre, and publicity, L. E. Rubel.

The special gifts committee, which has been working in advance of the regular opening of the campaign on February 23, consists of 34 members. They are:

Mrs. Foster Adams, Miss Mary S. Adams, Miss Esther Behrend, Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, Mr. Harold Brooks, Mrs. Tracy Bowe, Mrs. James Clemens Dunn, Mrs. Edward R. Finkenstaedt, Mrs. John Rowland Gill, Mr. Walter Bruce Howe, Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe, Mrs. B. L. Jackson, jr., Milton W. Kline, Mrs. Milton W. Kline, Mrs. Emory Scott Land, Mrs. Alice Longworth, Mrs. Arthur Leon, Mrs. Alston Macomsky, Harold Marshall, Mrs. Harold Marsh, Dr. William McClellan, Thomas P. Legionnaires of Fort Stevens Post, American Legion, presented the fourth annual community get-together last night in the Roosevelt High School auditorium. Nearly 500 students and residents of the Northwest area heard addresses by G. R. Dunkum, of the Board of Education; J. Austin Latimer, assistant administrator of the U. S. Housing Authority; Department Commander Thomas Mason, jr., and Chief de Chemin de Fer Fred G. Fraser, jr., national head of the Forty and Eight, and also to witness presentation of American Legion awards to outstanding members of high school graduating classes.

Recipients of American Legion citizenship awards were Wallace Magathen and Dorothy Jones, of Roosevelt High School; David Henkin and Selma Cohen, of Macfarland Junior High, and Robert Bateman and Laurel Bolgiano, of the Paul Junior High School. Motion pictures depicting the work of the legion in juvenile safety were shown.

Final arrangements have been completed for the post's sixth birthday dance to be held at the Indian Spring Country Club Saturday night. The post was originally named for the site of the Civil War battle where President Lincoln suddenly appeared while fighting was the heaviest.

Woman, Hunting For Officer, Freed In Speeding Case

Miss Margaret C. Miller was looking for a policeman Monday and she found one. But instead of rescuing her he arrested her for speeding.

The arrest took place on Reno road, according to testimony in Traffic Court yesterday. Miss Miller suspected she was being followed by the driver of a brown automobile, she explained. She first saw the car on her way to market. The driver parked outside the store, started his engine when she reentered her car and drove after her, she said.

As she started her search for help, Policeman J. E. Fippin pulled up beside her. "I thought, 'I wish I had seen that policeman two minutes ago,'" she told Judge Hobart Newman yesterday. "But instead of coming to my rescue, he arrested me."

Judge Newman, explaining that he considered her nervousness natural, dismissed the charge. The case, a feature of yesterday's traffic court broadcast, is the first in which Judge Newman has released a defendant without penalty, according to court officials.

PERSISTENT BACKACHE
Look To Your Kidneys
They May Need Attention
It's an old saying that "thousands have kidney weakness and don't know it."
Backache may or may not come from bad functioning kidneys, but it often does.
Much of the waste, excess acids and poisons are drawn from the blood and expelled thru the kidneys and bladder—if the kidneys become inactive and do not work naturally they need flushing just as do the bowels.
So if your back aches—if your bladder is irritable—if passage is difficult or scanty and oftimes smarts and burns—if you have to break your refreshing sleep by getting up often at night—if you are continually nervous or irritable, it may be that your kidneys need attention.
One good and effective Kidney diuretic and stimulant that brings gratifying results is GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules—it's safe—it's harmless—and has been helping people with weak kidneys for scores of years.
But be sure it's GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules—right from Haarlem in Holland—ask for and get GOLD MEDAL—the original—the genuine—Be smart enough not to accept a counterfeit.

Mine Union Denies Political Tie-ups

By the Associated Press.

The United Mine Workers declared their political independence yesterday.

The union has been closely allied with the Democrats since 1933.

John L. Lewis, the miners' president, wants the Democratic leaders of that State to choose Thomas F. Kennedy, the union's secretary-treasurer, to be their candidate for Governor this year.

The latest report here said Senator Guffey (Democrat), Pennsylvania, was backing David Lawrence, secretary of the Commonwealth, for Governor.

U.S.S. Somers Stops Here On Shakedown Cruise

One of the Navy's newest ships, the 1,850-ton destroyer Somers, arrived at the Navy Yard yesterday for a four-day stay.

Recently completed by the Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock Co., of Kearney, N. J., the Somers sailed from New York City Friday for her shakedown cruise. The destroyer, commanded by Comdr. James E. Maher, will visit South Atlantic ports, Havana and points on the Gulf of Mexico before returning to New York City April 6.

'Abe Lincoln' Receives Birthday Card at Post

Bearing a Madison, N. J., postmark, the card was signed "The Boys from Drew University," and expressed regrets that the boys had forgotten to mail it on time.

"Aw, shucks, I forgot your birthday!" was the theme of the greetings. Until the boys read about it in The Post, of course.

Contract Bridge

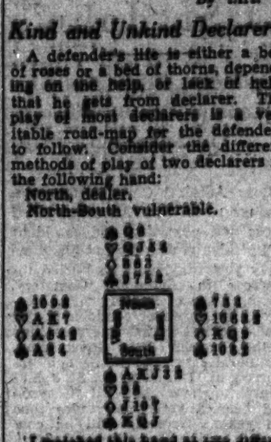
Kind and Unkind Declarers.

A defender's life is either a bed of roses or a bed of thorns, depending on the help, or lack of help, that he gets from declarer. The play of most declarers is a veritable road-map for the defenders to follow. Consider the different methods of play of two declarers in the following hand:

North, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.



I watched this hand at two different tables in a recent duplicate game. The bidding at both was identical, as follows:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

It is interesting to note that at both tables West, with four honor-tricks, decided to "lay back," in the hope that the vulnerable opponents would reach a point where they could be doubled, with more profit than could otherwise accrue to the nonvulnerable East-West team. North's pass at both tables spoiled the trap, and East, understandably enough, did not like his own holding sufficiently to keep the bidding open.

At both tables, West opened the heart King and, after seeing dummy's heart strength and possible spade entry, shifted to the ten of spades. Declarer No. 1 took this in his own hand and promptly led back the heart nine, obviously hoping that the defenders would not cash their three diamond tricks and that at least one diamond discard could be made on a good heart in dummy. Unfortunately this line of play was a strident warning to West who, winning with the heart Ace, laid down the club ace to see what card East would play. Getting the deuce from East, West then laid down the diamond Ace and, seeing East's encouraging nine-spot, continued with a diamond. East cashed the King and Queen, and declarer had to be satisfied with exactly his contract.

The second time I watched the hand played, declarer made it very difficult for the defenders. After West had cashed the heart King and shifted to the spade ten, declarer saw that it would be futile to attempt getting a discard on the hearts. Such an effort would virtually force the defenders to cash all their side suit tricks. To confuse the issue, this declarer deliberately drew three rounds of trumps, leaving dummy without a possible entry, before he returned the heart nine. That West fell into the trap was no great discredit to him. It was impossible for him to know the length of declarer's original heart holding. He might well have started with three, and for West to accept his Ace at this point would be to establish two heart tricks in dummy.

I am pretty sure that most good players in West's position would do exactly as he did, namely, hold up the heart Ace. As it happened, it was fatal from a match-point basis, since it gave declarer a precious extra trick.

WHAT M.C. COBEN SAID TO HAROLD SNEAD, CHIEF PILOT OF TWA

"Do you find Camels really different from other cigarettes?"

Harold Snead gives his own answer—"Camels agree with me!" he says. And millions of other smokers agree with Pilot Snead, making Camels the largest-selling cigarette in America.

ON HIS SECOND MILLION MILES! Snead has been in the flying game for a long time, since the early "night mail" days. He knows what he's talking about when he says: "You've got to take care of yourself in this line of work. Ragged nerves are simply out. I smoke—all I want, but I stick to Camels. They never get on my nerves."

THIS VIEW over Pilot Snead's shoulder shows a few of the instruments that a flier has to watch. After a trip, Hal likes a Camel. "When I feel tired," he says, "I get a 'lift' with a Camel. You may think I am enthusiastic about Camels. Well, I am! All in all, here is a cigarette that agrees with me!"

"There's a big difference, sir. I've been flying since 1917 and smoking Camels since 1918. I can tell the difference in the way Camels hit the spot and agree with me! I know most of the American fliers who have records of several thousand hours in the air. The majority are steady smokers and prefer Camels. Years of experience have taught them that Camel is a really different cigarette!"
"Some people say all cigarettes are alike, Mr. Snead . . . Can Camels really be so different?"

TWO GREAT SHOWS IN A SINGLE HOUR
Two great shows—"Jack Oakie College" and Benny Goodman's "Swing School"—in one fast, fun-filled hour. Every Tuesday at 9:30 pm E.S.T., 8:30 pm C.S.T., 7:30 pm M.S.T., 6:30 pm P.S.T., over WABC-CBS.

AFTER THE BIG TWA SKYSLEEPER, above, was set down in Newark Airport, M. C. Coben was chatting with Hal Snead, chief pilot of the Eastern region, and Isabelle Judkins, air hostess, of Glendale, California. Hal pulled out a package of Camels and offered them around. And so they got to talking cigarettes!

Camels are a matchless blend of finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic

ON DUTY, Isabelle is a perfect hostess! "Most passengers on this TWA run prefer Camels," she says. "When conversation turns to cigarettes, someone always exclaims that Camel is certainly the cigarette that is different. The comment I often hear is 'Camels agree with me.'"

A BRISK SWIM IN THE POOL—then a "lift" with a Camel—and Isabelle Judkins, TWA hostess, finds her off-duty hours pass quickly and pleasantly. "When I got into aviation, I noticed that most of the top fliers preferred Camels. So I changed to Camels. And what a difference I found in Camels!" she says. "No ragged nerves. No scratchy throat. No 'cigaretty' after-taste."

Senate Group Votes Jackson Approval, 5-2

Jackson

Idaho, and George W. Norris (Independent), Nebraska.

Jackson was questioned closely for hours by King and Austin on speeches he has made attacking monopoly and urging an end to delays in judicial proceedings.

The young New Dealer, a candidate for the New York Governorship this fall and mentioned often as President Roosevelt's choice as a 1940 successor, insisted after sharp questioning by King that "I'd rather have our system of Government at its worst than any system abroad at its best."

Irritated at King.

He added:

"But I hope that such an attitude does not mean that we should close our eyes to the need for improvements at times in our system."

When King continued to seek to show that Jackson, in various speeches, had criticized the American form of government, Borah, who had been sitting thoughtfully at the press table, seized a sheet of paper and wrote on it: "Vote me for a favorable report. Borah."—and strode out, sending the sheet to Chairman McGill.

At the same time, Norris, obviously irritated, burst out:

"A man is not necessarily a traitor to his country if he criticises it, or advocates changes in its structure."

King retored: "No; but a man in public office, or a member of Congress, or a member of the judiciary, should not hold such views.

Norris answered sharply:

"Well if it's treason to criticise your Government, or to advocate certain progressive changes, why I've been guilty all my life."

At this point Dieterich arose, instructed McGill to vote him for confirmation, and added dryly:

"I feel I must leave before we find that Mr. Jackson wrote some essays when he was a little boy, or something like that."

Grilled Over Geiger.

Much of the day's examination had concerned the case of Federal Judge Ferdinand Geiger, of Milwaukee, who dismissed last December a jury investigating antitrust charges against several large auto financing companies before it could return indictments, because he believed the case had been improperly handled by the Justice Department.

Attorney General Homer Cummings immediately filed a complaint with the House Judiciary Committee, charging that Judge Geiger had "obstructed justice." Judge Geiger, in his dismissal of the jury, said he did so because of the apparent impropriety of the Justice Department in suggesting a compromise in a case where the jury had once voted to return indictments.

In hearings before the House committee Jackson presented the Justice Department's views and incidentally contended that the department, in fighting monopoly through antitrust suits, "absolutely can never get results (consent decrees) from the big companies without the use of compulsion."

Yesterday he amplified that testimony to say:

"If Judge Geiger is right he has driven one more spike into the coffin of the antitrust laws.

"If he is right we're in the position, before we know what the evidence is, of having to choose whether we will proceed with a civil suit or a criminal suit."

Asked why the department brought the suit in Geiger's court, with 48 States to choose from, Jackson held that the department was "forced" to go there, as the Chicago court was busy and Milwaukee was convenient. He said:

"I raised the question, at the time, of the advisability of going into Judge Geiger's court because I knew Geiger was a bitterly anti-labor judge and an anti-Government judge in income tax cases." He remarked he was told that Geiger did not believe antitrust cases were of themselves pro- or anti-New Deal, and added that the department does not have any clearing house of records of decisions of Federal judges, saying that, if there had been such information available on Geiger, he would never have allowed the case to go before him.

Jackson said:

"His (Geiger's) record is one of consistent opposition to the Government. He has dismissed 13 indictments after the defendants have pleaded guilty.

"Judge Geiger is a man of intense eccentricity.

". . . The effect of his ruling was to say that the Government couldn't prosecute simultaneously in civil and criminal proceedings. The Supreme Court has said otherwise.

Fears Law "Amended."

"If the department, once it has instituted grand jury investigation, is precluded from thereafter beginning a civil action, or settling a civil action by a consent decree, then it means that the anti-trust laws, which now permit concurrent civil and criminal remedies, are amended to allow only one or the other and the choice must be made before the investigation has revealed the facts.

"The department does not and would not approve the commencement of grand jury investigation to bludgeon a defendant into the settlement of a civil case.

"But, having commenced a grand jury investigation upon adequate cause and for proper purpose, it has not and does not see any reason why it should refuse to accept proffers to consider a prompt, complete remedy without the delays, uncertainties and expense that attend this type of litigation."

He declared that in the Geiger case "If you ask me if the department uses coercion in obtaining consent decrees I would say yes, but if you ask me if it was used in this particular case, I would say no."

In discussing the American system of government with King, Jackson emphatically insisted he did not purpose to "destroy" anything, but stressed the necessity of constant revision and vigilant "oiling" of the machinery of checks and balances to keep it running smoothly.

Price Levels Must Be Lifted, Roosevelt Says

Roosevelt

was that the principle enunciated in 1933 had not been changed. This principle was a return to the 1926 price level. Mr. Roosevelt added that prices are too low and should go up, but he said he did not mean that copper should go up to 19 cents again.

May Mean Raw Materials.

In view of his previous statement regarding the necessity for lowering prices and his campaign last spring against rising prices, Mr. Roosevelt's statement yesterday caused some confusion. Since he excepted only copper specifically from his statement, it was uncertain whether he meant to nullify his remarks in behalf of lower prices of three weeks ago.

It was obvious three weeks ago, however, that Mr. Roosevelt was referring chiefly to the prices of finished products and in some quarters it was thought that yesterday he was referring chiefly to raw materials. Administration economists on previous occasions have made approximately this type of differentiation of prices. There are some prices which the Administration has regarded as too low and some as too high—but no authoritative source has ever specified the commodities which should be placed in each class.

Expressed in averages the wholesale commodity price index figure of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, based on the average for 1926, has not reached 100 since 1929. Its peak was reached last April at 88 and since July it has been falling steadily until now it is approximately 80—that is 80 percent of the 1926 level. Hides and leather average prices constitute the only general commodity classification of that figure which has gone above 100—or above the 1926 average. Several individual commodities, such as grains, meats, lumber and nonferous metals, as well as shoes, leather, hides and skins, reached 100 or above during the last year.

Prices Fall in Index.

Composite price averages, however, do not fully reflect changes taking place in prices, since the figure for some commodities may be very high and for others abnormally low, one offsetting the other when the average is computed. The contention made in Administration circles is that many prices are out of line—some too low and others too high.

The composite average index figure for wholesale commodity prices of the Bureau of Labor Statistics fell from a high of 88 in April to approximately 80 at present. The figure a year ago was 86.3. The sharpest decline has taken place in prices of farm products, a drop of 94.1 last March to 73.4 last month. Textiles and chemicals also have declined sharply, building supplies less sharply but substantially, while metal and metal products have declined only slightly.

Those who participated in the Treasury conference, in addition to Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, included W. L. Crum, of Harvard University; Jacob Viner, of the University of Chicago—both special Treasury advisers—George C. Haas, director of research and statistics in the Treasury; Dr. Harry C. White, Treasury economist; Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Wayne Chatfield Taylor, Mordecai Ezekial, economist in the Agricultural Department; Dr. Isador Lubin, commissioner of labor statistics, and Herbert E. Gaston, asssistant to the Secretary of the Treasury.

300 Meat Dealers Join Campaign to SpurConsumption

Nearly 300 local meat dealers gathered at the Departmental Auditorium last night to join in a projected Nation-wide educational drive to increase consumption of meat.

The drive, backed by the Institute of American Meat Packers, is to inform consumers that meat prices hive dropped to lowest levels in several years.

Harry L. Brown, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, told the group that during the past four months "we have seen livestock prices fall more rapidly than they advanced last summer." Brown attributed the drop in meat prices to the industrial recession, with resulting contraction of consumer buying power.

Chairman of the meeting was Dr. F. B. Symons, dean of the College of Agriculture at the University of Maryland. Other speakers included Michael Keane, presient of the Southern Hotel Supply Co., and Mrs. Frances T. Northcross, home economist.

Tax on Family Firms Divides House Majority

the penalty surtax from 20 to 10 per cent, and modification of the definition of "closely held" companies.

Dispute Delays Action.

Demand for modification or repeal of the undivided profits tax and easing of the capital gains levy, to aid business to cope with the recession, received a chorus of verbal backing when Congress assembled November 15.

The President in his message favored "modification adequate to encourage productive enterprise, especially for "smaller business," providing it was not carried to the point of encouraging use of the corporate form for tax avoidance.

Individual Senate and House bills to bring about this relief immediately, and an apparent majority of Senate sentiment for the change, was met by assurances from House leaders that the Ways and Means sub-committee would shortly conclude its studies and bring out a bill.

On January 14 a sub-committee report, without an accompanying bill, was made public by the Ways and Means Committee, recommending 63 specific tax changes.

Principle Retained.

The sub-committee report, on which the committee bill is expected to be based, favors repeal of neither the undivided profits tax nor the capital gains levy. Somewhat modified, the principle of the undivided profits tax was retained on corporations earning more than $25,000 annually. Sweeping changes in capital gains tax computation methods were ordered, providing a more gradual step-down of the percentage of gain or loss taken into account for tax purposes, elimination of the highest surtax brackets on individual capital gains and more liberal deductions of capital losses in the interest of greater equity.

Further modifications are expected to be ordered by the Senate Finance Committee if the House approves the sub-committee recommendations in substantially their present form.

Gorilla Bites Circus Man.

Sarasota, Fla., Feb. 15 (AP).—John Ringling North, executive head of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus, was bitten on the arm by "Gargantu the Great," giant gorilla, at the circus winter quarters today. After receiving emergency treatment, North was given an injection of anti-tetanus serum.

Commodity Credit Bill Passes House

By the Associated Press.

A bill designed to maintain unimpaired capital of $100,000,000 for the Commodity Credit Corporation received House approval yesterday and went to the Senate.

It would direct the Treasury to survey assets of the corporation annually and to make up any impairment of the capital.

Jesse Jones, Reconstruction Corporation chairman, said at hearings on the bill that losses on cotton loans might result in a $75,000,000 impairment.

Coal Commission Aide To Ask Rate Suspension

By the Associated Press.

John Carson, Coal Commission Consumers' counsel, said after a White House conference yesterday he favored suspension of the commission's minimum price schedule pending final determination of the injunction granted against railroad and City of Cleveland soft coal price schedules.

Carson said otherwise a "price war" would result and general consumers would pay a different price than railroads.

Carson declared he would seek a restraining order if suspension can not be obtained in any other way.

A Rare Personality.

As in the lives of most prominent men, good fortune undoubtedly had a part in shaping the career of Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson. But luck was not responsible for his exceptional gifts of personality, his rare technical competence, his ability to make and keep friends and his unusual organizing and administrative ability.

It was these qualities which were primarily responsible for young Grayson's rocket-like rise to eminence. And these same attributes enabled him to stay on the pinnacle once he got there. Only a very unusual man, indeed, could have managed to win and hold the admiration and confidence of such very different individuals as Theodore Roosevelt, William Howard Taft and Woodrow Wilson. Yet this is precisely what Cary Grayson did.

As surgeon of the Presidential yacht, Grayson came into contact with Theodore Roosevelt. Acquaintance soon ripened into friendship. But Grayson's role as medical adviser to the Chief Executive did not end with the retirement of T. R. He continued as a member of the White House medical staff under President Taft and in the following Administration became personal physician to Woodrow Wilson. And he was one of the few whose intimacy with the World War President was never clouded by misunderstanding.

Cary Grayson remained at Wilson's side to the end. Some day, when the admiral's confidential letters and papers are revealed to the public, it will be found that they constitute a very valuable contribution to our understanding of an important era in American history. This friend of Presidents knew how to keep his counsel and respect a trust. His untimely death robs the Nation of a man of great distinction and the city of Washington of a very charming and greatly beloved figure.

Modifying The Gold Policy.

The gold sterilization policy inaugurated at the end of 1936 was part of a credit-control program designed to check what was regarded as an over-rapid rise in prices.

While the Treasury was putting newly-mined and imported gold into an inactive fund, thus preventing it from adding to excess reserves, the Federal Reserve authorities took steps to double reserve requirements. The result was a sharp contraction of the huge volume of excess reserves which had provided the basis for a feared inflationary expansion of credit.

In a very short time the conditions which gave rise to such fears had changed radically. By early fall of 1937 the current business recession, with its threat of declining prices, had created new anxieties. They led to the decision to release, or "desterilize," $300,000,000 of gold.

When that decision was announced it was pertinently asked why the Treasury should continue to sterilize gold at all. It was pointed out that changed conditions demanded different credit policies. Furthermore, as The Post then observed, such a change would not prevent a return to the practice of sterilizing gold, if that should subsequently seem desirable.

The reasons then indicated for abandonment of the gold sterilization policy are even stronger today. The gold inflow has declined to disappearing point and, for the time being, acquisitions of the yellow metal are limited to small amounts of newly-mined domestic gold. In the meantime, business activity has continued to decline. With increasing unemployment the deflationary pressure upon the price structure has increased. Disappointing revenue returns and additions to relief appropriations have further unbalanced the budget and made the prospect of incurring debt for the purpose of sterilizing gold increasingly distasteful to the Treasury.

Under these circumstances it is surprising that the Treasury has not gone further in reversing its policy than is the case. The announcement that gold received in excess of $100,000,000 per quarter will continue to be sterilized should certainly allay any fears that the new policy is an unsound inflationary move.

Member bank excess reserves now stand at the very high level of approximately $1,400,000,000. If conditions were favorable, bank resources would be ample to support credit inflation on a great scale. The current addition to the existing volume of excess reserves is, therefore, of little practical significance, although it may have some effect upon general sentiment.

Credit policies should be flexible, subject to change with changes in the economic conditions that give rise to them. That being the case, it is much easier to justify radical modification of the gold sterilization policy than it would be to defend its continuance under the sharply altered circumstances of today.

Neglecting The Obvious.

In presenting its report on reorganization of the District government the Prettyman committee said: "The arguments for . . . complete departmentalization are too obvious and well established to require recitation." It was mistaken. The advantages of a departmentalized government are not yet obvious to the District Commissioners.

The decision of the local authorities to forget about consolidation of loosely organized bureaus, and to seek only the appointment of three assistant commissioners, is a severe setback to the overdue modernization of the District government. It suggests that the Commissioners are content merely to patch up the obsolete system now operating. Before any such decision is given legislative form the committee which so carefully worked out the proposed new system should at least be given an opportunity to explain the impressive reasons for its conclusions.

Apparently the Commissioners have completely misunderstood the point made by the Prettyman committee. It emphasized the importance of turning administrative details over to expert executives in each of eight major divisions of the local government, so that the Commissioners would be free to devote themselves to general policies. The Commissioners agree that they should be relieved of such routine activities, but think that objective could be accomplished by creating three executive assistants to themselves.

Thereby they ignore the heart of the problem. The central purpose of departmentalization is to put each branch of the District service under a trained administrator who would hold his post for a long period. That is the accepted technique to achieve efficiency, whether in governmental service or private business. But in thinking of their own subordination to detail the Commissioners have completely ignored the vital principle of the reorganization plan.

Assistant Commissioners would come and go with their chiefs. They could do little to co-ordinate the work of scattered agencies on a permanent basis, for that would not be their function. Doubtless they would be political appointees. Instead of building up a career service in well-regulated departments, their temporary influence might easily serve to tear it down. Instead of eliminating excessive personnel and overlapping functions, these glorified secretaries would simply enlarge the pay roll. They might afford very perceptible relief for the Commissioners. But what the community is more interested in is relief from needless expenses.

There will be general approval of the Commissioners' proposal to free themselves from domination of the Budget Bureau, to consolidate Washington's two police forces and bring miscellaneous offices under centralized control. But the reorganization program will be grossly incomplete if it fails to achieve the fundamental steps toward the establishment of a modern governmental structure.

This is no time for the addition of more patches to the haphazard structure that has grown up since 1878. Too much tinkering of that sort has already been done. What the District now needs is a general overhauling of its political setup so that the National Capital may obtain something worthy of the name of responsible municipal government.

Limiting Motor Trucks.

Some very important issues are raised by the Supreme Court's opinion upholding the right of South Carolina to limit the width and weight of motor trucks using the State's highways in interstate commerce.

Overruling a lower court decision, Justice Stone, who delivered the opinion, concluded that the State has a right to enforce legislation passed as a safety and economy measure. However, the decision made it very clear that this right of the State to regulate trucks moving on its highways is subject to restriction, if Congress decides to legislate on the subject.

The court's position was that unless Congress intervened, its admitted right to regulate interstate commerce does not "forestall all State action affecting interstate commerce." Since the law in question was designed to curtail damage on highways and reduce traffic hazards, South Carolina was held within her rights in passing it. The court not only refrained from comment upon the stability of the restrictions from the viewpoint of national policy but rebuked the lower court for usurping legislative prerogatives by passing judgment upon the suitability of the restrictions.

The issues raised in this case will not be settled by the decision because, as Justice Stone suggests, it is still possible for Congress to exercise its power of regulation and in so doing "curtail to some extent the State's regulatory power." That pressure to that end will be exerted by the trucking concerns engaged in interstate commerce is probable, as from 85 to 90 per cent of interstate motor trucks exceed the weight and speed limits required by the South Carolina law. Moreover, the Department of Justice also takes the position that the regulations are an "unreasonable burden on interstate commerce insofar as they apply to traffic on the interstate system of Federal-aid highways."

"Few subjects of State regulation are so peculiarly of local concern," Justice Stone asserted, "as is the use of State highways." Nevertheless, with travel on these highways becoming increasingly interstate in character, and with Federal funds liberally expended for construction of roads, there is undoubtedly justification for Federal extension of control.

Just what form that Federal intervention should take—whether it should go so far as to determine for South Carolina what is safe and whether it should force her to accept standards deemed undesirable locally—is highly debatable. The Supreme Court has not dealt with the merits of the questions involved in the State's action. It has left such matters for later legislative determination.

A Temporary Brainstorm?

Perhaps the most significant fact regarding the enactment of the farm bill is the comparative public apathy on the subject. The bill is one of the most revolutionary measures ever passed by the American Congress. Yet it has slipped through the legislative mill with little criticism. Its passage was regarded as a foregone conclusion, and there was no really determined effort to examine the implications.

To some extent this attitude is attributable to the fact that few people can hope to understand the legislative monstrosity finally turned out by the conference committee. Many legislators who cast votes for or against the bill made no pretense of having mastered its contents. And the public seems to have become weary of it long ago. Lack of information and apathy thus combined to slick the path of this measure to the White House.

Another attitude toward the bill may be detected, however, in the Senatorial debate. A number of speakers denounced it with a triumphant ring in their voices, despite realization that it was soon to become law. Other opponents spoke more in sorrow and regret than in anger or alarm. There was a note of complacence that seems scarcely compatible with this death warrant of economic freedom on the farm.

There may be more reason in this attitude than meets the eye. Opponents familiar with the economic fallacy of the measure, as well as with its rigid compulsory features, confidently anticipate its complete and speedy failure. The scheme of controlling farm output from Washington is so ponderous that it is likely to fall of its own weight.

That view is strengthened by some of the more far-reaching amendments attached. The Administration supported the bill because, among other reasons, it contained Secretary Wallace's "ever-normal granary" idea. But specific provision for this plan has been eliminated. Many farmers were lured to indorsement of the measure by its former promise of "parity" prices.

That hope has been undermined by the lack of sufficient funds to pay the enormous subsidies involved. In place of these ambitious objectives, the bill offers farmers a scheme of scarcity production supported by coercive penalties for marketing basic crops beyond quotas fixed by the Secretary of Agriculture.

It does not seem possible that a system of this kind will long endure. Many ardent friends of the measure are confidently looking forward to its amendment, even before it is signed by the President. The complacence of the public in the face of such a revolutionary assault upon the American concept of government may most charitably be attributed to that anticipation.

The Singapore Base.

It is understatement to call Britain's gigantic new naval base at Singapore the "Gibraltar of the Far East."

The development of airplane and submarine warfare has tended to undermine the once overwhelming strategic importance of the towering rock that dominates the narrow passageway connecting the Atlantic and the Mediterranean. Indeed, there are many who maintain that Gibraltar's significance is now largely of the past. This certainly is not true of Singapore.

The construction of that naval base had been planned before the days of the Washington conference of 1921-22. Work on it proceeded, although at leisurely pace, throughout the ensuing years of peace and promise in the Western Pacific. But since 1931, when Japan first laid heavy hands on the Nine-Power Treaty, Singapore has loomed larger and larger in the British consciousness as a bulwark of the imperial defense system.

With Japan relentlessly pressing down from her northern islands, Singapore constitutes a warning and a reminder to that nation, once Britain's ally, that the latter is prepared to defend her interests in the Far East if, as and when such action becomes unavoidable. And the Singapore base has been built with an eye to the future. It is already able comfortably to berth the entire British fleet, the most formidable aggregation of naval strength in the world today. It can be expanded further if needs be.

While purely a British project, the Singapore base has a bearing on the defense policies of other nations. It is a potential barrier to any attack on the Dutch East Indies, the Philippines or French Indo-China. For that reason its construction is welcomed by other nations whose rights and interests are imperiled by present developments in the Far East.

The presence of a squadron of American warships at the formal opening of the Singapore naval base properly suggests that, in the eyes of Washington, the completion of this project is regarded as a development making for peace in one of the disturbed areas of the world.

Arguments Against War.

Anyone may urge war in peace time; no one may propose peace in war time.

War is waged to obtain economic security; war destroys economic security. Collective security is security uncollected.

No international conference has ever discussed universal total disarmament, which would be to the mutual advantage of all.

Aggression is denounced by law-abiding nations, but there is no international law which makes aggression a crime. All nations have agreed to wage only defensive wars; every nation may determine which wars are defensive.

Experience having shown that battleships are of little use and can be destroyed readily by bombing planes, the nations are building more battleships. Battleships would be as useful if made in Hollywood, provided they were listed in naval registers.

Battleships of 35,000 tons are the largest practicable, but if Japan builds 43,000-ton battleships, the United States will build still larger. Admiral Sims says battleships are worthless for defense; we are building more battleships for defense only.

To avenge minor losses in China, the United States may spend billions of dollars in a war with Japan.

Though it is admitted that the United States Navy could not defeat Japan in its own waters, we are increasing our navy to prevent Japan from attacking our shores.

If we captured Japan, we would not keep it. If we imposed an indemnity, they would not pay it.

Our new naval program is for defense only; defense of our possessions. The Philippines are our possessions.

We are about to give up the Philippines, but will sacrifice our last man and last dollar to retain them if Japan attacks.

The atrocities of the last war will be patriotic acts in the next.

If democracies, imperialists and aggressors fight to a finish, all peoples will be so poor that they will turn to communism or fascism, to prevent which war is to be fought.

Equal Rights.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I should like to express to you my appreciation of the editorial on the equal rights amendment in The Post of February 10. I consider it an unusually effective brief statement of a subject that can be made rather complicated and it seems to me that in the scarcely more than half a column all has been said that needs be said on the subject.

Please accept my congratulations.

A Warning To The Philippines.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Philippine Commonwealth, the most progressive step ever taken toward Philippine national autonomy, would never have been accomplished but for the influence and co-operation of that group of American "selfish interests" who too often are bitterly assailed by Philippine selfish interests, unknowing American editors and Philippine leaders still seeking further advantages for their people.

The Hawes-Hare-Cutting bill was a compromise between "selfish interests" in the Philippines and America, individuals in the Philippines seeking political power, no matter what the cost, and too few, on both sides of the Pacific, who were honestly trying to satisfy the wishes and welfare of the two peoples.

The "selfish interests," with one exception, compromised. Labor, of the Pacific Coast, or both, insisted on its "pound of flesh" and got it. Sugar, vegetable oils, cordage and business interests compromised. Nearly everyone was satisfied.

The glow of promises changed into a sunrise of actual independence to appease the national pride of Filipinos. Democrats saw the fulfillment of political promises. Republicans saw less danger of international complications for the United States and some protection for United States industry against too rapid use of competitive Philippine labor. The Pacific Coast was again saved from its "yellow peril." Filipino office-seekers were to have their chance.

The United States Congress has passed some laws since that time, but these have benefited these same groups. American sugar, oil and cordage have had further protection—in depressed times—without any great burden on Philippine interests. Philippine sugar interests have received millions. The Filipino, too, has been saved from overburdening taxation. The Philippines have been prosperous through the "priming of the pump" with American money.

Filipino officeholders have had money to build a Philippine army and spend otherwise, without taxing their constituents. Americans selling in the Philippines have found that Filipinos have United States money to pay for American goods. Everyone is happy except the American people, and they do not know it is their money which is paying for this bliss.

But peace, contentment and success go to the head. Provisions of the independence act are inequitable. Trade relations between the two countries after 1946 must be fixed now on terms most advantageous to the Philippines, or else—independence in 1939. A group of American bureaucrats and Philippine politicians are to accomplish this. American, Cuban and Philippine sugar interests are equally disturbed. The theory of former Senator Hawes, that grand old exponent of early independence—to settle a vexing problem—is discarded. Even Mr. Hawes is changing his mind. American farmers and cordage interests cannot protect their interests as well with the State Department as they can with Congress. The Pacific Coast may have its "yellow peril," after all. Filipinos may not have American money with which to buy American goods. Various proposals are beginning to be considered in Congress. Americans are learning that they are paying the bill.

Perhaps compromise is better. The selfish interests in America, which were a big influence in passing the independence act over the veto of a Republican President in a Republican Congress, still exist. It is reasonable to expect that they will be watchful to protect their interests. A real investigation by public opinion in America might well result in:

Immediate independence without strings; trade relations satisfactory to rio one; stopping the sending of United States money to the Philippines.

Increased taxes and lower standard of living for the Filipinos.

The Filipino politico will be holding an empty bag and American pocketbooks will swell.

Organic Architecture.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The article in your Sunday edition on the "Architecture of Washington" is liable to stir some little discussion—especially among those of us who are interested in the matter of keeping the Capital to its traditional standards.

Just what is "Organic Modern Architecture?" The Folger Library is very beautiful, but the donor, so I was informed by the consulting architect, gave instructions as to the exterior design—"it was to be classic without the aid of columns or pilasters."

I have asked of men who have studied architecture all their lives—just what is "Organic Architecture?" They could not answer. The dictionary gives "organic" as an "instrument of art." Can anyone say that the Capitol Building was not an instrument of art? Is this "organic?" If it means the modernistic trend, then I trust, as your art editor states, "it will be years before the principles of organic structures are freely and widely accepted in Washington, and I hope it will be many years.

Just why should we disturb the traditional make-up of our Capital? Is it not beautiful to most of us; is it not acceptable after all these years? Why do many come here to to see that beauty? Can there be any improvement on the Capitol, the City Court House, the White House or the Octagon?

Jefferson gave us one of the most beautiful buildings in the world—the Library of the University of Virginia—and it is hard to say at this time that he "would surely be on the side of the defenders of the freedom of expression essential to democratic ideals." He was a true lover of the classic, and did much to further it in the minds of the people.

It is to be regretted that an article of a major character in one of our principal newspapers should make statements which are incorrect, such as the "Sacred Heart Church by John Joseph Earley." Mr. Early, whom I know very well and of whose work I think very highly, will be regretful of this statement, because this beautiful church, which is not modern, was designed by my very good friend, Fred Murphy, head of the architectural department of the Catholic University, and I believe he does not quite know just what "Organic architecture" is.

"You Can't Arrest Me!"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Sunday evening I noticed two Congressional cars parked in front of a well-known Washington restaurant. Since two signs in the immediate vicinity unequivocally stated, "Entrance—No Parking," I wondered. After a few minutes a policeman strolled along and I asked him if the two cars were liable to get tickets for violating parking laws. He smiled, a sort of mysterious smile like Mona Lisa's, and said, "How long have you been in Washington?"

I am wondering if these two Congressmen, or others like them, ever arise on the floor of the House and deliver speeches about the great number of law-breakers in these United States.

Sheep Trials.

WASHINGTON'S winter fogs are like the weather they usually have at sheep dog trials in Scotland.

There was a day like today when we stood at the foot of a mountain with field glasses tilted toward a young man, his dog and a small pen of sheep huddled halfway up the side of Rest and Be Thankful. At a given signal the sheep were released and deliberately scattered. Some wandered down, some up and over the top of the ridge. Others disappeared near the foot of a high wall of rock.

A whistle rang out on the cold, damp air, and off went Jock, the year-old sheep dog. After a few moments he, too, disappeared, and we could follow him only by his bark. At the foot of the mountain stop-watches ticked off the seconds; halfway up the side by the pen stood the owner of the sheep and master of the dog.

* * * *

Jock knows his job; he must bring the sheep home, all of them. He runs this way, to the right, then back, over that boulder, around, under and up. He barks, wags his tail and works with a speed that is amazing.

Two sheep come running from the left. Jock halt circles his flock, back and forth, back and forth, urging them on. They must stay together, but they must head always for the pen farther down the hill. They are all running, their short legs passing each other in quick succession. Now is his chance—down he comes, nearer and nearer to that one lone ewe whose curiosity has led her toward these people who are thankful for the warmth afforded them by the wool from the backs of many of her kind. She is a stubborn lady with no desire to join the others, but once Jock nips those black ankles she knows better than to argue further, so with a scornful bleat she starts up the hill toward the rest of the flock.

Meanwhile the others, not being ordered on by that familiar bark, have stopped to enjoy just a few more of those tender clumps of moss. Once again he circles back and forth, herding them all closer together until they at last reach the pen. Now he must put them through the narrow opening in single file. He barks, he pinches the hind legs of some, all are there—they must go in. Back and forth, barking, talking, coaxing, commanding—there, they're in.

As the gate drops behind the last one, stop-watches click, judges check timers, notations are made and points discussed, while up there by the pen Jock is receiving the petting and kind words he has come to expect after a job well done. They'll give him a blue ribbon, and his master will get the honor of having a first-class dog.

* * * *

To those who watched it, it was an exhibition of intelligence, speed and understanding. To Jock it was all a game.

When but a pup he had run after the sheep at the heels of an older dog. It was fun pinching the legs of a heavy old sheep or rushing the frisky young lambs. When he was older his master and several other men had taken him up on the moor to be trained.

Shep, the old dog used in training the pups, was there. Work began. Bob gave a long-drawn-out whistle—off went Shep with a coaxing bark to this new pup. Jock ran at his side. Several short blasts sent the dogs off in another direction; a succession of shrill notes brought them hurrying back to the master. Later Jock ran alone. If he hesitated one of the men that had come up with them would call, the master would point and soon Jock learned what the calls meant. There were no sheep here—just men. When he ran to one he was petted, then he was called back or sent off in another direction.

It took days to become sure of those whistles—days when it was wet and cold, when no one but the master was there. He ran alone, this way and that; left, right, on, on, back, away, come in, faster, faster, here. Always the master was patient and kind; Jock was scolded for mistakes but petted whenever he was right.

One day in the early summer he was taken to the sheep pens. He smelt all. Each had a different smell. He was put in a pen with first one then another. He learned to know each ram, each ewe and every new lamb. Next time he went up on the moor there were a few sheep grazing near the clump of broom. Some were in the heather and one was off to the right by the thistles. At the first whistle, Shep, the old dog, ran around the old ram; he barked and gradually drove the old fellow toward the others; Jock followed the older dog.

When all the sheep were together the master held Jock while he gave a command the young dog hadn't heard. Shep turned on the sheep, barking, nipping their haunches, chasing them in all directions, then he came to the master at a command Jock knew. Shep was held while Jock tried to round up the sheep alone. The master scolded but little; more often he talked to his dogs. He told Jock he was learning—he'd be a good dog—look what he had learned since early spring.

It wasn't long before the young dog could pick up a trail and follow the sheep. He knew the difference between a new and old smell. He worked alone now—Shep was old and the summer was hard on him. The master had said he was fast—soon he would run in the sheep dog trials when they were held late in the fall.

Fair Enough

Corrupt And Contented.

CHICAGO, Feb. 15.

FOR A couple of weeks I have been writing in amazement of a community which honors thieves and does not believe in taxes, which never completely audits its books and carries in its accounts such ambiguous items as X-dollars, which regards a certificate of election as a license to rob and never has had an hour of honest government within the memory of any living citizen.

PEGLER.

These conditions naturally would suggest that Chicago must be pining for reform and praying for a LaGuardia and a Dewey to turn the rascals out. There is no such feeling, however.

True, some of the citizens do ask if it possibly can be true that LaGuardia, with his opportunities for graft, is strictly content with his salary, and if Dewey, with his power to protect criminals, isn't a silent partner in some syndicate operating hand books and slot machines.

They cannot believe that the Little Flower has no relatives or in-laws stuck away in $7,000 jobs in the school system according to honorable practice in Chicago. And it just stands to reason that he and Dewey must have kinfolks in the coal business or in the insurance and bonding or contracting business and that they are getting theirs in kick-backs on business done with the city or with firms wishing to do business with the local government.

* * * *

CHICAGO PEOPLE, steeped in their own traditions, inquire about the queer government of New York in much the same spirit that they would ask questions about the government of Bulgaria.

They are inquisitive and slightly incredulous, but it does not follow that they would like to adopt the same system. Just as the royal system would be unsuitable for the United States, honest government would be unsuitable to Chicago and irksome to the citizens.

A few speak vaguely of reform, but only as of something that they have heard of and certainly with no idea that reform ever could happen here. First of all, there is no demand for it except in weary newspaper editorials and in a confused and yearning little butcher's paper magazine called the Beacon, which is a home-talent or road-show version of the Nation, less than a year old and not much bigger than a man's hand as yet.

Those who do mention reform approve the subject in the frame of mind of a sailor who is thinking of having his girl's name tattooed on his pelt. They are afraid it might be irrevocable or removable only by some very painful process and leave an unsightly scar should they discover that they didn't like it after all.

Outwardly, at least, Chicago people seem no less comfortable, if they have money, or more miserable if they are poor, than people in like circumstances in New York. Those who have money, for a fact, are happier than their equals in New York because their taxes are only nominal by comparison.

* * * *

THERE IS no State income tax nor any likelihood of one, and a man with a good home and furniture and the luxuries of the suburbs will send in a personal property tax of $22.50 as a charitable contribution and receive thanks for the same. During a couple of years after the crash thousands of citizens just quit paying their real estate taxes in protest against the assessments, and those Caspar Milquetoasts who thought they ought to pay to play safe lost money they might have withheld.

Ward or precinct leaders have been known to call around at night and advise the citizen that he paid more than his due in taxes and divide the overplus with him. Presumably they have had some means of lifting this money right out of the till. Some of the books are all scratched up with the entries and erasures, some sections of pages have been clipped out, and some whole sheets are missing.

A few years ago at Charlie Pyle's Chamber of Horrors at the Chicago World's Fair a poor, weazened unfortunate called Harry the Gasified Man felt sorry for Clara the Mule-Faced Woman, who, in her turn, confided to Mr. Pyle that she felt sorry for Harry.

Similarly, Chicago feels very sorry for Kansas City, with her dreadful crime rate, her ballot frauds and all, and expresses this sympathy in rather condescending editorials in the daily papers, while Kansas City feels sorry for Chicago. But Chicago is feeling no pain and, excepting a few rather ominous blotches, looks strong and healthy. There are some diseases, however, which give no discomfort until the last stages, when collapse comes overnight.

TRANSITIVE BLURB.

She took a correspondence course,
Sweet poetry was her notion;
For she had been too long repressed
Though charged with high emotion.

It took her many months to learn
The way of rhythmic chatter,
And what it took in postage stamps
Is quite another matter.

Then came her sheepskin—three feet square—
Her aptness to acknowledge,
And larger than the one for which
She slaved four years at college.

And so a once swell cook became
A bard quite secondary;
Cook books are out—she now consults

Carol's Trump Ace

By Mary N. Hawes.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

WITHOUT WARNING, on February 10, King Carol dismissed his pro-Fascist premier, Octavian Goga, as suddenly as he had raised him to power six weeks earlier. Impetuous as this and past political strokes of the King appear, they are prompted by an underlying determination to rule in affairs of state as well as in matters affecting him personally.

Goga's fanatical anti-Semitism was rapidly discrediting and damaging both Rumania and its government. When Carol realized that in backing the poet-politician he was risking a second rebuff to his own personal rule at the elections set for March 2, he abruptly shelved the prime minister and inaugurated outright dictatorship under a concentration government, with elections indefinitely postponed, political parties suppressed and the constitution in "abeyance."

Throughout his stormy life Carol has constantly manifested impatience toward any form of outside restraint or pressure. Impulsive and dramatic by nature, he colors his acts with heroics; but instead of the playboy of popular imagination, he has become a hard-working monarch with an exalted conception of his role.

Carol Fought Restraints From Early In His Career.

CAROL has fought against governmental restraint since his early twenties, first as it interfered in his private life and later as it cramped his politics. He offended against "considerations of state" when he fled to Odessa in 1918 and married a young Rumanian, Jeanne Lambrino. The marriage was promptly annulled, and Carol attempted to renounce the succession, but without success, for it seems no one would take his declarations seriously.

During the years at court a wide breach developed between Carol and the government. The heir to the throne particularly resented the meddling practices of Prime Minister Bratianu and his complete domination in state affairs.

Partly on this political ground and partly because of his infatuation for Magda Lupescu he definitely renounced the succession in December 1925. A few days later a newspaper in Rumania commented on the political aspect of this renunciation, and in words now truly significant referred to a rumor that the crown prince had formed his own political plans: "They say that the program of the prince was to form a government of irreproachable personalities outside of all party considerations, and 12 individuals are named as enjoying his confidence. At any rate, he has had a strong leaning toward dictatorship."

The coup which placed Carol on the throne in June, 1930, again brought his private life into the field of politics, for the high-principled Maniu, who aided his return, believed he had Carol's assurance that Mme. Lupescu would not rejoin him, and hoped the King would become reconciled with his second wife, Princess Helene. But this time Carol did not permit politics to affect his personal affairs, and instead he allowed his personal affairs to influence politics.

Since 1933 he has played every conceivable political card to avoid calling to power either Maniu or his National Peasants' Party because they unalterably oppose Mme. Lupescu's influence and form the strongest democratic group in the country. Last week the King played his trump ace—a military dictatorship—rather than entrust the government to Maniu, who is the logical choice for prime minister since the December elections.

Election Upset Forced Extraordinary Maneuver.

UNPRECEDENTED events drove the King to play a card which he has long kept hidden and probably did not wish to reveal. It has been his policy to rule the country under democratic and parliamentary disguise—a policy he has successfully pursued during the past four years. Last November he maneuvered to insure the victory of the pliant Liberal government at the general elections in December. But contrary to all precedents in Rumania, where elections are notoriously fraudulent, the party in power did not carry on the elections.

The King was in a serious dilemma, for the vote was as much a condemnation of his own policies, of Mme. Lupescu's influence and the court camarilla, as of the Liberal Party. Since he was determined to ignore the democrat Maniu and the fascist Codreanu, a possible rival for the role of dictator, he called on Goga to act as his stooge, hoping, no doubt, the poet would win temporary popular support by his anti-Semitism and last just long enough for the King to turn again to the Liberals.

Goga completely disregarded the Rumanian constitution and introduced a series of anti-Semitic decrees which violated every sense of justice, threatened the economic stability of the country and roused the concern of foreign nations. The regime was rapidly alienating the confidence of allies and bringing disrepute to a people who had repudiated Goga in advance by giving him only 9 per cent of their recent vote.

The entire anti-Semitic program suffered a final staggering blow when the decree singling out Jews and requiring them to establish their citizenship under pain of its loss, was declared unconstitutional. The anti-Semitic decrees offended against the principles of individual liberty and equality clearly guaranteed in the constitution and were contrary to Rumania's commitments under the Minorities Treaty of 1919 and the Berlin Treaty of 1878.

In dramatic fashion the King called Goga to account for the turbulence in Rumania, demanded he resign and asked the Patriarch Miron Cristea to head a concentration government, including among its members five former prime ministers and the leaders of four small political parties. It is an extraordinary cabinet packed with eminent men: The notable and prolific historian, Prof. Iorga, former tutor of the King; Field Marshal Alexandre Averescu, hero of the World War; Vaida-Voevod, a close friend of Carol and a confirmed authoritarian; George Tatarescu, young aquiescent premier of the Liberal government and others. But, except the Liberals, none of the parties represented polled as much as Goga's 9 per cent in the last elections.

The cabinet is particularly remarkable for the absentees—the democrat Maniu and fascist Codreanu, whose parties placed second and third, respectively, in the electoral race. Maniu made an appeal for immediate return to parliamentary constitutional rule, and after an audience with the King—his first in four years—he announced the National Peasants Party would not participate in the new government. Consequently, although the present cabinet is designated as anti-fascist, it must also be recognized as anti-democratic; actually it realises the conception of a government of "irreproachable personalities" with the King pulling the strings.

Patriarch Gives Cabinet Aura Of Church Sanction.

THE CHOICE of the patriarch as prime minister gives the government a national aura, for most Rumanians associate their Orthodox Church with the idea of nationality. As head of that church and one of the regents when Carol's son, Michael, was on the throne, the new prime minister symbolizes national unity and non-partisanship. His acceptance of a political role as arbitrator in cabinet clashes will be taken as evidence that a national emergency has arisen and a dictatorship is justified.

With military support the new government is expected to rule Rumania by decree until the "emergency" is over and a new constitution has been imposed. Meanwhile the government will undoubtedly pursue a strongly nationalistic program, subtle enough not to offend England or France on minority or anti-Semitic grounds. Several of the cabinet members are violent nationalists, among them Vaida-Voevod and Constantin Agretoianu; and a number of them are personally if not officially anti-Semitic, including the patriarch himself.

One of the 14 points of the government's program is a pledge to continue Rumania's traditional foreign policy, meaning, in particular, friendship with France, England, and her co-partners in the Little Entente, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia. This is not an empty pledge: Prof. Iorga, one of the key-men in the new government, told me last summer Rumania could not forget the World War and would never turn to Germany—though Carol is a Hohenzollern. The new foreign minister, Tatarescu, probably will attempt to restore the shaken confidence of Rumania's allies by steering a course similar to that pursued by the Liberal government from August, 1936, until its fall last December, not so pro-French as the policy of the National Peasants or former Foreign Minister Titulescu, but not so pro-fascist as Goga and Cuza desired.

Frost Of Berea

By Francis B. Simkins

Uplift Among The Mountaineers.

HISTORIES OF EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS seldom attract many readers. The loyal but parochial professors who usually write them clutter their pages with so much petty detail and indulge in so much praise of beloved college trustees and presidents that no one but the most ardent alumnus is interested in the facts or convinced by the conclusions.

* * * *

THE AUTOBIOGRAPHY of the president of Berea College, Kentucky, is not free from these faults. President Frost overloads his narrative with details concerning the raising of funds, the construction of buildings and the coming and going of teachers. Such routine matters can interest only those who, in Berea's 80 years, have been connected with that institution. That is no inconsiderable number, but it is not the general public.

Those who are not discouraged by this heavy load will find in the book much of value to the student of American education and culture. It is the story of a man who played an important role in a unique experiment in education. When in 1892 Frost became its president, Berea had, for 30 or more years, been devoted to the cultural and industrial uplift of two of the Nation's most backward people. These were the Southern mountaineers and the Southern Negroes. Abolitionists of constructive ability had established south of the Ohio a school in which whites and blacks sat in the same classroom. A like situation did not exist elsewhere in the South. The Southern whites regarded Berea with horror, but New Englanders imagined that it was the beginning of the reconstruction of Southern society along casteless lines.

President Frost sprang from the best Yankee reformist stock. His were people who were often impractical in their idealism but who were always practical in money matters and high in scholastic ambitions. He found Berea in decay. Energetically he raised large endowments, stimulated enrollments and established new buildings and departments. Under him the school became a success according to every educational standard below that of a liberal arts college.

Frost could have emulated Oberlin, Berea's sister institution, by making his school into one of the most distinguished centers of higher learning in the South. He was well educated and closely in touch with the best scientific and humanistic influences of Germany and Harvard. But he kept Berea a vocational school actually adapted to the needs of the humble folk for whom it was created. Himself a lively and tolerant student of Kentucky mountain culture, he made the school function in the lives of the mountaineers.

BEREA'S FAME or notoriety once rested largely on its supposed assault upon the Southern estate system by housing under the same roof for a considerable time students of the South's two races. But horrified Southerners did not clearly perceive the objectives of the Berea leaders. These men of New England traditions came to Kentucky not as brothers of the Negro but as would-be saviors of an inferior race.

They possessed the pharisaism of the true missionary. Although they put whites and blacks in the same classes, they let no one forget the differences of race. There was no merging of emotions, no interracial scandal. When, in 1904, the Kentucky Legislature banished Negroes from Berea, the college experienced no tragic regrets. Although Frost does not say so, perhaps Berea had no small part in educating the mountaineers to the level of awareness of race prejudice. With its Negroes gone, the school could better devote itself to the task of uplifting mountaineers.

President Frost's autobiography illustrates clearly the thesis of some recent historians that the triumph of missionary idealism in the 1880's was due largely to a shrewd marriage between that idealism and the new industrial capitalism. The Great Emancipator of the Four Million inaugurated the protective tariff. The so-called levelers used black votes in the fight of the capitalistis against the agrarians. The Berea reformers of backward Southerners practiced their idealism with funds given them by the new capitalists. They discovered that the rich men of their day were often willing to make generous gifts to education.

* * * *

FROST SUCCEEDED at Berea because he got money out of these rich men of the North. He knew how to approach them. They were his best friends and he approbated the system they represented. His moment of triumph was his visit to the greatest of these rich men. In 1904 he had tea with Andrew Carnegie in Skibo Castle. Perhaps at this moment the saintly missionary to the humble mountaineer felt that he was as near heaven as it is possible to be on this earth.

"FOR THE MOUNTAINS: AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY," by William Goodell Frost. ((Fleming H. Revell, $3.)

La Securite

By T. Digby Fawcett

SUCH A TITLE as "The French War Machine" warrants an assumption that from this volume there would emerge a recognizably complete picture of the French national defense forces of today. Such a picture might be expected to include, against a background of national resources, manpower and industrial capacity, a study in some detail of the three components of those forces; army, navy and aviation. We should like to know, for the army, something of the organization of its infantry, cavalry and light mechanized divisions, their strength in men and weapons and the tactical doctrine which governs their employment. And likewise for the navy and air forces.

We should also want information of the higher agencies which co-ordinate the efforts of these separate arms toward a common end and of the systems of command and training which prepare them for war.

Mr. Davis, however, in this interesting volume, has not satisfied our craving for a tangible, definite blueprint of the French war machine. The explanation is to be found in his foreword: "What I have tried to do is to give a picture of what security seemed like to the various governments of France and the steps they took, in collaboration with their military experts, to find a solution both in the political and the military spheres . . ."

* * * *

IT IS NOT, consequently, the highly finished product indicated by the title which appears in these pages but rather the parliamentary history of the step-by-step development of the machine during the years since the World War, under the various impulses of the German fall and subsequent rise in military power, of frequent ministerial overtures, of changing alliances and of financial crises. The different aspects of the problem are treated in chapters dealing successively with manpower ("a bid for babies"), mobilization of youth, conscripts, regulars, organization, "nation in arms," colored troops, colonial army, matériel, air and naval developments. The information contained herein is, generally speaking, several years old. It represents obviously the result of considerable research and much of it will be found of interest. The many statistics interspersed through the text, however, might well have been tabulated, to better advantage.

Preceding the discussion of these specific subjects there is a well-written introductory summary of the political and military developments of the postwar period, while the final chapter is an excellent treatise on the probable uses to which the French armed forces may be put.

* * * *

TO SUM UP: The author tells us how the present war machine developed and suggests how and where it may be employed in the not-so-far-distant future. He does not give us any complete idea of what that machine is in men, guns, tanks, planes, or ships.

Tom McCarthy

Hello Sucker!

IT'S ONE of the most interesting businesses around Washington. It gets in the papers every once in a while, but no really exhaustive studies are made of it. Every once in a while it is taken up quite seriously, but it rides along pretty much the same, year in and year out. It's one of the largest gambling houses between New York and Chicago . . . and it's right over the District line.

McCARTHY.

You drive out New York avenue and just over the line you turn off on a dirt road. You won't be able to see it at all at night because it's surrounded by billboards. Except on Government pay nights you don't have to worry much about parking.

On the night of a Government pay day the parking place is jammed, even though it is larger than most in downtown Washington. But, normally, you don't have to worry much about finding room.

Hidden from the road, by the billboards, it emerges at closeup as a mammoth three-story building—and the third story has a high ceiling to make way for a tremendous race board.

You don't have much trouble getting in, because apparently the place is well protected and they don't have to worry much. The most precautionary measure taken is in examining driver's permits. The attendants like to know that you're the person you say you are. Further, they want to keep out minors.

When you walk in the door the 250-pound doorkeeper looks you over and frisks you. He apologizes for running his hands over you by saying "No bottles, gentlemen." Bringing alcohol on the premises is forbidden. It is also likely that firearms are not in order. "No bottles, gentlemen," is much nicer than saying "park your gats!"

While liquor isn't served on the premises, the gambling house, which draws most of its patronage from the District, does have a small restaurant. No customer need go hungry.

On the top floor, in one great room, are the race charts, dice tables, roulette table and black jack game. In the evening the dice tables get the big play.

* * * *

FOUR MEN operate each table. At each end of the long green board are the attendants with the chips who note the bets. Along the side and at the center, the croupier with a whiplike rake presides. He returns the dice to the players after each throw. He calls out the numbers thrown by the players.

And sitting above the group, watching both the attendants and the players, is a fourth man. When a sale of chips is made he has to note it. No risk is run that the attendants may cheat the house.

Usually there isn't much in the line of conversation. The players silently pass the cup and throw. Once in a while they curse under their breath, but nobody shows very much emotion. The play is always from a dollar up.

The attendants, and there must be 40 or more on the entire pay roll, receive about $30 a week. That, however, is only part of their take. When a man has had an unusually lucky roll he usually tosses some odd chips to the attendant. They make, sometimes, another $10 a day in tips.

The attendants are strange fellows of all ages. They are honest with the players and possibly very swell guys at heart. However, since they live just beyond the law you will not find their names listed in phone books or city directories.

"Maybe you've never thought of it," one of them said, "but there are a million people in this country who simply don't exist as far as the records go. You, for example, have charge accounts, you sign hotel registers and vote. We never sign our name. We can't afford to!"

It is said, however, that one of the owners of the gambling house has all his attendants turn in income tax reports. He does not want them to be subject to the Federal laws in that regard. The attendants point out that it doesn't break any law if you lie about your profession . . . just as long as you give the correct return.

* * * *

THERE are some very interesting stories and traditions connected with the gambling house. Now, that the local police are walking rather heavily on gambling, the "over-the-liners" probably would rather have less publicity given to their kindliness . . . but the tradition is interesting.

If a wife calls the house and complains that her husband loses the family pay check every pay day, the husband never gets in again. That is merely good business.

No matter what a man loses he is given 50 cents to get him home, if he is flat broke. That also is good business. When a player complains that he wasn't paid off; that he had a bet down on a certain number and the attendant overlooked it, the money is usually passed over without question. If that happens more than once, though, the customer loses the benefit of the doubt.

Of the habitues of the house the most interesting one is a Chinese. He works in a specialized line of work and is an excellent craftsman. He probably earns $15 or $25 a day. He comes out, almost daily, and loses all his money, receives his 50-cent fare, and departs to await the next night.

"An awfully nice fellow," one of the attendants said. "He hasn't any family and comes out here to enjoy himself just like most people go to a movie."

While the gambling house isn't entirely in its original owner's hands, and it is said to be partly owned by a gang from Philadelphia, they endeavor to carry on the old tradition. When a player wins a large amount he is escorted home by gangsters so that he won't lose the money on the way.

It all sounds very altruistic, but they have to keep their record clean because the officials, who are said to be protecting them, don't want any rough stuff. And then, too, what are a few courtesies when you can fill a couple of acres of parking space with the cars of well-heeled Government workers every pay day?

The Federal Diary

Reg. U. S. Patent Office.

By Scott Hart.

N. F. F. E. Selected

The National Federation of Federal Employes has been recognized by F. A. Silcox, chief of the Forest Service, "as an agency to represent employe interests in bureau administration"—which means that the Steward Union is the bargaining agent for all the Forestry workers here, regardless of whether they belong to his union or to any union or no union.

Already some bricks are thrown at it by curbstone opinion—which holds that it places unions in the hands of a union they don't belong to. But that is the inevitable reaction when comes word that a bargaining agent has been chosen. Steward's Union was picked because it has a preponderance of members in the Forestry Service, and in the agreement, as framed, are the lines:

In recognition of the value of the Forest Service Section, N. F. F. E., as an agency for promoting good employe relationships the section officers and members of committees are authorized to devote a reasonable amount of official time to the activities covered by this memorandum, and will be given reasonable stenographic and clerical help and provision of files which shall be confidential and exclusively in the custody of the committee.

This being a paragraph promptly reacted to by several outside the N. F. F. E. They pointed to a standing rule in several agencies prohibiting the transaction of union business on Government time and astonishment was expressed at the promised "reasonable stenographic and clerical help." In any event, Silcox issued a statement, as follows:

"I have recently signed, on behalf of the Forest Service, a memorandum of understanding with the Forest Service Section, Agriculture Branch, Local No. 2 (N. F. F. E.). This memorandum is a source of satisfaction to me, because it indicates that you realize the need for more human relations between subordinate and superior in order satisfactorily to solve problems which are common both to the individual and the organization. It represents much effort upon the part of many of you and is a worthy instrument. Let us all do our utmost to derive the most good from this agreement and to make it a means toward constructive co-operation between us. Much good will come of this if each person will give it hearty support."

The signers on behalf of the employees, besides the committee chairman, J. A. Fitzwater, were Edna M. Hemphill and Mrs. Arthur P. Thompson. Herbert A. Smith, president, Agriculture Branch, commented: "This step in the development of employe-employer relationships in the Federal civil service is of momentous significance if it proves practical in actual working. It sets up a mechanism for ironing out most of the causes of employe dissatisfaction and low morale at their source.

"Efficient and modern personnel administration can never be brought about by passing laws, nor by setting up an outside authority to hear complaints and intervene. There must be the will of executive officers to deal fairly and wisely with those under them, promote contentment, spread the spirit of co-operation, eliminate friction and build up loyalty."

Philatelic Woes

Add our Cursed Hour department: The gentleman in the Federal Trade Commission is not a stamp collector, as stamp collectors go. He simply recalled, the other day, the wide variety of departmental stamps in an old album at his home. These stamps—of the kind used by the State, War and other departments before the frank—have grown rare, consequently valuable. And he had a batch of these that would lit them in the aisles at any meeting of stamp collectors. So he mentioned it to a professional collector, who hastened to see the album. "I nearly fainted . . . I almost swooned . . . It was the most horrible thing I ever heard of; oh, it was sickening," the professional collector later told us. It seems that the stamps . . . "marvelous things, gorgeous things," the collector kept intoning . . . had been pasted tightly down in the album, destroying completely a value that would have been considerable. And a value that might have been easily translated into real money. The professional collector was made sad; the gentleman at the FTC was rendered morose, introspective and full of self-pity.

The Indiana State Society holds its "District Night" party this evening in the Wardman Park; the District Commissioners and Indianans holding civic positions here will be the honor guests.

New Regulation To Unravel D. C. Parking Tangle

The fellow who has been in the habit of "snitching" your parking spaced as you passed the available space prior to backing into the area to park, will have the traffic department to deal with hereafter.

Yesterday the District Commissioners approved a new traffic regulation designed to prevent traffic congestion and personal arguments between drivers regarding a parking space.

The new regulation reads:

"When the driver of a vehicle desires to park at the curb when there is room enough for only one car between two other cars, he shall drive up parallel with the car ahead of the space and back cautiously into the parking space."

G. U. Law School Prom Is Scheduled Friday

The Georgetown University Law School Prom will be held Friday at the Wardman Park, with music by Don Bestor's orchestra.

Invitations have been sent to Justice and Mrs. Owen Roberts, Justice and Mrs. Harlan Stone, Senator Dennis Chavez, of New Mexico, and Senator John Milton of New Jersey.

Nelson B. Bell About The Showshops

'A Yank at Oxford' Absolves One Robert Taylor From Any Charge of Being Merely a 'Pretty Boy'

Story of English University Life Is a Lively Comedy of Students and Outdoor Sports; More About "Julius Caesar;" "The River" Barred by Awards Committee; New Guild Play; Film Society Wants Members; Mr. Blair Calls and Coopers Leave.

His first adventure in foreign film-making, under the far-flung aegis of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, of course, resulted in the best vehicle he has had on the screen to date. Its title is "A Yank at Oxford" and it was scanned in advance yesterday afternoon by a quorum of the drama desks who seemed to be of the unanimous opinion, after it was over, that Mr. Taylor has turned out to be quite a fellow.

BELL.

There is an abundance of comedy in this spirited subject and the much maligned Mr. Taylor frequently before has displayed a happy capacity for being freshly humorous on occasion. There is also in the material of the play a probably accurate reflection of what life may be like at Oxford for a flip young American whose chief claims to fame have their origin on American athletic fields, rather than in any keen appreciation of the heary traditions that surround an illustrious seat of learning.

This young Lee Sheridan is a youth who is pretty thoroughly overstuffed with his own importance. Much of that is taken out of him in due time. Then there is the matter of a slight attack of love and a willingness to shoulder the penalties for the indiscretions of a few of his fellow students at Cardinal College. These considerations all are involved in a plot that is, for the most part, as transparent as a cellophane wrapper, but they add up to an unusually agreeable period of lively entertainment.

There have been earlier college stories that have revealed much the same pattern as this one, but none that comes to mind that quite captures the British point of view as completely as the present item.

Mr. Taylor, who is anything but a "pretty boy" in "A Yank at Oxford," had the advantage of a superlative supporting cast in his first invasion of Great Britain as a "working actor," as opposed to idolized vacationer. Maureen O'Sullivan, Lionel Barrymore, Vivien Leigh, Edmund Gween—remembered for his sterling performance on this side in the stage play of "Laburnum Grove" and on the screen for an equally deft portrayal in "The Bishop Misbehaves"—Griffith Jones, Edward Bigby, as lovable a character actor as ever lived; Claude Gillingwater, Tully Marshall, Walter Kingsford, Robert Coote and many more who contribute to the charm and substance of a film play that has been adroitly fashioned by Malcolm Stuart Boylan, Walter Ferris and George Oppenheimer.

Of course, Lee Sheridan wins the boat race against Cambridge in the final moments of the action, but that is only a minor catastrophe on the side of triteness.

If a casual commentator were to revert to Orson Welles' startlingly vivid acting version of Shakespear's "Julius Caesar," current at the National Theater he probably would say that the chief point of weakness in the new stripping of the play to its dramatic vitals lies in the fact that it will only be completely comprehensible to those already familiar with the text and "scene plot" of the original tragedy. In identifying the locales of the various "scenes"—a street in Rome, a public place, Brutus' orchard, the forum, a house in Rome and all the rest of the 12 in which the play was written—only by implication and the suggestion of the lines, a great deal of the sense of movement through the Capital of the Roman Empire is lost. To those familiar with the play from many viewings, this is a minor fault. To those unfamiliar with it, it might prove to be a major one. In the exposition of the basic tragedy with which the drama concerns itself, there can be no quibbling from any quarter—and that, probably, is as Shakespeare would have wished it.

Tonight is the night on which the Washington Civic Theater launches its "benefit for itself" in the Wardman Park Theater.

Not on the season's regular subscription list, "George and Margaret" will be presented throughout the remainder of the week to recoup the sustaining fund from which the Civic Theater derives the sinews with which to continue the admirable work it has done in the Capital as an adventurous and enterprising acting group that has brought to town many worthy plays never before seen here.

A fine cast has been recruited for this production—Maud Howell Smith, F. Cowles Strickland, the director, who makes his bow as an actor, and Harry MacArthur, a member of the Fourth Estate, who thinks he is one, too. It must be the Eddie Melcher influence!

It evidently is a very genuine antipathy that the motion picture industry entertains toward film productions that are fostered by the Federal Government. It comes to light that Hollywood film makers will not be allowed to vote on the United States documentary film, "The River," conceived and produced by Pare Lorentz, and not so long ago presented in Washington to the tune of salvos of critical and lay applause, due to rulings by officials of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. The Government picture dramatizes the Mississippi and has won national acclaim. It was officially entered as a candidate for the Academy awards several weeks ago. Last week the Awards Committee decreed that "The River" should be barred from competition. Thus members of the Academy, including the Screen Writers Guild, the Directors Guild and the Screen Actors Guild, will not have a chance to vote a professional opinion of "The River," because it will not be screened by the Awards Committee of the Academy. It is to be suspected that the film's quite palpable vein of propaganda may have had something to do with the decision.

The second half-season of the Film Society of Washington will be inaugurated on Wednesday, February 23, with a showing of "The Birth of a Nation." Other prospective revivals, indicative of the progress made in film production during divergent periods of the industry's development, will include "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" and "Anna Christie."

The Film Society of Washington, to perpetuate its program with an assurance of income equal to expenditure, is desirous of securing new members. The financial requirements of the second half-season approximate $2,700.

The fifth production of the Theater Guild's twentieth season, S. N. Behrman's new comedy, "Wine of Choice," will open at the Guild Theater, in New York, next Monday night. The cast is headed by Leslie Banks, Claudia Morgan and Alexander Woollcott and includes Donald Cook, Theodore Newton, Herbert Yost, Paul Stewart and Akihiko Yoshiwara. The play is being directed by Herbert Sumlin, with settings designed by Lee Simonson.

Paramount's itinerant emissary, Rufus Blair, was seated at the desk yesterday when this reporter belatedly dashed in at the pace of a spavined snail from the preview of "A Yank." Mr. Blair, as usual, was loaded to the gunwales with laudatory words and handsome art relating to "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife," starring Claudette Colbert, some new pictures of "Bea" Lillie and whatnot.

Mr. Blair, one of the canniest of the Hollywood publicists, had only one discordant note in his monologue and that was that Gary Cooper and Mrs. Cooper, the lovely Sandra Shaw, had checked out of the Carlton some hours before. So you autograph hunters are just a step too late.

Three Favorites in Oxonian Film

Voice Stand-In Is The Latest Order

In addition to the regular stand-in, which has become a Hollywood institution, there have been stand-ins for dogs, birds, dummies—in fact, for every kind of actor.

But today the most striking of all stand-ins—one for the human voice—was added to the list.

The innovation was tried experimentally during the scoring of Gladys Swarthout's singing in "Romance in the Dark," co-staring her with John Boles and John Barrymore. It proved successful, and Boris Morros, head of the studio's music department, announced that henceforth it would be a permanent practice.

Bernice Alstock, a young mezzo-soprano, was employed as the voice stand-in. Her function was to sing Miss Swarthout's songs while Conductor Victor Young established the proper balance between orchestra and voice.

Weaver and Martin New Acting Team

A new romantic combination has been assigned to carry the love interest in "Kentucky Moonshine," a comedy starring the mad Ritz Brothers, which has just started production at Twentieth Century-Fox.

The new team is Marjorie Weaver, flashing-eyed Kentucky beauty, and Tony Martin, who has just completed a role opposite his beautiful wife, Alice Faye, in "Sally, Irene and Mary." "Kentucky Moonshine" is the catch line for 1938.

Hollywood, Calif., Feb. 15.—Just as I have learned to do the Big Apple, the clothes styles swing right back to grandma's day.

HEDDA HOPPER.

Rosalind Russell, one of our best dressed girls, says: "You will have to be gay and feminine this summer and wear peasant combinations such as Sonja Henie brought back from Norway. Full skirts and, of all things, romantic blouses. Do you remember the old peek-a-boos? Well, that's it."

So keep on counting your calories. To wear the full skirts you'll have to have a tiny waistline. On your head you can wear any old thing, so long as it is becoming.

There was quite a buzz at the Tennis Club in Beverly when Lili Damita appeared wearing an accordian pleated, dusty pink flannel skirt with Concord grape purple blouse of sheer jersey, and her hair piled high on the top of her head. Connie Bennett wore lime yellow and purple.

Evening coats and capes will be made of white and pastel tweeds.

Omar Kiam, the whipper-up of those pretties the girls wore in Sam Goldwyn's Follies, couldn't wait for the train but flew back to Hollywood after ten days in New York.

"All the women in New York," he said, "are up to their eyelashes in black. Their evening gowns are so scanty a good sneeze would snap a shoulder strap and—well, I feel more secure with Hollywood fashions."

Those dancing delights, the DeMarcos, Panchito and his band, had our motion-picture high-steppers in a dither at the Trocadero last night.

Marlene Dietrich, who has learned to time her entrances to the split second, appeared in black, with the tallest halo-brimmed hat you can imagine and a veil cascading down over her face. Her jewelry was limited to a mere 190 carats of emeralds! She wore her famous 70-carat emerald and diamond clip, her 90-carat emerald bracelet and a mere 30-carat emerald ring.

Irene Dunne, in black also, topped off her costume with a large pancake hat trimmed around the edge with black chenille upholstery fringe—pretty, too.

week. They predicted passage of the deficiency item without change.

In the Senate, Senator Josiah W. Bailey (Democrat), of North Carolina, meanwhile introduced a resolution providing for a "nonpartisan administration" of relief funds by a Federal board of five members. The resolution declared unemployment the primary concern of State and local governments, and would leave care of "normally unemployable" persons to States and local subdivisions.

2,000,000 on Relief.

The committee estimated 2,000,000 persons were on WPA relief rolls yesterday and said the $250,000,000 would permit partial easing of the present unemployment situation by caring for an additional half million until July 1. Their swift action followed President Roosevelt's assertion that 3,000,000 persons have been thrown out of work since September and a statement before the committee that 1,000,000 persons lost their jobs last month.

The rapid stride of the recession and its inroads on jobs in private industry were dramatically described to the committee by Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., and Aubrey Williams, deputy Works Progress administrator. Morgenthau said no one knows whether the recession has reached its peak.

"I consider this a very serious emergency, and for the unemployed it could not be worse," said the Treasury Secretary.

Quotes President.

"As the President pointed out in his letter, there are some 3,000,000 people more out of work than there were before. At present business conditions seem to have reached a level and the movement is what I would call sidewise, but whether we have reached the bottom of this down-turn or not I do not know, and I do not think anybody else knows."

Morgenthau said the Administration waited until the last minute to be sure additional money was needed because "we did not want to cry 'wolf.'"

"I do not mind saying," he told the committee, "that the situation is most acute."

Williams said that out of the $1,500,000,000 1937 relief appropriation, only $493,000,000 earmarked WPA funds remained on December 31 sufficient to employ an average of 1,709,000 workers for the last six months of the fiscal year. Relief rolls, which had fallen to 1,458,000 in September, were increased rapidly as the recession advanced, and on February 5, stood at 1,945,000.

Deficiency Vital.

If the deficiency is not forthcoming, Williams said, rolls would have to be trimmed to 1,600,000 in March, to 1,600,000 in April, to 1,530,000 in May, and to 1,500,000 in June.

"The effects of the increased unemployment can be seen in the flood of relief applicants all over the country," Williams testified. "In the last four months local direct relief has increased from 1,300,000 families and single persons to 1,800,000 in January. During January at least 150,000 of the 1,800,000 were transferred to the WPA.

"There remain on direct relief at least 800,000 employables that are in need, willing to work and eligible for WPA assignment. Another 250,000 unemployed, willing and able to work, and in destitute condition, exist in areas where relief offices direct relief offices do not exist and where further relief cannot be granted, making a total of 750,000 in immediate need of work relief.

Employment Now.

"The expansion of the WPA up to 2,500,000 will give immediate employment to about 500,000 and will relieve the most severe pressure of need. It will not meet all of the need."

Hatred Brewed in Alcatraz Is Centered Upon Al Capone

Alcatraz

of the island inmates are long-term boys—25 years to life. Al will be out of Alcatraz in another year. His short term is resented.

And Capone is looking forward to that freedom—or at least he was when I left. He didn't want to do anything that would increase his term. He kept out of trouble.

When the other men rebelled by shouting taunts at the guards, banging their tin cups against the bars and screaming oaths at Warden Johnson, Capone sat quietly in his cell, silent and brooding. During the several noise riots I witnessed, Al never raised a finger to join the troublemakers.

Then he started to break. Now he yells his head off.

Capone has lived in terror since his confinement to Alcatraz—terror that something will happen to keep him in and terror that he will not come out alive.

He knows that some of the most desperate men in the country are bent on "getting" him. He was caught off guard one day last summer by James Lucas, notorious Western bank robber, sentenced to 25 years.

Only the timely arrival of guards saved Capone's life. Lucas stabbed him in the back with a pair of scissors.

After that, Al was given a special suit of heavy material—sort of a suit of armor. We called it Capone's "asbestos" suit. His special clothing was so thick he couldn't bend over. He was put to work in the laundry folding shirts—it was the only job he could do standing up without bending.

There are many men on the "rock" who knew Capone in better times. They knew him as an overlord of crime who stopped at nothing to gain his ends. They suspect him of "turning them in" to Federal authorities. They suspect him of having a hand in the racket deaths of their pals during prohibition.

For these reasons, Al Capone is hated.

No, I don't believe that paresis is driving Capone insane. Those Alcatraz years are beginning to tell on him. The rigid discipline, the fear of harm, the loneliness, the mental tortures have broken his mind and body.

When I say "mental torture" I mean this: You can not talk in Alcatraz and newspapers and magazines are not allowed. You can not sleep soundly because the place is flooded with light all night. And any minute someone is liable to scream and the tear gas may be turned on.

By the United Press.

Tiajuana, Mexico, Feb. 15.—Federal troops mounted machine guns tonight around the military prison, where three persons were killed when a lynch-mad mob sought to seize the man who criminally assaulted and killed an 8-year-old girl.

Earlier today the mob had stormed the prison, and troops, firing to force them back, had slain two boys and a man. Fourteen others were wounded.

Before learning where the prisoner was being held, the mob burned the city jail and police station.

Fearing further violence, Mexican customs officers closed the international border at San Ysidro, and Gen. Manuel Contreras, commander of the federal garrison, appealed for more troops.

Police had announced that the suspect, arrested last night and said to be a soldier, confessed that he attacked, then slashed the throat, of little Olga Comancho, daughter of Arelio Comancho, a bartender.

The mob of 1,500 men and women stormed the military prison and fort outside the city proper, but were turned back by rifle fire.

To prevent a new mob from gathering, heavily-armed "sharpshooters" were stationed on rooftops in the downtown districts.

A new flurry of excitement came late today when 200 civilians rescued Adrian Feliz, editor of the powerful Crom Labor Union newspaper, from two soldiers who had arrested him.

Rushed Into U. S.

The rescuers rushed Feliz across the border into the United States by automobile. The soldiers opened fire as they started out, but the bullets whizzed harmlessly over the cars. Cause of Feliz' arrest was not known.

Gen. Contreras asked Gov.-Col. Rudolfo Sanchez Taboada, at Mexicali, capital of the federal territory of Lower California, for more troops to reinforce the little band of 50 soldiers stationed here.

It also was reported that Contreras had asked President Lazardo Cardenas for permission either to turn the prisoner over to the mob or to order his execution within 48 hours.

Sources close to the Governor said he had declined the request, inasmuch as the Tijuana garrison is the military headquarters and has more troops than any other post in lower California. It is housed in a stone fort, which is considered more or less impregnable to mob assault.

In a radio broadcast, Contreras said that "the slayer of the Comancho girl will be punished to the fullest extent of the law" and that "all rioters will be treated in a like manner."

The would-be lynchers were dispersed by 200 rounds of bullets fired into the air and then directly at them when they rushed the barracks.

The dead were Romano Maldonado, 8; Salvadore Vasquez, 14, and Vidal Torres, 50, Romano, standing on the outskirts of the crowd, was killed almost instantly. The Vasquez boy and Torres died in the military hospital late today.

Simon Knew Gold Plans in Advance

London, Feb. 15 (AP).—Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, told the House of Commons today he had been informed in advance of the United States' decision partly to abandon its gold sterilization program.

Sir John said he "cordially agreed" with the United States' purpose. He said he understood the "underlying view" was that:

"It is desirable in present conditions to modify arrangements which may have or may be feared to have a deflationary tendency and so act as a brake on business activity."

Representative Arnold (Democrat), of Illinois, suggested adoption of a sales tax in order to make Washingtonians "tax conscious." He is the only member of the subcommittee, however, that favors this levy.

L. A. Carruthers, of the Federation of Citizens Associations, who will appear before the tax sub-committee this morning, urged the Senate sub-committee to hold down appropriations but also to restore $650,000 to start construction of a new Pennsylvania Avenue Bridge.

He also asked for an increased Federal payment.

Charles Rush, of the Washington Real Estate Board, called attention to the increasing tax burden on Washington property owners by reason of the acquisition of building sites by the Federal Government.

Among many written suggestions for new taxes the House sub-committee has received was one from the Washington Bartenders Union that the fees for liquor and beer licenses be doubled.

Plan Offered For Unification Of Playgrounds

Play

Recreational Association would lose jurisdiction over recreational centers.

"The recreation board shall have power and authority to conduct, maintain and supervise a comprehensive public recreation system," the bill reads, "which shall include all public playgrounds, community and social centers, swimming pools, play and athletic fields, golf courses, gymnasiums and other desirable recreational activities.

"All land, buildings, and other facilities, when in use by and in connection with these activities, shall be under control of the recreation board in accordance with agreements reached between the recreation board and the governmental agencies responsible for law for the custody of such properties. . . .

Must Submit Budget.

"It shall be the duty of the recreation board to prepare and submit to the Commissioners of the District of Columbia an annual budget itemizing the appropriations necessary for the proper conduct and maintenance of the activities under its control."

The District auditor, moreover, is authorized to set up a trust fund, in which all fees and receipts from recreational activities would be deposited, and which would be available to the board.

The House sub-committee on District appropriations criticised the present recreation co-ordinator, Lewis R. Barrett, for failure to produce a unified recreational system in his recent report on the District supply bill.

Chairman Collins also considered embodying a consolidation plan in the bill but was dissuaded by a letter from Delano.

Senator King said that he will introduce the bill merely to set up a basis for hearing and consideration of the problem.

SEC May Suspend M. P. Stock Trades

By the Associated Press.

The Securities and Exchange Commission called a hearing yesterday for March 1 on the question of suspending New York Stock Exchange trading in two issues of Missouri Pacific Railroad stock.

The commission said the Missouri Pacific registration statement failed to disclose a $14,000,000 liability "and did not correctly reflect the true financial condition of the company."

Coroner Holds Bray in Sutton Hit-Run Death

Cab Man Links Virginian, Testifies to Wild Flight of Car.

It took less than three minutes yesterday for a coroner's jury to hold Martin L. Bray, accused hit-and-run driver, for action of the grand jury in connection with the death of George W. Sutton, 74, former attorney general of Tennessee.

Sullen, slumped forward in his chair and repeatedly smirking at witnesses, Bray, who lives in Vienna, Va., heard the jury accuse him of driving his car with "utter disregard for the lives and safety of others."

Testimony charged him with speeding through a safety zone at Sixth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, Saturday night and striking Sutton, who was attempting to cross the street.

The elederly pedestrian was hurled 61 feet by the impact, investigation of the accident disclosed. Sutton weighed 219 pounds. His body was crushed and shattered.

William Law, a cab driver, of 1225 I street southeast, witnessed the mishap and attempted vainly to overtake and stop the fleeing hit-and-run machine, according to testimony.

Law said the car driven by Bray passed his taxi just as he (Law) was approaching the safety zone. Bray, said Law, was traveling "well over the speed limit" and careened over the buttons which protect the zone.

The taximan gave chase when the striking car failed to stop. Efforts to overtake Bray, the jury was told, were balked by the accused man's speed and apparent determination to avoid apprehension.

Several hours after the accident, Bray was persuaded to surrender by a friend, Ernest Tobin, 2314 Park place southeast, it was reported.

'Little Men' of Va. Plan to Organize

Richmond, Va., Feb. 15 (AP).—Plans for formation of a Virginia group to affiliate with a national organization of "small business men" were launched here today with the appointment of a temporary executive committee with C. V. Werne, counsel for the better business bureau, of Richmond, chairman.

Robert L. James of Staunton, was named secretary of the committee, which is composed of "small business men" in Virginia who attended the recent conference of "small business men" in Washington.

Other members of the executive committee are Ernest K. Moseley and Travis G. Watkins, Richmond; J. Claude Byars, Arlington; G. O. Farley, Staunton; O. L. Roach, Danville; W. W. Hargroves, Portsmouth; A. L. Weaver, Roanoke; J. W. Meekins, Norfolk; Lewis Smith, Pulaski, and Frank B. Hooper, Newport News.

250 Veterans Seek Jobs in V.F.W. Poll

More than 250 veterans visited offices of the Veterans of Foreign Wars at 1624 H street northwest, Monday on the first day for filing applications in the job census now being taken by the organization in an attempt to find work for unemployed members.

Following filing of applications of the unemployed, now estimated at about 3,200, O. W. Hollingsworth, department liaison officer, said an appeal would be made to all business concerns in the District employing more than five persons to provide work for the veterans.

After compilation of the data on the census has been completed, Hollingsworth said, a written appeal will also be sent to Congress in an effort to find Government work for the men. The census is expected to take about two weeks to complete.

T. A. M. Craven, a member of the Communications Commission, yesterday recommended that the radio industry take for itself "a constructive program of improvement."

Craven emphasized that there had been much criticism recently of program content.

Opposes Censorship.

Craven expressed opposition to any form of censorship "either direct or indirect," but suggested that broadcasters "consider most carefully existing public reactions, particularly with reference to advertising.

Senator Herring (Democrat), of Iowa, yesterday sought to correct what he said was "an erroneous impression" that his radio bill would "interefere with free speech or provide for the Government censorship of radio broadcasts."

The Iowan, leader of a movement to "clean up" the radio broadcasts, said the amendments he was drafting for the Federal Communications Commission, asked no additional powers for the Federal Communications Commission.

He added he would propose establishment in the commission of a board to review program voluntarily submitted by the broadcasters before they were put on the air.

District directors, who will pick the radio "czar," whose salary will be $23,000 to $50,000 yearly, were:

John Shepard 3d, Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Rhode Island; Harry C. Wilder, New York; Clair McCollough, New Jersey and Pennsylvania; John A. Kennedy, Charleston, S. Thomas Addresses Douglass Meeting

Attributing any lack of civil rights among District colored citizens to their own apathy rather than to lack of law, and justice under the law, Charles M. Thomas, president of the Federation of Civic Associations, addressed the local branch of the National Negro Congress Monday in the auditorium of the Garnet-Patterson Junior High School.

The occasion was the annual celebration of the birthday of Frederick Douglas. Development of such characters as Douglass, and Benjamin Banneker, in Maryland, the speaker said, was true to Maryland's liberal tradition.

A tribute to Lincoln and Douglass was paid by John Brophy, representing the Committee on Industrial Organization. Doxie A. Wilkerson, of Howard University, discussed unionism as a basis for conservation of civil liberties among colored citizens of the District.

Bedroom Phone Saves 2 Trapped In Home Blaze

A telephone in the bedroom of his home at 1365 Kennedy street northwest probably saved the life of John H. Jenkins and his wife, who were trapped when fire enveloped the living room and made escape by the stairway impossible.

Jenkins said he was awakened by smoke which filled the bedroom shortly after 3 a. m. Arousing his wife, he found the stairway impassable due to flames which were coming from the living room. Furniture and rugs in the downstairs rooms were destroyed.

"Fortunately," Jenkins declared, "the telephone is in the bedroom. I called the Fire Department and waited for them to put out the fire."

"HIS WAS THE IMPARTIAL VISION OF THE GREAT..." James Russell Lowell

WHAT did you see, George Washington, in the high Alleghenies . . . camping alone with only your cloak for a tent...staring into the rainy night westward, westward? ¶ Only you could see that inland wilderness as the "Second Land of Promise"...as a continent controlled by a united people whose destinies run east and west. You foresaw the need of unifying that America-to-be through transportation and communication. In the service of unborn ages you surveyed those first roads and waterways, westward over the Blue Ridge, over the Alleghenies. Yet how much you couldn't foresee! ¶ Canals and wagon roads yield to the railway...the old Iron Horse becomes that miracle of modern air-conditioned transportation, America's distinguished fleet of trains—The George Washington, The Sportsman, The F.F.V. —following the very route you surveyed. ¶ Today, Sir, the Chesapeake and Ohio Lines re-dedicate The George Washington to you. We believe that, could you experience its supreme comfort and the gracious spirit of service aboard it, we should see your genial but grave smile, and hear you pronounce your judgment "Excellent!"

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have a brother who has become in the past two years, if not a dipsomaniac, at least a confirmed alcoholic. An only son, he has always been my mother's favorite child. She worships the ground he walks on. She is quite old and I think it would kill her to know the truth about him. She has always taken the position that whoever criticizes him must be "against" him. She has closed her own eyes to his failings and she honestly believes he has settled down and become a useful, respectable citizen. He is married and has a very good position. There are no children.

• • • •

About two years ago, he went on his first prolonged spree, taking his half-month's salary check with him. When we found him, in a New York hotel, the money was gone and there was an unpaid liquor and hotel bill of nearly $100. My husband paid the bill and my brother, in spite of promises and the best intentions, has never repaid it. When he went on a similar spree a few months later, we didn't have the money to clean up the mess, so I borrowed from mother, inventing a story about urgent bills that had to be paid. A year later, I had to borrow from her again for the same reason, without having yet repaid the first loan.

• • • •

My husband and I have three children and his income is not large. In fairness to them, we cannot continue to finance these drunken parties. But mother's income is small, too, and she thinks, naturally, that I should return this borrowed money. She really needs it. Ironically, she blames my husband and thinks he ought to be making enough to support his family without borrowing from his mother-in-law. Unfortunately, she doesn't like him very well anyway, and the borrowed money adds fuel to the flame.

• • • •

A few weeks ago, there was another spree. I'm afraid they will eventually cost my brother his very responsible position, and while I'm reconciled to mother's attitude about money, and reconciled to paying it back out of my husband's meager salary, it and when I can, nevertheless I am not reconciled to having the situation become an open disgrace. It is improbable the true story will ever reach mother and if it did, she would never believe it. But other people would listen and believe. So what can be done about that type of alcoholism?

• • • •

Obviously, he can't go to a sanitarium and take a "cure," even if he would, which I doubt. After each spree, he swears he will never touch another drop, but the reform lasts only a few days, or a few weeks at best. His wife drinks moderately, as do all their friends. He himself can drink moderately for a time and then something removes the brakes and he goes crazy, quite literally. In his final state his judgment, intelligence and all his inhibitions seem to be completely destroyed. It is hard to find a trace of his excellent heredity and healthful early environment in the person he has become. Perhaps blind devotion, too little discipline and too much money when growing up are to blame. He is now almost 35 years old. What can be done to save him? X. Y. Z.

The Only Salvation.

DEAR X. Y. Z.: Nothing can be done to save your brother unless he is willing to co-operate to the fullest extent with those who would save him. But given that co-operation, a lasting cure may be effected. Alcoholism, particularly when it takes the form of periodic dissipation, is recognized by all psychiatrists as an escape-from-reality mechanism. The drinker is under the delusion that he can, by paralyzing his senses with alcohol, escape some problem, some conflict, some terror, some dread—real or imaginary—that is cankering his soul.

• • • •

When a drinker has reached that advanced stage of neurosis in which your brother now finds himself, the sensible thing for him to do—and for his family to encourage his doing—is to commit himself to institutional care until he has been cured. He needs to be treated 24 hours a day for nervous and organic disorders his chronic indulgence has invited, and the underlying psychic motives for his uncontrollable conduct must be brought to light and scientifically dealt with, as well. The latter is imperative if he is to become a logically self-governing individual once again, for the source or root cause of his pants must either be eradicated or divested of its terrors if he is to be restored to society as a normally functioning citizen.

• • • •

Of course, if your brother has real stamina, a sound physical, mental and nervous inheritance, and the searching intelligence which would prompt him sincerely to desire a lasting cure, he might be cured simply through placing himself wholeheartedly in the hands of a privately practicing psychiatrist. But in so doing, he would have to be honestly and honorably answerable for his own conduct while undergoing analysis and treatment of an advisory kind. He could not expect his physician to mollycoddle him, to yearn over him and attempt to protect him from himself, as his family does. Nor would his physician attempt to police him, or lecture, or moralize. His physician would show him the road to health, would gladly reach out a steadying hand in helping him along that road, but whether he chose to follow it, and did follow it, would be entirely up to himself. In a private sanitarium or public institution, on the other hand, he would be compelled, in spite of stubborn reflexes and uncontrollable tyrannical impulses, to keep to the strait and narrow way which lead to recovery.

• • • •

Unquestionably, the practical course for you to pursue here is to confront your brother, starkly and definitely, with a choice of these two alternatives, on the one hand, and eventual, complete disintegration, on the other hand. To go on paying the cost of his periodic spreeing is tacitly to encourage his downhill plunge. It is mollycoddling of the most vicious sort, quite on a par with your mother's lifelong babying of him. If, that first time, he had found himself obliged to get himself out of the New York hotel on his own power, to make what apologies and what eked-out payments he could, or take the legal consequences, he might not have gone spreeing so soon again. The fact that his orgies are coming closer and closer together constitute proof that such efforts to save the situation are doing more harm than good. M. H.

Future Citizens at Work on Their Play City

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

New York, Feb. 15.

A FEW YEARS ago I should have labeled this piece "For Men Only," and warned you girls to be off about your business among the recipes and patterns. But since increasing numbers of wives and sweethearts are assuming dictatorial powers over their men's toggery, the yarn is for you, too.

ALICE HUGHES.

When I first met my own late he had one suit, black going green with age, and two neckties, both spotted with gravy. Little by bit I infected him with clothes-consciousness to make him neat and even slightly nobby about his raiment, and today he calls himself "a Hughes-dressed man." The other day I went into Norman Block's elegant salon and ordered him a Sunday suit, and while there grilled this brilliant young custom tailor on the latest tricks of masculine sultings. The fact that the spouse went in later and picked an entirely different "swatch" is irrelevant—at least here.

Norman told me that the very newest thing from London's Bond street is what is called "The British Blade" suit-coat—so new, in fact, that he is one of only four tailors in the world now making it. Extra fullness is hand-sewn into the shoulders, front and back, which tends to build out the chest and make for arm-comfort and freedom. As you no doubt know, good suits are now hung on the customer, and not fitted, in the old sense. This gives the modern drape suits their grace and casual air. The trouser pleats stay closed and the cuffs do not ride up at the heels. These outfits are not in the least extreme.

At the moment young Mr. Block is spreading the British Blade gospel among the nifty dressers of Hollywood, and soon my sparring partner will strut Fifth avenue with one hung all over him!

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—One of America's few native-born top-flight ballet dancers came into town from her Philadelphia home the other day, and I had a few words with her. As Mrs. Philip Leidy she is society, but as Catherine Littlefield, ballerina of the Philadelphia group, and director, she is obsessed with the dream of building a ballet corps second to none in the world. She is showing herself and her troupe to Europe for a second time this year. "American boys make the best male dancers," she tells me, "because of their strong competitive spirit." That's nice to know. And with so much of the world ballet-conscious, it's nice to know that America's destiny is in the hands of this clever and ambitious girl on-her-toes!

Fifty high-bracket women in the fashion business here were polled the other day on the lisle stocking question and all 50 voted for their use with sportswear.

Lester Gaba, the young artist from Hannibal, Mo., is just back from Chicago with his famous traveling mannequin, Cynthia, who is known around the country. This noted dummy, beauteous and very dumb indeed, wore a $5,000 mink coat from a Fifth avenue store on her recent trip to the Illinois metrop. Cynthy sure gets around with Daddy Lester!

Those of my pals who aren't roaming California are in Paris for the spring openings, from which cables have come pouring. Within a week or so I'll have face-to-face reports on what's what in the world of high style, and will let you know instantly on the things we shall dabble in if the bank-balance holds out. Of course, by then you may know as much as I, if you study the newspapers. Sorry I can't break out of my dingy cell and cable you personally!

7-Year-Olds From Green Acres Observe How a City Operates

By Lenore Bartlett.

(Mrs. Bartlett is teacher of Group III in the Green Acres School.)

A GROUP of 7-year-old boys and girls at Green Acres School in Silver Spring, Md., is finding out what makes the wheels go round in a city. They are discovering how many human beings it takes to keep Washington's food supply intact and how dependent we city people are on the farmers for our dairy products, on Florida and California for our fruits, on Texas for our winter vegetables, on the Midwest for our meat, on the Chesapeake for our fish. These children are discovering on a 7-year-old level the interdependence of all people.

They have traced our milk supply from the known bottle of milk on the front porch to its source, the dairy farm. They have visited dairies and seen the milk pasteurized and bottled and cheese and butter made. They have gone to warehouses and wholesale markets and bought food for the school lunch and even prepared it. They have discovered that if for 24 hours trains and trucks did not bring in fresh foods, Washington would be eating out of cans.

They have written letters and taken them to the postoffice, seen the stamps canceled and the letters put into a bag and taken to the train. They have even climbed into the engine cab of this same train.

Play City Built.

These children are using their experience to build in school a play city. One child may be making the Union Station in the school shop and needs to find out how it looks. Another may be interested in making small books for the play city library, so a trip is made to the library here. The play newspaper must be got out, so the children visit a newspaper and see it printed. Are city houses different from country houses? The children's fathers work in offices or banks or in stores. The play city needs all these. There are many fires in a city, so a fire station is visited and one little boy makes a realistic model with a pole for the small play city firemen to slide down when the alarm rings.

These children are relating ideas and seeing relationships. The water supply of a city is important to the health of its inhabitants, but how is the water made fit for drinking and how does it get to the kitchen faucet? What kind of fish do the fishermen bring from the Eastern Shore of Maryland and how do they get here? The children talk to the fishermen and find out and learn something about the lives of these men. Trains, buses, airplanes come to the city, taxis run about, hotels feed many people, bakeries make bread and cakes on a large scale. Where does the flour come from and could the children perhaps plant some wheat and corn and watch it grow and make some bread?

Is Activity Program.

This type of program is called an activity program and is based on the needs of 7-year-olds. One need which is recognized by educators is the need of a child to play. Without play the imagination atrophies, so the play city affords an opportunity for play. In running a play city signs must be written and read. How much are carrots in the play store today? When is the library open? Who will write the newspaper? All these problems require reading and writing and arithmetic. The children see the need for these skills themselves and learning comes through doing and needing to know. People are important everywhere. It takes many persons to run a city and keep it clean, so the habits and customs of all types of individuals need study.

This is modern education. It is not merely a pouring-in process and memorization, but a drawing-out of the children, and a thinking and experiencing program. It aims not only at the academic end but at the more important ultimate goal—which is the discovery of each individual child's potentialities and also the fostering of a co-operative spirit, and producing socially conscious individuals.

Your Figure, Madame!

By Ida Jean Kain.

SHORT SKIRTS and lisle stockings are major calamities to the girl with knock knees, bow legs or thick ankles. Skirts already are short, and there is talk of boycotts and lisle stockings!

Now, if you have curvature of the spine, or just plain swayback, science will straighten you out, but it's just a joke if your legs bow out like a hoop. Science can't be bothered! Wanda Bowman-Wilson, New York kinesiologist, however, is able to see the esthetic side of things, and she has found that most legs can be made over with exercise.

There are, as you might suppose, exceptions. Bone deformities and rachitic conditions are problems for the orthopedist. Thickness of the ankle due to heavy bone structure cannot be changed. But often these apparent deformities are the result of weakness of muscles and can be corrected by strengthening the muscles. For example, the effect of knock knees is given by hollow thighs, and hollowness of the thighs is caused by weakness of the muscles along the inner thigh line. Special exercises fill out this ugly hollow and make the legs appear straight.

If the knees interfere with each other, are knotted or bunchy, or the legs are shapeless and heavy from knee to heel, the legs should first be tested for general strength. Take these tests suggested by Miss Bowman-Wilson: (1) Stand on the toes on the inner borders of the feet, muscles of heels, calves and knees contracted. Try to hold the position for 30 seconds. Are the knees straight and well pulled back? (2) Now stand flat with the legs in the same position as on the toes. Tip the entire body upward by rising on the heels. The toes should be several inches from the floor. Are those tests easy for you? If not you need specific exercises for the leg muscles, and Miss Bowman-Wilson suggests the following routine:

CALF STRETCH—Stand arm's length from the wall, palms of hands against wall, shoulder level. Have feet flat and parallel, weight on outer borders. The entire body is held straight. Move the feet backward, keeping them parallel and flat on the floor, until tension is felt in the calf. Then bend the elbows and, without bending the knees, lean forward against the wall. Do not raise the feet off the floor. The aim is to hold this position for a full minute. Repeat from five to ten times daily.

THE "Y"—For hollow thighs: Lie on back, arms overhead on floor and parallel. Bend the knees until they are perpendicular to the trunk. Have the heels on the floor, but point the toes away from the floor. Holding this position, spread the legs as wide apart as possible, then bring them together again. Repeat six times, later 15. Now straighten the knees, have the feet off floor, and perform the same movement. If you want dimples in your knees, practice this one: Extend the knees, then bend to chest. Begin with 10 counts, increasing to 30. Also practice holding the extended position until you can maintain it for a full minute.

FOR THICK ANKLES: When you are able to hold the extended position in the knee dimpler for a full minute, move the feet backward and forward from the ankles. Bring the feet forward until the toes curl up toward the instep, and hold for a second. Then point the toes, and hold for a second. Be sure that the movement is only in the ankles. Have feet side by side and off the floor. Do not bend the knees. Gradually work up to 30 times.

Follow all toe work with the calf stretch. If you are really serious about your legs you can do no better than to follow Wanda Bowman-Wilson's program.

Today's HEALTH TALK

Ultraviolet, Infra-Red Lights.

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

We spoke briefly the other day of the uses of ultraviolet light, either artificial or from the sunlight. Its most important uses are in tuberculosis of the bones and joints and in skin diseases. Tuberculosis of the lungs is usually not benefited by sunlight or by ultraviolet light. In fact, great injury has been done patients by too prolonged and extensive treatment of this kind.

Treatment by ultraviolet light, properly applied, and of not too long duration, should be followed by a sense of well being and exhilaration. Headache, lassitude and vertigo are indications of too prolonged or too extensive treatment.

In tuberculosis enlargement of the lymph nodes of the neck, X-ray and ultraviolet lights have offered the quickest and most uniform results. They are especially valuable after surgical removal of lymph nodes to prevent recurrance.

Epoch-Making Work.

In tuberculosis of the skin, Finsen's work was epoch making.

Ulcers and indolent wounds get well in the majority of cases under irradiation of this kind. Ringworm and various ulcers yield to the bactericidal properties of the ultraviolet rays. In whooping cough the ultraviolet rays given as a general body radiation give relief in a great many cases. Fractures which have not knitted are frequently helped in this way.

The infra-red rays, at the opposite end of the spectrum, produce a reaction in a short time, with local congestion in the skin and sweating due to dilation of the small vessels.

Although extravagant claims have been made for the infra-red rays, they are not very much supported by scientific proof. The form of heat which they produce is soothing and gives speedy relief in muscular rheumatism and neuralgias.

The GENTLER SEX

By Malvina Lindsay.

Tea Party.

YOUR hostess says you simply MUST stay over for the Twitter tea. ("Mrs. Twitter does SO want me to bring you and she has such a lovely home and such lively things. And she always serves such lovely refreshments.")

You dress carefully. You want your hostess to be proud of you, to be congratulated on having such a chic and charming friend. You picture yourself going smilingly from group to group talking entertainingly of Junctionville . . . being urged to stay over for other parties.

• • • •

As you enter the house your hostess says she will introduce you around right away so you will be taken care of while she is pouring tea. She hates to leave you but it will give you a chance to look at all of Mrs. Twitter's lovely things.

With eager, expectant smile you follow her toward the reception line. "And this, Mrs. Twitter, is my friend, Miss Smith, from Junctionville.") Mrs. Twitter bends toward you in a warm, condescending smile. "How nice," she says, with her eyes on the person behind you. She takes your hand, mumbles something and firmly passes you on to Mrs. Um-ump next in line. Mrs. Um-ump repeats the procedure. On you go. It is like a Virginia reel.

You are through the reception line. Your hostess is greeting her friends. ("How do you do? . . . So glad to see you . . . Yes, so glad . . . So glad . . . So glad.") She introduces you to them. ("What is the name? . . . Is it Miss or Mrs.? . . . Oh yes, so glad . . .")

• • • •

It is time for your hostess to start pouring. She leads you to Mrs. Bigger who is having an earnest conversation in a corner. Mrs. Bigger will be "so glad" to look after you. She goes on talking to her friend. ("I think we should do something about stopping her candidacy . . . you will pardon us won't you, Miss . . . Miss . . . oh yes, Smith? . . . because she isn't at all the type . . .")

You stand by smirking as they continue. Finally Mrs. Bigger signals a young matron who is passing. "Oh Mrs. Clipper, I want you to meet Miss Jones . . . oh beg pardon, Smith. She's from Junctionville. She'd love to see some of Mrs. Twitter's friends.")

Mrs. Clipper is "so glad." She takes you into the library. ("Here is some of the Italian pottery)—oh HELLO Gladys; How are you? . . . Why Grace, DARLING, How ARE you? . . . Hello Estella, I'm SO glad . . . I want you girls to meet Miss Brown. She's from Smithville.")

They are all "so glad." They stand in a circle talking. ("Honestly, it must have been 3 a. m. when we got home . . . did you hear about Mabel? Bud was so far gone she had to drive home . . . Did you ever see anything as funny as Bert?") You stand by, brightly smiling. Another guest appears, whispers to Mrs. Clipper. She turns to you appealingly. You'll excuse her a minute?

• • • •

The others fade away. You look around like a drowning man in search of a log. Everybody is in twos and threes. You feel their eyes upon you, curious, pitying. Never again, you resolve, will you go to a tea unless fortified by at least ten close relatives and bosom friends. You stroll about, pretending to be deeply interested in the etchings. If there were only a vacant chair . . . you wouldn't be quite so conspicuous. You see a lone woman hovering about a table. You could hug her. You start toward her eagerly. "Have you seen the pottery?" "Oh, yes," she replies; "I'm just looking for my lorgnette. Oh, here it is!" She hurries away.

In desperation you go to the dining room. Your hostess has just finished pouring, comes to your rescue. She gets you sandwiches and little cakes, introduces you to her friends ("So glad . . . Is it Miss or Mrs.? . . . (Oh, say, Bess, why weren't you at the Throttles last night? . . . You don't know what you missed . . . Did you hear about Nell and Jack?" . . . NO!")

• • • •

You and your hostess say good-by to Mrs. Twitter. 'So glad you could come, Miss Brown,' she says, looking apprehensively over your head toward the dining room. In the hall there is a sea of smirks, a babble of voices. ("So nice to have seen you . . . Yes, so nice . . . so nice . . . so nice . . .")

Outside the door, you frown comfortably, relax your aching cheeks. "I'm so glad you could stay over," says your hostess. "Mrs. Twitter always gives such lovely teas."

New Make-up Tints Advised by Expert

There should be a soft contrast between the costume and makeup, believes Mme. Elizabeth Colbo, of the Dorothy Gray Salon, who is in Washington at a local store this week. With the touch of pink everywhere in the present mode, Mme. Colbo suggests the following make-up to achieve harmony between ensemble and face: Powder of a lighter shade than we have been accustomed to wearing, less rouge, more lipstick and careful attention to eyeshadow. "In other words," she said, "where pink is near the face, the make-up should be of the fragile type rather than sun tan or the heavy versions."

For the grays, beige and natural colors, which are now considered so smart, particularly in suits and spectator sports clothes, Mme. Colbo suggests powder in cream tones, accented with scarlet lipstick and rouge. Black or navy with a bit of white for contrast need a special make-up, too, this authority says—powder in flesh tones and lipstick and rouge that have a bit of blue in their concocting.

"The off-the-face hats and brushed-up coiffures of the current season make it imperative for the face to be as wrinkle-free as possible," Mme. Colbo commented. "For this purpose a new concentrated cream has recently been put on the market which is said to erase wrinkle lines and other age and neglected facial contours which are anything but lovely; it is enriched with vitamins A and D.

New Coat Ideas.

Mrs. Alberta Eno to Exhibit Her Oil Paintings February 21 to March 5 at Studio Guild in N. Y.

Long Considered Among Most Outstanding Hostesses Here.

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

From New York comes word that one of Washington's outstanding hostesses, Alberta A. Eno (Mrs. William Phelps Eno), will exhibit her oil paintings at the studio Guild, 730 Fifth Avenue, from Monday, February 21 to Saturday, March 5. Exhibiting with her will be Clark H. Minor, widely known business executive of New York, who will make his debut as a sculptor.

Mrs. Eno's friends long have known that she is an accomplished mural and easel painter. Her friends in New Orleans, where she spent most of her early life, remember that she won wide acclaim as a lecturer on art in the Delgardo Museum there. Her work as a restorer of pictures has also been worthy of note.

In more recent years, she has devoted much time to painting murals, and some of her finest works of this type are now in the residences of the Misses Elizabeth and Mary Howry in Georgetown, and E. Alexander Powell in Chevy Chase. Also while her murals have been attracting much attention, Mrs. Eno has also found time to turn out exceptional easel paintings.

Her favorite subjects are birds—macaws, aigrets and other feathered creatures of proud bearing and high color. This winter she has completed three canvases—all of birds—that will appear in her forthcoming exhibition. While many of her acquaintances have spent most of the season whirling from luncheons to teas and from teas to dinners, Mrs. Eno has quietly managed to find time to complete her work for the show and to visit the bird house at the Zoo frequently. "That's where I go for inspiration when I'm finishing a canvas," she said.

15 Canvases To Be Displayed

Her painting has not taken her entirely out of the social picture, however. In fact, she entertains and is entertained frequently; for she is one of the few Washington women who combine a social career with artistic pursuits and achieves success in both fields.

Her exhibition will present 15 pictures, including several landscapes painted during vacations spent at the Eno summer home in Connecticut, and two or three canvases done in Charleston, S. C.

One of the paintings, "Mates," which will appear in the forthcoming show, was selected by the Studio Guild for exhibition last month at the Winchester Memorial, New Hampshire—a display that critics acclaimed as "representative of the best in contemporary American art." Eben Comins was another Washington artist whose work was shown there.

Mr. Minor, who will have several bronzes in the exhibition, frequently visits here. His wife, who is widely known as Allice Archibald, is a relative of Mr. Eno. She is coeditor with Antoinette Donnelly of the "Women's Almanac—Facts For, By and About Women." For a good many years, Mrs. Minor has divided her time between Paris and New York and is widely known in select circles of both cities.

Show to Open Preview and Tea

The exhibition will open Monday afternoon with a private preview and tea, given jointly by Mrs. Eno and Henry T. Leggett, of the Union League Club, who will have a showing of his watercolors in another gallery of the Studio Guild.

Assisting at the tea table during the afternoon will be several widely known New York women, including Miss Fanny Cottenet, Mrs. Joseph B. Lorig, Mrs. Hokan B. Steffanson, Mrs. Graham Phelps-Stokes, and Mrs. John B. Hayward. The list of invited guests reads like pages from the New York social register, with a number of prominent Washingtonians included.

To mention but a few on the list—there are Mrs. James Roosevelt, Miss Juliana Cutting, Miss Alice Van Rensselaer, Lady Lister-Kaye, Lady Decies, who is better known as Elizabeth Drexel Lehr, Miss Lucrezia Bori, Mrs. Rushmore Patterson, Justice and Mrs. Norman Dike, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Mark Bristol, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Rittenhouse, Emile List, Albert Morris Bagby, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick T. Bonham, and Mr. and Mrs. Woodson Houghton.

Bessler Studio.

MRS. WILLIAM PHELPS ENO,
or Alberta A. Eno, artist, is to exhibit a group of her paintings in New York from February 21 to March 5 at the Studio Guild on Fifth avenue.

Mrs. Daniel Roper 'At Home' Today

Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, wife of the Secretary of Commerce, will be assisted by several friends at her "at home" this afternoon at her residence, 3001 Woodland drive.

Alternating at the tea table will be Mrs. Owen J. Roberts, Miss Mary Patten, Mrs. Edwin B. Parker, Mrs. Harry W. Blair, Mrs. Ralph O. Brewster, Mrs. Lawrence Groner and Mrs. South Trimble, jr. Also assisting will be Mrs. Morris Sheppard, Mrs. Louis Caldwell, Mrs. Frank Bohn, daughter of the hostess, and her daughters-in-law, Mrs. Richard Fred Roper and Mrs. John W. Roper.

Mrs. John Roper and her husband, Lieut. Comdr. Roper, arrived this morning from California, where the former was stationed, and will go shortly to Annapolis, his new post.

Najeras Honor Mr. Morgenthau

The Mexican Ambassador and Senora de Castillo Najera entertained at a dinner last night in honor of Henry Morgenthau jr. Secretary of the Treasury. Mrs. Morgenthau has gone to Itacha, N. Y., with Mrs. Roosevelt for Farm and Home Week at Cornell University.

Guests last evening were the Dominican Minister and Senora de Pastoriza; the Belgian Minister and Mme. Naoumoff, the Bolivian Minister and Senora de Guachalla, the Czechoslovakian Minister and Mme. Hurban, Senator Joseph Guffey, Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, Director of the Mint; Mrs. Lucille Benton McCillen, Civil Service Commissioner; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Feis, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Meyer, Dr. and Mrs. Ricardo Alfaro, Senora de Quintanilla, wife of the Counselor of the Embassy, and Dr. Manuel Gonzalez y Gonzalez, Second Secretary, who will leave Washington soon for Nicaragua where he will be charge d'affaires of the Mexican staff there.

German Counselor And Mrs. Thomsen Give Cocktail Fete

The Counselor of the German Embassy and Frau Thomsen entertained at a small cocktail party yesterday afternoon at their home on Colorado avenue. Frau Thomsen was attired in a black crepe gown embroidered with loops of gold.

The Thomsen home was decorated with hyacinths and crocuses and guests gathered around the fireplace in the living room. In the group at one time or another were Lady Lister Kaye, Mme. Rajamaitri, wife of the Siamese Minister; Baroness von Below, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Morgan, Col. and Mrs. George Crafton and the Commercial Counselor of The Netherlands and Mme. Molekamp.

Other guests included Dr. and Mrs. George Trible, Mme. Hurban, wife of the Czechoslovakian Minister, and the First Secretary of the German Embassy and Frau Tannenberg, who were accompanied by their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Ernst von Ammon.

Also from the German Embassy were Herr Paulus von Stolzman and Herr von Roth.

Among other guests were Dr. Sigurd von Numers, of the Finnish Legation; Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris, Mme. Kabelac, wife of the Secretary to the Czechoslovak Legation; Mrs. E. H. Droop and Robert Webster and Willem van Schalkwyk, from the South African Legation.

Elliott Roosevelts To Receive Visitor

Mr. and Mrs. Elliot Roosevelt will have as their guest at the White House for several days this week Mrs. Graham Johnston, of Johnston, Pa., and Pinehurst, N. C.

Mrs. Johnston is a former classmate of Mrs. Roosevelt at the Pine Manor School in Wellesley, Mass. Mrs. Roosevelt is the former Miss Ruth Goggins, of Fort Worth, Tex.

Birth Announced.

Announcement has been made of the birth of a daughter, named Cynthia Nourse, to Lieut. and Mrs. Robert La Tourrette Cavanaugh, of Fort Myer, Va., at Walter Reed Hospital, February 13.

Jules Henry Feted At Farewell Party By the Boncescos

Jules Henry, Charge d'Affaires of the French Embassy, was honored at a farewell dinner last evening by the Financial Counselor of the Rumanian Legation and Mme. Boncesco. They entertained 16 guests in their apartment at the Broadmoor.

Mrs. Peacock Is Tea Hostess

Mrs. Edward W. Pou, of Smithfield, N. C., and Mrs. Ladislas Lazaro, of New Orleans, shared honors yesterday at the tea given by Mrs. James Craig Peacock in the latter's home in Chevy Chase.

Both Mrs. Pou and Mrs. Lazaro are widely known in Washington, having spent many seasons here when their husbands were members of Congress. The late Mr. Pou was a Representative from North Carolina for 34 years. The late Mr. Lazaro was a Representative from Louisiana for two decades.

Honor Guests Here To Visit Daughters

Mrs. Pou, who recently arrived in Washington, is guest of her daughter, Mrs. Thomas A. Wadden. Mrs. Lazaro is visiting her daughters, Mrs. South Trimble and Mrs. Edward Lake.

The Valentine season was observed in decorations at Mrs. Peacock's tea yesterday. Red roses and red tulips filled vases in the drawing room and dining room, and were used in the centerpiece for the tea table, which also bore red candles as part of the decoration.

Prominent Women Assist Hostess

Assisting Mrs. Peacock at the tea table were Mrs. Alben Barkley, Mrs. Harllee Branch, Miss Jennie Moore, Mrs. Schuyler Otis Bland, Mrs. Paul H. Maloney, Mrs. Luther Johnson, Mrs. Ewin Davis and Mrs. Finis Garrett.

Generally assisting were Mrs. South Trimble, jr., Mrs. Erward Lake, Mrs. Thomas A. Wadden, Miss Caroline Wadden, Mrs. William Frederick Weigester, Mrs. Louis B. Montfort, Mrs. John W. Townsend and Miss Minnie C. Hunt.

P. H. Clarkes' Daughter Christened 'Suzanne'

The third of her family to be called Suzanne is the little daughter born at Columbia Hospital last week to Mr. and Mrs. Phillips H. Clarke.

Mrs. Clarke is the former Miss Suzanne Carroll Hill, daughter of John Phillip Hill and Mrs. Hiram Bingham, who was Suzanne Carroll. The trio are all descended from Charles Carroll, of Carrollton.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarke have recently moved into a home near Hyattsville, where Mr. Clarke is developing some land which has been in his family for generations.

3 D. C. Women To Attend Fete

Mrs. William M. Mann, wife of the director of the Zoo; Mrs. Charles Walcott and Mrs. William Chapin Huntington all have one thing in common—an enormous interest in geography.

Mrs. Mann has written several books for children on animals; Mrs. Walcott's volume of North American wild flowers was brought out by the Smithsonian Institution and Mrs. Huntington, the daughter of the late Frank Carpenter, famous travel writer, the author of a number of children's tales laid in foreign lands.

Tonight all three will attend the dinner in New York of the Society of Women Geographers of that city. Toastmistress will be Mrs. Marie Peary Stafford, daughter of the late Rear Admiral Peary, discoverer of the North Pole. Mrs. Stafford lives in Washington and has written several children's books on the Arctic, where she was born.

Miss Louise Boyd, who has worked in Greenland, will speak at tonight's banquet on her exploration there.

To be eligible for membership in the society, one must have added to the world's store of knowledge on this subject and have published a record of this work.

Mrs. Huntington will continue from New York to Northampton, Mass., where she will be joined Friday by her subdebutante daughter, Miss Joanna Huntington. Mrs. Huntington is a trustee of Smith College in Northampton.

Civic Theater's New Play Inspires Number of Parties

A number of dinner and theater parties are scheduled for this evening in connection with the Washington Civic Theater's presentation of "George and Margaret" at Wardman Park Theater.

Mr. and Mrs. John Garland Pollard, jr., will entertain at dinner before the performance. Guests will include Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Robertson, Mr. and Mrs. William Hill and Mr. and Mrs. Edward McKethem.

In the party of Samuel Biddle will be Count Igor Cassini, Miss Augustine McDonald, Miss Margot Garrett, Mariano Vuberbuhler and Roland de Hel'ebranth. Also entertaining tonight will be L. M. C. Smith.

Tomorrow night, theater party hosts will be Mrs. L. Corrin Strong, Corcoran Thom and Mrs. M. D. Nohowell.

On Friday, Dr. Will Hutchins will entertain three guests and Mrs. L. E. Roberts is planning a party for ten.

Mintons Issue Cards For McNutt Reception

Senator and Mrs. Sherman Minton have issued invitations to a reception in honor of the High Commissioner of the Philippines, Paul V. McNutt, Wednesday, February 23.

The function will take place at the Mayflower Hotel from 4 to 7 o'clock.

B. F. Smiths Entertain At Army-Navy Club

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Fritz Smith, who reside at the Shoreham, entertained at Army and Navy Country Club last evening with a dance in celebration of their second wedding anniversary.

A buffet supper was served at midnight to more than 300 guests.

About The Town

With Dudley Harmon.

WALTER LIPPMANN, widely known columnist and author, will marry Mrs. Helen Armstrong, New York social registerite, within the next two or three weeks, according to a reliable source.

After a wedding trip they will return to Washington to live permanently and will reside in the home of Col. William "Wild Bill" Donovan at Thirtieth and R streets in Georgetown. This house is occupied until April 1 by Mr. and Mrs. Gaspar Bacon.

Mr. Lippmann was recently divorced from the former Faye Albertson. A graduate of Harvard, he was at one time editor of the New York World, and is the author of numerous books, including "A Preface to Politics," "Men of Destiny" and "A Preface to Morals." He has contributed to numerous magazines and now conducts a syndicated column. His many clubs include the Cosmos in Washington.

Mrs. Armstrong was the wife of Hamilton Fish Armstrong, editor of Foreign Affairs. A former newspaperman, Mr. Armstrong was associated with the New York Evening Post and was for several years a special correspondent in Europe. He was married in 1918 to Mrs. Armstrong, the former Helen MacGregor Byrne.

She is a member of the famous Byrne family of New York whose members are noted for their charm and intelligence. Her youngest sister, Phyllis Byrne, a talented musician, was recently married to a Bostonian, and another sister was formerly the wife of Francis Taylor, whose present wife is Nona McAdoo, daughter of Senator McAdoo.

• • • •

Both Mr. Lippmann and Mrs. Armstrong obtained their divorces in order to marry one another, it is reported.

Since coming to Washington in the early winter, Mr. Lippmann has taken part in the social life here, exclusive of large parties. Extremely youthful looking, he has a most attractive manner.

Mr. Lippmann is the guardian of Mrs. Lucius Wilmerding, of Washington, formerly of New York.

NEWS AND GOSSIP: The Counselor of the German Embassy and Frau Thomsen will give a cocktail party on Monday afternoon, February 28 . . . Jacques Chilhaud-Dumaine, First Secretary of the French Embassy, has been here only four days but has already acquired an apartment, a cook, and a car. He has leased Mrs. Matthew Hanna's flat on Massachusetts avenue and is staying at the Anchorage until he moves in . . . Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg is considering a brief trip to Atlantic City to get a rest, and will not observe her day "at home" tomorrow.

• • • •

THE COMMERCIAL SECRETARY of the British Embassy and Mrs. Henry Frank Heywood landed in New York yesterday on the Aquitania and returned to Washington last evening. They are stopping at the Westchester, but only for a short time, as they will go back to England to remain permanently. Maj. Heywood has resigned his position with the embassy here. Since both he and Mrs. Heywood have many friends in the Capital, their departure will be greatly regretted.

ABOUT 100 WOMEN and one man attended the small tea given yesterday by Mrs. Hamilton Fish. The women were wives of members of Congress or others connected with official life, and the man was Rrepresentative Fish, who had spent the entire morning testifying before the House Naval Affairs Committee.

Spring touches were in evidence at the party. Vases of jonquils and snapdragons were in the living room and dining room of the Clubhouse of the League of Republican Women, where the tea was held, and Mrs. Fish wore a flowered chiffon print. Her daughter, Miss Helen Rogers, in navy blue, assisted her mother.

Pouring tea at various times were Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, Mrs. Owen J. Roberts, in black, with a smart tricorne; Mrs. Daniel Reed, president of the Congressional Club; Mrs. Warren Austin, in mink and a smart hat trimmed with red; Mrs. William Borah, Mrs. Charles McNary, Mrs. Frances D. Colkins, Mrs. Clarence Hancock, Mrs. Daniel Hastings, Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg, Mrs. Frank Crowther and Mrs. Bertrand Snell.

MRS HORACE PETERS gave a small cocktail party yesterday for Mr. and Mrs. Dan Moore, who came here for the Thrift Shop ball and have been postponing their departure every day since then. However, they expect to leave today to spend a few days in New York before returning to their home in Columbus, Ohio. Mr. Moore is a brother of Mrs. Drew Pearson, and both the Moores lived here until he was made Ohio head of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Among those gathered to meet them yesterday were Mr. and Mrs. L. Metcalfe Walling, Miss Laura Tuckerman, the Misses Ruth and Dorthea Sowers, Walter White, William McComb, Eugene O'Dunne and several others.

Edward Wilsons Now in Florida

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Arthur Wilson, who were married Saturday, are spending two weeks in Florida before returning to live in Brentwood Village here.

Mrs. Wilson is the former Miss Helen Virginia Hausenfluck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hausenfluck, of 3821 Twenty-fourth street. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Edward Wilson, of Arlington, Va.

The Rev. Warren D. Bowman officiated at the ceremony, which was performed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hausenfluck. The house was decorated with palms, ferns, and potted plants.

Miss Edith Hausenfluck, who served as her sister's maid of honor, wore aqua lace and carried talisman roses. Howard Presto was best man.

Ralph Totten Entertains at Cocktail Party

"This place takes you right back to South Africa," said a guest at Ralph James Totten's cocktail party yesterday afternoon. The guest was referring to the skins of leopards, lions and zebras that decorate floors and walls and the objects of art that fill the cabinets in the apartment where the former United States Minister to South Africa and his mother make their home.

Yesterday, every foot of space from the foyer, into which a seemingly endless stream of callers poured, to the studio, where everybody wanted to linger, was filled with guests. A number of Mr. Totten friends have wanted to see his newest oil paintings, and yesterday's party afforded the opportunity. Incidentally, a number of his canvases and his etchings will be on display at a Georgetown gallery, beginning Monday, March 7.

Mother Assists In Receiving

Guests at his apartment yesterday were received by the host, assisted by his mother, who wore a handsome black taffeta frock, and his cousin, Mrs. Case B. Rafter, whose black ensemble was accented in gold.

Glimpsed among guests were Mrs. George Barnett, who arrived with Mrs. Buchanan Merryman; Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Houghteling, the latter in a stunning green ensemble; Robert Webster, of the South African Legation; the host's brother, George Oakley Totten and Mrs. Totten.

Many Notables Among the Guests

Mrs. Gilbert Hitchcock was there, greeting friends on all sides, in a black ensemble. Mme. Abhibal Rajamaitri was in a little party that lingered in the studio, paying particular attention to the artist's flower paintings. Mrs. Arthur Condon and Lewis Loftin Moneyway decided they liked the etching, "Geese at Dawn" better than anything Mr. Totten has done lately.

Others there were Mrs. Pierrepont Moffat, Mrs. Robert Whitney Imbrie, Mrs. Eleanor L. Woodruff and many others.

Betrothal Announced.

Mrs. Josephine McCormick announces engagement of her daughter, Miss Nellie Elizabeth McCormick, to Andrew C. Auth, son of Mr. and Mrs. John N. Auth. The wedding will take place early in the summer.

Mr. Rimsa to Show Work at Reception Of the Zadeikis

Petras Rimsa (pronounced RIM-shah), Lithuania's foremost sculptor, will be present at the reception to be given today by the Minister of Lithuania and Mme. Povilas Zadeikis in celebration of the twentieth anniversary of their country's independence. Mr. Rimsa will bring several of his sculptures which were exhibited recently at the Maryland Institute of Art in Baltimore.

This will be Mr. Rimsa's second visit to Washington. Two weeks ago he exhibited some of his work at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Waggaman, on R street. Mr. Rimsa will return to his homeland next month.

Palestine Colonization Described to Hadassah

Mrs. Halprin, Former National President, Tells of Progress Being Made With Refugee Children on Commercial Farms.

By Jessie Ash Arndt,

The Post Club Editor.

A new psychology is being built up with new homes for hundreds of German and Polish young people being received in Palestine, Mrs. Samuel W. Halprin, former national president of Hadassah, told members of the Washington chapter at its nineteenth anniversary luncheon in the Mayflower Hotel yesterday. Mrs. Halprin, who is here on a lecture tour after three and a half years in Palestine, described the colonization plan by which refugee children are being cared for and trained for simple and wholesome living in the Jewish homeland.

Immediately after her talk, contributions to the fund for the Youth Aliyah Movement were made by those in the audience. In swift succession, pledges were given until they amounted to more than $700. Last year the Washington Chapter contributed a sum which would care for 12 children over a two-year period at $360 per child.

Groups of from 25 to 40 young people between the ages of 15 and 17 are brought into Palestine under an adult leader, usually a young man in his 20's, Mrs. Halprin said. They are given a month's probation in their native country before they are sent out, to determine whether or not they will be able to adapt themselves to communal life. Health and psychological tests are given. After their arrival in Palestine, they are given a two-year training course with the communal settlement by which they have been received, and are then prepared to engage in agriculture or become artisans. The settlement must have a house ready for young people before they are brought there and a "house mother" is placed in charge of it with the adult leader who has brought the group over still supervising it.

A council is formed within the group which assigns various duties, usually in rotation from week to week, in maintenance of the house and cultivation of the land. There is no desire to shirk work at any time, Mrs. Halprin asserted, but instead concern by one for fear another may have a heavier or more arduous task than he. Leadership is accorded on the sole basis of character, work and accomplishment and, together with a simple mode of life, a high cultural standard is maintained.

There is little if any money for entertainment, but one of the first things with which a group provides itself is a talking machine. It then builds up a library of records of the best music. The young people also plan their own plays and other "home-made" amusements.

Dagania, the first communal settlement in Palestine, was established 27 years ago. The youth movement was inaugurated about three years ago to relieve the hopeless situation of young people in European countries.

Seventy-five per cent of the young students, following their two-year training course, decide to go on farms, Mrs. Halprin said. Whatever they earn is budgeted for the whole group, with amounts set aside for food, clothing and health needs with anything remaining for simple amusements.

Parents of refugee children send them out willingly because there is nothing to hope for at home. Occasionally older members of the family have been able to follow them in Palestine. In most cases the parting is permanent.

The colonization plan has received high commendation from the British, says Mrs. Halprin, as one of the most constructive and successful in the world today. She impressed on women of her audience the blessing they enjoyed in America, and urged them to cherish the freedom which this Government insures its citizens.

She was introduced by Mrs. Raphael Tourover, president of the Washington Chapter of Hadassah. Guests at the head table at the luncheon included Mrs. Mark Lansburgh, president of the Council of Jewish Women; Mrs. Morris Cafritz; Mrs. Eugene Meyer, who was invited as a special guest; Mrs. Henry Sieroty, a national officer of Hadassah; Mrs. Sidney A. Wiseman, first vice president of the Washington chapter; Mrs. Fred Gichner, a past president, and Mrs. Morris I. Bierman, assistant corresponding secretary.

Mrs. Gichner presented the organization with a handsome silver service which will be sold to benefit the Youth Aliyah Movement.

Mrs. Halprin last night addressed the Junior Hadassah at its meeting at the Jewish Community Center and this morning leaves for Pennsylvania to continue her lecture tour. She expects to return to Palestine the end of March.

Club Addressed By Mrs. Meyer

Mrs. Eugene Meyer yesterday addressed the Washington Club at its meeting, on "The Cultural Menace of the Authoritarian States." She warned against any system which entirely neglects either the material or spiritual wants of man and urged harmonious pursuit of a constructive program as a safeguard to democracy.

Mrs. Meyer was introduced by Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, chairman of the Tuesday program. Mrs. Whitman Cross, newly-elected president of the club, presided for the first time since assuming office.

Other new officers include Mrs. Albert Atwood, first vice president, and Mrs. Gregg Custis Birdsall, second vice president. Mrs. Lulu Williamson was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Committee chairmen, in addition to Mrs. Grosvenor, are Mrs. Joseph Fairbanks, library chairman; Mrs. William Aspinwall, chairman of entertainment; Mrs. Louis A. Simon, of the house committee; Mrs. Wendell Phillip Stafford, of the committee on admissions; Mrs. W. E. Safford, of the Monday book chats, and Mrs. Alfred H. Brooks, of the nature study group.

Next Tuesday a musical program will be presented by Mrs. Beatrice Pinckney Jones in connection with a lecture on "Mirth in Music."

The address by Mrs. Meyer yesterday was attended by an audience which filled the auditorium. Refreshments were served following it, with Mrs. Willard F. Harmon, Mrs. John Hanna, Mrs. Leroy Mark, Mrs. Edward Merrill and Mrs. Aspinwall pouring.

Epsilon Group To Convene Here

Mortar Board Sorority to Install D. C. Unit February 26.

The sixty-seventh chapter of Mortar Board, national honorary scholastic sorority, will be installed at George Washington University Saturday, February 26, by the Washington Alumnae Chapter, of which Miss Nancy Finch is president. Mrs. F. D. Coleman, of Lincoln, Neb., national president, will be here for the ceremonies which will include the initiation at Strong Hall, Twenty-first and G streets, in the afternoon and the annual Mortar Board banquet, which will be held in the Garden House of the Dodge Hotel in the evening.

Senior girls belonging to the Hour Glass Society of the university will come into Mortar Board as its charter members. They include Susan Slater, Hour Glass president and a member of Chi Omega social sorority; Esther Yanovsky, secretary - treasurer and a member of Delta Zeta; Jane Saegmuller, a member of Pi Beta Phi; Jane Ramseyer, a Kappa Kappa Gamma; Katherine Porter, president of Chi Omega; Tatayana Jasny, vice president of Hour Glass, and a member of many G. W. organizations, including the International Students Society, Alison Clafin, recipient of the Hour Glass cup for outstanding sophomore women; Ruth Brewer, a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma, and Katherine Baart, who is president of Alpha Delta Theta at G. W.

Hour Glass was founded in 1923 by nine George Washington women students representing the various extracurricular activities at the university. As early as 1934 the matter of petitioning Mortar Board was discussed and the constitution revised in regard to requirements for membership. The society will go out of existence when Mortar Board is installed in the university.

Today, which is the anniversary of the founding of Mortar Board, is customarily observed with a founders' day banquet but the occasion is being postponed this year until the installation of the new chapter. Sixty-five alumnae members in Washington represent 34 colleges, the largest number from Maryland and the next largest from Nebraska. Representatives from Cornell, Swarthmore, Ohio State and Michigan Universities met at Syracuse University to form the organization 20 years ago. The Cornell representative was Miss Ernestine Becker, now dietician at Johns-Hopkins in Baltimore, who will be invited to attend the banquet here as one of the honor guests.

Mrs. Raleigh Gilchrist is chairman of arrangements for the affair, assisted by Mrs. Charles Corlett, Mrs. Russell Schoper and Mrs. Newton Buckley. Miss Finch, as president of the alumnae chapter, will preside as toastmistress; Miss Eleanor Broughton, president of the active chapter at Maryland University, will welcome the new chapter and Miss Slater will respond.

Mary A. Nourse To Talk Friday at Y. W. C. A. Luncheon

Miss Mary A. Nourse, who last year at this time was in China, will talk on conditions in the Far East at the World Fellowship luncheon of the Y. W. C. A. Friday. Guests of honor will be Mme. Eadelkis, wife of the Lithuanian Minister; Mme. Ing, wife of the Counselor of the Chinese Embassy; Mme. Ho, wife of the First Secretary, and Mme. Babes, wife of the Counselor of the Rumanian legation.

Miss Nourse, who is author of "The Four Hundred Million—a Short History of the Chinese," and also of a recent article in the National Geographic Magazine, on "Women's Work in Japan," spent some years as a teacher in Hang Chow, Peking and Nanking. During 1936 and part of 1937 she was in Japan doing historical research, and last February returned to China to observe conditions there before coming to this country.

Mrs. William S. Culbertson, chairman of world fellowship for the Y. W. C. A., will preside at Friday's luncheon.

Afternoon and Evening Functions Require 25 and 60 Tables to Accommodate Many Players.

The Latin-American fellowship fund of the Washington branch of the A. A. U. W. was increased by approximately $200 yesterday by bridge parties sponsored by the fellowship committee, of which Mrs. David Wing is chairman. In the afternoon there were 25 tables arranged on the first floor and, in the evening, 60 tables, with four floors of the clubhouse in use.

At the evening bridge, three duplicate sections were run with Mrs. Janie Mason, Mrs. June Hodgkins and Mrs. Isabel DuBois in charge. Mrs. Richard W. Hogue, president of the club, and Mrs. Wing were assisted in receiving last night by Mrs. Laurence Duggan, wife of the chief of the Latin-American Division of the State Department, who was a guest of honor; Mrs. Frank Seymour Smith, who was chairman of arrangements for both afternoon and evening parties, and Mrs. Frederick G. Tryon, secretary of the national fellowship committee.

Flags of Latin-American countries and colorful posters, provided for the occasion by the Pan American Union, made a gay setting for the functions. Refreshments included chata, a Spanish drink credited with perpetuating youth. Cigarette trays used had antique sealing wax lamps, which served as lighters.

The fellowship fund also benefited yesterday from the sale of decks of cards bearing the seal of the A. A. U. W., and tallies with the picture of the front entrance of the clubhouse at 1634 I street.

The amount raised goes toward the $3,000 year's quota of the $40,000 endowment fund the local A. A. U. W. branch is raising. Until this is completed, the fellowship awards are made by the national association, which maintains 14.

The Latin-American fellowship this year was awarded to Laura de Arce of Uruguay, who will come to America to study criminal psychology and procedure in reformatories for women. She is a graduate of the Women's University of Montevideo and is now teaching at the Normal Institute there. The present holder of the fellowship is Consuelo Bernadino, of Santo Domingo, who is studying medicine at Johns Hopkins and expects to return to work among women of her country.

Awards in the past have gone to two librarians, a teacher of science in Mexico, a teacher of secondary education in Brazil and women physicians in both Yucatan and Buenos Aires.

The idea of the fellowships originated with a group of Washington women who helped extend hospitality to women who came here from the Pan American Scientific Congress in 1916. The Washington women on the auxiliary committee of the congress became convinced better acquaintance was essential to friendly relations with Latin-American countries and could best be promoted by such fellowships.

Tubercular Relief Society Will Meet

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Jewish Consumptives' Relief Society will meet at the Jewish Community Center this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Mrs. I. Elliott Levenson will give the opening prayer and Mrs. N. N. Wallack, first vice president, will preside in the absence of Mrs. Martin Mendelsohn, who is in Florida convalescing from a recent illness. Miss Sarah Charles will sing.

The goal of the auxiliary is 1,000 members, and preparations are being made for the annual member-bring-a-member musicale and tea on Wednesday, March 9 at the home of Mrs. Herbert Glassman. Each paid-up member will bring one new paid-up member. Mrs. Louis Mintz and Mrs. Sidney Lust are in charge of arrangements.

Beulah Limerick Murder Case Reopens

1 Among the unsolved Washington murders is the slaying of Beulah Limerick (above), 19, on New Year's Eve, 1930, which again appears near solution. Robert Langdon, a former D. C. policeman, held in New Haven, Conn., has been indicted for the murder.

2 This is the southeast home in which Beulah, a usherette and party girl, lived and died. An interne pronounced her death due to natural causes but an undertaker found a bullet hole in the base of the skull hidden by hair. A series of arrests followed. Her brother, a roomer at the home and others were questioned.

3 Beulah's body was found on the cot in this shabby room. Among the persons questioned after the crime was Langdon, who was the policeman on the beat. He was released and later dismissed from the force. Langdon was arrested in Connecticut last year in connection with an attempt to wreck a train.

4 Here are Langdon and his wife as they appeared at the Limerick inquest. Mrs. Langdon was arrested in New York a few weeks ago, and subsequently Langdon was indicted for the murder. Mrs. Langdon came to Washington as a voluntary witness in the case. The indictment was made public yesterday. Two D. C. policemen are in Connecticut.

PAJAMA PORTRAITS—13.
SUMNER WELLES.

Cordell Hull's ramrod-erect, handsome, distinguished Undersecretary of State occupies a position not unlike that of Sir Robert Vansittart, the permanent Undersecretary in the British foreign office. Until 5 o'clock his visage is sphinxlike; after 5 he occasionally lets his sparse hair down and becomes more human than his daytime confreres would suspect. Inside his well-modeled, capacious skull (he must wear a 7¾ hat) reposes more detailed knowledge about our labyrinthine foreign affairs than in any other man's . . . But after hours he makes no pretense to omniscience. His dark chalk-striped suits and solid-hued ties are a model of diplomatic attire . . . To foreign diplomats at our rococo temple of state he presents as formidable a front as any diplomat in the European chancelleries; beyond its portals he bothers little about swank. Privately he is also diplomatic; once his limousine nudged the car of a Congressman's wife, and his solicitude extended beyond repairs and medical care even to sending flowers . . . His able chief loses nothing by having such an able aide. Fred Wile exaggerated only in degree when he punned "All's Welles at the State Department." . . . Welles can perform the miracle of discretion of discussing the foreign policy of the Republic for two hours without mentioning the name of another country.

Sale of 13 Risque Magazines Barred In District Purge

A drive on salacious periodicals, with its attendant controversy as to what is obscene and what isn't, appeared in prospect yesterday as distributors of 13 magazines were warned to remove them from District circulation.

Complaints have been pouring in upon Capt. George Little, chief of the police vice squad. Certain "pulp" magazines were named most often as the chief offenders. Capt. Little assigned a man to make a personal investigation.

The upshot was that Harry L. Underwood, assistant United States Attorney, yesterday called in three distributors and notified them that the 13 magazines deemed offensive must be taken off newsstands by this week-end.

"All three agreed to co-operate," Underwood said. "There will be no prosecution unless someone persists in selling the things."

Judges, Lawyers To Honor Garnett

Led by Attorney General Homer Cummings, some 400 members of the District bar and numerous justices of the local courts, will gather at the Mayflower Hotel tonight to honor former United States Attorney Leslie C. Garnett, who resigned his post several weeks ago.

Leo A. Rover, also a former United States attorney, is to be toastmaster, and a third former United States attorney, John E. Laskey, is to make one of the principal speeches. Others who are scheduled to address the gathering are Chief Justice D. Lawrence Groser of the United States Court of Appeals and Justice Jesse C Adkins, of the District Court.

Edmund M. Toland heads the committee in charge of the dinner, while Guilford Jameson is in charge of the publicity.

Winfield Rankin New G. W. Editor

Winfield Rankin, night student at George Washington University and associate editor of the University Hatchet, official weekly publication of the school, yesterday became editor in chief.

Rankin succeeded Howard Ennes. He joined the school paper staff in 1934 and successively has been in charge of the copy, news and make-up desks.

Ennes will continue as associate editor the remainder of the year. His resignation was described by the Hatchet as "a voluntary move."

Rankin, an employe of tre Federal Housing Administration, is a native of Ashton, Idaho. Ennes said he resigned to prepare for the spring convention of the Intercollegiate Newspaper Association, of which he is president. He will write a feature column entitled "The Way Things Are."

Rankin is a member of Phi Sigma Kappa social fraternity and Omicron Delta Kappa and Steel Gauntlet, honorary organizations.

National Woman's Party Honors Memory of Suffrage Pioneer.

As the wreaths were being placed on Susan B. Anthony's statue in the crypt of the Capitol yesterday, a little gray-haired woman in the audience whispered to her neighbor, "Don't let on, but it makes me mad as a hornet to see her stuck between those other two!"

"Those other two" are Lucretia Mott and Elizabeth Cady Stanton, leaders with Miss Anthony in the fight for women's rights, whose heads appear to the left and right of Miss Anthony's in the statue.

The arrangement was being criticized by Miss Margaret Shanks, a Rochester woman who nursed Miss Anthony in her last illness and who was with the 86-year-old reformer when she died, in 1906.

"She was important enough to have a great big staute all of her own," Miss Shanks went on. "She had a statesman's mind in a woman's body, that's the way I figure it out."

The wreath-laying ceremony, sponsored by the National Woman's Party, was in observance of the 118th anniversary of Miss Anthony's birth in Adams, Mass. Delegations from 30 local women's organizations attended. Dr. Frances Dickerson, first cousin of Miss Anthony, was present and laid the first wreath. Also present was Miss Adelaide Johnson, sculptress, who executed the statue of the three women's rights leaders.

Representative Herbert S. Bigelow, of Ohio, whose address followed a program by the Marine Band, called Miss Anthony a member of the "true aristocracy of the earth, the aristocracy of those whose minds think new truths and whose hearts rebel against old wrongs."

As a result of the Revolutionary War, he said, liberty in this country is not a matter of birth. The Civil War removed the restriction of blood. But "even before that battle was won, this Quaker girl had decided that liberty is not a matter of sex."

Senator William Gibbs McAdoo, of California, commenting on the fact that Miss Anthony's birthday falls between those of Lincoln and Washington, declared, "her career and principles make her worthy to stand between them as one of the greatest exponents of liberty the world has ever known."

Representative Caroline O'Day, of New York, spoke briefly. Miss Dorothy Moncure read "The Pioneer," a poem composed by Edna St. Vincent Millay.

Rubye Zioncheck, Author or Maybe Actress, Is Visitor

Since leaving Washington more than two years ago, the widow of Representative Zioncheck has written a love story entitled "Our Soil" which will be published next month.

The dazzling blonde, bedecked in the latest fashions denied reports that she would soon remarry.

"I never give it a thought," she declared. "However if a good man came along, I'd consider it."

Mrs. Zioncheck, who has adopted the name of Lynes Melton for the screen, has been studying voice and dramatics in both New York and Hollywood.

Students Question Shakespeare Cast

Drama students from a score of Washington schools gathered backstage at the National Theater last night to quiz members of the cast of "Julius Ceasar" on their modern production of Shakespeare. The program, following the evening performance, was broadcast over radio station WJSV.

Harold J. Kennedy, who arranged the program, described the production, on a bare stage with the actors in modern dress, as a "return to the true Shakespeare." His view was supported by Edmund O'Brien, cast as Marc Antony, who said that the modern version gave greater impact to the drama. He added that by eliminating all intermissions, tran-ition scenes assumed the place intended by Shakespeare.

Students who took part in the program included Beverley Easley, Gunston Hall School; Eugene M. Lerner, George Washington University; Douglas Parmentier, American University; Miss Jane Bomgardner, National Park College; Jack Green, Central High; Natalie Ryan, Catholic University; Judith Owen, King-Smith School; Robert Brave, Sidwell Friends' School; and William Gerns, Western High. Others were Tom Powers, Helen Craig, Muriel Brassler, Morgan Farley and Lawrence Fletcher.

Welfare Unit Asks Inquiry In D. C. Relief

Public Assistance Group Asks Investigation of District.

Annoyed by a citizens' association charge that many of those on relief are buying, or own, automobiles and are playing the numbers racket on the side to make additional money, the Public Assistance Division of the Board of Public Welfare yesterday urged a congressional investigation of expenditure of public funds for relief in the District.

"As the Director of Public Welfare already has stated, the Board of Public Welfare welcomes any investigation of any aspects of public welfare or of relief as administered by the Board of Public Welfare by any impartial and competent body," declared Dr. Frederick W. Perkins, chairman of the Public Assistance Committee.

On the other hand, the committee urged all citizens "if they know of any automobiles which are being improperly bought or kept by people on relief, or if thy know of anyone who is improperly receiving relief by concealing resources or facts, it is the duty of these citizens to report these facts to the Public Assistance Division of the Board of Public Welfare, Fifth and H streets northwest."

"The staff of the Public Assistance Division is competent as far as it goes, but it is not adequate in number always to know all that is going on in the lives of the 15,000 people who are receiving various forms of public assistance," Dr. Perkins said.

The remainder of the public statement by the Public Assistance Division follows:

"As a matter of fact, case workers are not snoopers. Their job is to determine, as accurately as possible, with the co-operation of the people who apply for assistance, what the facts are in each case and what the real needs are. The case workers should get what information is reasonably available from former employers, neighbors, landladies, relatives, friends and other legitimate sources, so as to give assistance in accordance with need and to help resources which will get people out of need. The whole attitude is one of friendliness, courtesy and co-operation; and yet, on the other hand, firmness where assistance cannot be given, or should not be given.

"Of course, case workers are only human and do make mistakes as all of us do. As a matter of fact, they themselves are continually discovering cases in which assistance is no longer necessary because of changed circumstances or in which assistance has been given which would not have been given in the same quantity or at all if the facts which later developed had originally been available. When it is thus discovered that relief has been improperly secured the recipient is, if he has any source of income, required to make restitution.

"Moreover, where outright fraud seems to have been indicated legal proceedings, resulting in court action, have been taken. At the present time several cases are in the hands of the Corporation Counsel for consideration as to whether or not there was actual fraud and whether the person who received the assistance should be prosecuted.

"Unquestionably, however, many citizens have facts about some of the persons on relief which have not been available to the caseworkers on the Public Assistance Division staff. If these citizens will notify the Public Assistance Division of these facts, they will be carrying out their civic duty and will be helping in the conservation of tax funds.

"The same thing is true in principle in respect to playing the numbers racket. This is a widespread vice in the District which should be stamped out. Any citizen who knows of any relief recipient playing the numbers ought to report the matter to the Public Assistance Division. In addition, however, he certainly ought to report it to the Police Department as a violation of the law."

'Remember the Maine' Sounds At Services 40 Years After

United States and Cuban officials stood before the anchor and mast of the battleship Maine yesterday in Arlington Cemetery as taps were sounded to commemorate the sinking of the warship

The importance of national defense should be impressed upon every American by the famous cry, "Remember the Maine," Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson said yesterday at memorial exercises for the men who died in the Maine disaster forty years ago.

"To our country today, in the midst of a storm-swept and discordant world," he declared, "'Remember the Maine' takes on an added meaning. It recalls the State of our unpreparedness forty years ago and serves as a warning that never again must we allow our defenses to become so completely depleted," as they were before the Spanish-American War.

Johnson spoke in the Fort Myer Riding Hall at services held under auspices of the United Spanish War Veterans.

In contrast, Johnson said, the United States today is far more ready to protect itself than at any time since its founding.

Extolling American action in Cuba after the Spanish War and the "Good Neighbor" policy which has been in effect during the past five years, Johnson concluded by saying, "Let us 'Remember the Maine' now and forever, in its full significance, a symbol of national promises honestly made and well kept, of responsibilities seriously taken and of duties properly performed."

Other speakers were Dr. Jose T. Baron, charge d'affaires of Cuba, and Alfred J. Kennedy, commander in chief of the U. S. W. V. Musical selections were rendered by Miss Margery T. League, soprano, and by the United States Marine Band. Victor L. Woolridge, commander, Department of the District of Columbia, U. S. W. V., presided at the services, at which the American Legion was represented by a delegation in uniform. The honor guard was composed of Army, Navy and Marine Corps detachments.

Earlier in the day the women's auxiliary of the Department of the District of Columbia, U. S. W. V., had placed floral tributes at the base of the Maine memorial in Arlington Cemetery. Representatives of President Roosevelt, of the Republic of Cuba and of officers of the U. S. W. V. and other patriotic organizations also placed wreaths. Mrs. Myrtle Moxley, president of the auxiliary, presided at the ceremony at the Maine monument.

Last night more than 500 persons met at the Mayflower Hotel to commemorate the sinking of the Maine and to honor Commander Kennedy, of the United Spanish War Veterans. A number of distinguished guests attended the annual affair, sponsored by the District of Columbia Department, U. S. W. V.

In Philadelphia Rear Admiral Wat T. Cluverius, only survivor of the battleship's sinking, still in the naval service, asserted that "all that can be said now is that there was a breach of protection to a United States vessel in a friendly port."

Speed Limit Boost Urged By Civic Body

Increase in speed limits to 25 and 35 miles an hour with strict enforcement at those levels was recommended as an aid to traffic safety in a resolution adopted last night by the Citizens Forum of Columbia Heights.

The forum, in the same resolution, reiterated its opposition to all-night parking, urged pedestrian control and disapproved of the operation of traffic lights all night except at dangerous intersections.

In another resolution the forum endorsed the Senate numbers bill, which would make possession of numbers slips a violation of the law.

An increase in the Federal lump sum payment to $7,500,000 was asked in a third resolution. The forum went on record as opposed to an increase in and diversion of the gasoline tax and disapproved the income and business privilege levies.

It recommended a real estate tax of $1.50 per $100 valuation and a consumers' sales tax, with foods and the cheaper clothing exempted, "if additional revenue is necessary."

Relief Grant Sought.

An appropriation of $3,272,750 to care for an estimated 37,000 Washingtonians who are employable but unable to find work was demanded in a resolution adopted by the Benning Citizens Association.

Senator King and Representative Palmisano, chairman of the Senate and House District committees, will be asked to intercede in its plea for installation of a traffic light at the west end of Benning Viaduct.

In another resolution, the association branded as unnecessary the appointment of three assistant Commissioners and two additional judges, as requested by the District Commissioners.

Playground Plan Opposed.

Opposition to "crippling" the Community Center and Playground departments by the proposed consolidation of recreation facilities of the District was expressed by the Petworth Citizens Association.

The association also backed the stand of the Board of Education against the proposal to remove it from control of custodial employes of the schools and urged development of the old tuberculosis hospital site as a municipal playground.

Park Policy Scored.

The policy of the Park and Planning Commission of demolishing houses on land condemned for park purposes was opposed by the Southeast Council of Citizens Associations, in session at the Eleventh Precinct Station House. The association went on record as favoring regular legal channels for such transactions.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, was thanked by the association for new equipment granted the men, and the Eleventh Precinct generally was praised for its good record.

Raleigh Party Tonight to Have Miami Theme

Florida State Society Assists in Project for Pall Mall Room.

By Chanticleer

A pale tropical moon peeping through palm trees, gayly colored beach umbrellas, the strains of "Miami Shore" from the orchestra, here and there a Seminole Indian or an alligator. It's all a part of the "Moon Over Miami" party as planned by Eddie Daniels at the Raleigh Pall Mall Room. The Florida State Society indorsed the idea and is giving enthusiastic support by lending all the atmospheric trappings needed, including some palm trees. The international dancers, Vasilo and Yoanna, will present special numbers, and Harriet Brent, a recent acquisition, who is not hard to look at, will be there to sing her way into your heart.

A new trio, the Music Masters, open this week at the Hi Hat. They are pleasing patrons with smooth, delightful rhythms. Donald Carr, an operatic vocalist, and Dick Reger, novelty soloist, are special attractions.

Stam and La Rue Held Over.

At the Shoreham blue room, Charles Carlile, "The Romantic of the Air" and featured star of the Lucky Strike Hit Parade, adds romance and glamour. La Trianita, Spanish dancer, will also be there to complete the romantic atmosphere. By popular demand Stam and LaRue are being held over.

The Winter Garden Revue held over at the Bamboo Gardens has a complete change of routines and features several new specialties, such as a "Valentine Dance" and the "Military Parade of the Nations." Dottie Dunn has an eccentric toe number and a smooth Argentine tango is executed by Hammond and O'Friel. Ginger Harris brings forth a series of "Ahs" from amazed patrons when she does her acrobatic control dance.

If our ace sleuth reports accurately, there is soon going to be a new attraction at the Madrillon other than excellent food, the best in music and the top in congeniality and atmosphere. See Chanticleer next week for details.

Dancers at Lotus.

From the Mayfair comes the scoop that plans are underway for a Mayfair birthday party. These parties, when held in the past, have always been close-outs, so it is not too soon to call in reservations. The party this year promises flowers for the ladies, additional entertainment and special menus. Jimmy Byrd, never to be caught without an idea, has a few special attractions that he chooses to keep secret.

The Lotus this week has a glamorous dance team, Jeanette and Kalam, who have just completed a picture for Paramount. Remember them? One of their pictures was shown at a local movie house the same week as "Hurricane." The Miracle Girls of 1938 are holding forth with brand-new routines. A tap trio, Renny Bros. and Mayband, do fast stepping on the hardwood. Miss Mayband does an acrobatic dance and Marian Dawn does a novelty number to complete a pleasant evening. Al Norton, the m. c., and Bill Strickland's Orchestra are on hand during the afternoon and evening. During the intermission (8:30 to 10:30) Tommy Suiter's Trio will entertain.

Performers at Capital Clubs

HARRIET BRENT, a different song stylist who appears nightly at the Raleigh's Pall Mall Room. O'Friel and Hammond (upper), an adagio dance team which is appearing in the Winter Garden Revue at the Bamboo Gardens.

Indianapolis, Feb. 15 (AP).—The standing of the Nation's defense is "dangerously low with respect to that of other world powers," National Commander Daniel J. Doherty of the American Legion said today in a statement indorsing national defense week."

3 Traffic Victims In Prince Georges

Three men were seriously injured in two Prince Georges crashes last night.

Charles William Claggett, 36, of Camp Springs, Md., was brought by a motorist to Casualty Hospital, where he was said to have a fractured skull and contusions of the face and head. The accident was understood to have occurred on Branch avenue in Silver Hill.

Robert Dixon, 24, of 4302 Forty-first street northwest, was brought by a motorist to Gallinger Hospital, where he was found to have suffered internal injuries and a possible back fracture.

Dixon's car collided head-on with one driven by George Evans, 29, of 407 Shepherd avenue, Chevy Chase, Md., who was removed to Emergency Hospital with a fractured pelvis suffered when he was hurled through the top of the auto. The accident occurred one mile south of Accokeek, Md.

'Odd's' Home Town Forgets His Tastes For Simple Rites

Gallipolis, Ohio, Feb. 15 (AP).—Odd McIntyre's "neighbors" agreed tonight that he would have wanted a simple, unpretentious burial but his home town chamber of commerce laid plans for one of its biggest civic observances to honor him.

The columnist's body will arrive tomorrow from New York, where he died Monday. A chamber of commerce delegation will meet the cortege at Huntington, W. Va.

Every minister in this town of 7,000 will take part in the funeral Thursday. Business houses, schools and public offices in Gallia County will close.

Violinist Elman To Play in Capital

The first Washington performance of a modern symphony by a young Russo-American composer will share the spotlight with the appearance as soloist of Mischa Elman, world famous violinist, when the first National Symphony Orchestra plays the fifth in its series of midweek concerts at 8:30 o'clock in Constitution Hall. Dr. Hans Kindler wil conduct.

The composition new to this city will be the first symphony of Nicolai Berezowsky, and the composer has come to Washington especially to conduct the first hearing.

Elman will play two concertos for violin and orchestra—that in G minor by Vivaldi and the concerto in E minor by Mendelssohn. Other works to be played tonight include Mozart's symphony in A major, and the second Rumanian rhapsody of Georges Enesco.

Charles Denby Rites Are Scheduled Today

Funeral services for Charles Denby, 77, former American Consul General in Shanghai and Vienna, who died Monday, will be held at 2 p. m. today at his home, 2329 California street northwest. Burial will be private.

Mr. Denby leaves his wife, Mrs. Martha Orr Denby, and three sons, James Orr Denby, American consul in Capetown; Charles Denby, of Pittsburgh, and Edwin Orr Denby, of New York City.

California Professor Coming to Maryland U.

Berkeley, Calif., Feb. 15 (AP).—John Yonger, professor of mechanical engineering at the University of California, has been appointed head of the colleges of aeronautics and mechanical engineering at the University of Maryland.

Younger will resign his California position at end of the present semester.

Burd W. Payne Speaks.

Burd W. Payne spoke at a luncheon of the Columbia Heights Business Men's Association at Scholl's Fourteenth street cafe yesterday on "The Duty of Business Men," urging their co-operation with each other. Harry D. Gordon presided.

Britisher Calls Roosevelt Bold As 'a Mussolini'

Miami Beach, Feb. 15 (U.P.).—Sir Charles Higham, director of British propaganda during the World War and former member of Parliament, tonight charged President Roosevelt is "as bold, as ambitious, as demagogic, and who, had he the chance, would be as dictatorial as Hitler or Mussolini."

Addressing a weekly meeting of the Committee of One Hundred, composed of business and industrial leaders, Higham said the trouble with conditions in the United States is that politicians had not been told to keep out of business.

"Every place that I have been, I have found fear," he said, "even among those who believed Roosevelt to be a blessing."

Higham charged "the New Deal Administration is attempting to divide business from the rest of the country."

'Count' Von Nobel Shoots Self, Wife

Marinette, Wis., Feb. 15 (AP).—Henry von Nobel, self-styled German count, killed his wealthy third wife and himself today, police reported, to end marital trouble that had taken them into divorce court.

Mrs. Laona Wolf, 46, sister of Mrs. von Nobel, was wounded in the cheek by a pistol bullet apparently intended for Janet Kaiser, Mrs. von Nobel's 20-year-old daughter. Miss Kaiser and her brother, Frederick, 14, were unhurt.

Roosevelt Greets Historical Group

Greetings from President Roosevelt, Theodore Noyes, editor and publisher of The Evening Star, and Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen were read last night by Allen Clark, president, at a meeting of the District of Columbia Historical Society.

Representative Sol Bloom of New York spoke on "The Historical Relationship of the Constitution and the District of Columbia."

Clark has been president of the association for 27 years. He is an attorney and author on historical subjects.

Ship Feared Lost In Mediterranean

Naples, Feb. 15 (AP).—The steamship Jianicolo was feared lost today with its crew of 30 in a Mediterranean storm which apparently already had cost the lives of 14 persons aboard an airliner, 10 of whom were believed Italian army officers returning from Spain.

Port authorities here announced the Jianicolo radioed distress signals Friday which were picked up by the Italian steamship Giulio Cesare. When the Giulio Cesare arrived at the position given she found no traces of the Jianicolo.

Women's Bar Refuses To Raise Standards

The District Women's Bar Association last night declined to support a move to raise the educational standards for admission to the bar in the District, at its monthly meeting at the Mayflower Hotel. A House bill to place a woman on the Board of Bar Examiners was indorsed.

The association reaffirmed its stand for suffrage for the District. It was announced Judge Florence Allen would be guest of honor and speaker at the banquet March 26.

Rites for Capt. Bolduc To Be Held at Bethesda

Funeral services for Capt. Frederick Joseph Bolduc, 68, U. S. A., retired, who died suddenly Monday, will be held at 10 a. m., Friday, at the Pumphrey funeral home, Bethesda, Md., after which he will be buried in Arlington Cemetery with military and Masonic honors.

Capt. Bolduc is survived by his widow, Mrs. Eugenie Bolduc, and a stepson, Marcel Moreaux, of this city. For 14 years Capt. Bolduc had lived in Glen Echo, Md.

Clark Griffith
50 Years in Baseball

By Shirley Povich

Glark Griffith Spurns First Offers of $250,000 in Cash for Cronin; Finally Agrees to Sale With Shortstop Lary Included in Deal.

Chapter Thirty-Two.

"I HAVE NEVER SOLD A BALL PLAYER FOR CASH," had been Clark Griffith's proud and emphatic boast during the first 23 yaers of his connection with the Washington Club.

He was not taking into account the picayunish $2,000 and $3,000 deals that every club makes during the course of a season in disposing of surplus talent to the minor leagues. He meant that he had never sold a star Washington player to another major league club, with cash as a prime consideration. Deals, by the score, he had made; but always had he insisted that the Washington team receive in the exchange a player of at least equal worth.

But when Clark Griffith was ready to scrap his boast, he didn't trifle. When he was ready to sell a star player for cash, "The Old Fox" crashed through with the most sensational deal in baseball history.

And the price?

That's what Joe Cronin fetched for Clark Griffith in November, 1934.

Many feats "The Old Fox" has to his credit. He had been a star pitcher with Pop Anson's Colts. He had been the American League's leading pitcher at Chicago. He had piloted the White Sox to a pennant. He had ended the Giants' monopoly of the New York patronage. He had risen from the ranks to gain control of the Washington Club, had seen three of his teams win pennants, one a world series. Two miracle boy managers he had produced.

But, capping all, was that sale of Cronin for a quarter million dollars, a sum more than twice in excess of the previous record deal of $106,000 for Lefty Grove by Connie Mack in 1924 (income tax reports show that Babe Ruth in 1919 cost the Yankees only $103,000, not the announced $125,000).

For Cronin's fractured wrist was one of the nine fractures suffered by the seventh place Nats of the season of 1934, when ill-luck dogged them from the outset, with basically the same team that had won the pennant the year before.

Yawkey's Offer of $250,000 for Cronin Turned Down.

NEVER HAD GRIFFITH INTENDED to sell Joe Cronin. When Washington newspapers in August, 1934, published a dispatch from Boston that the Red Sox were angling for Cronin, "The Old Fox," in some heat, denied the report.

"It's ridiculous," he shouted. "I wouldn't dare to sell Cronin. I wouldn't be able to face the Washington fans after a deal like that. Furthermore, no club would pay what Cronin is worth."

Griffith was genuinely angry at the report. Eddie Collins, general manager of the Red Sox, was suspected of having inspired the story. By long-distance telephone, Griffith roundly warned Collins not to "talk about my players." Collins denied he had spread the tale.

In October, at the World Series at Detroit, he again met up with Collins, still incensed at the report. Collins insisted that he had not inspired the story.

That evening, the telephone rang in Griffith's Book-Cadillac Hotel suite. "If you're going to be in, I'd like to talk to you." The voice was Tom Yawkey's, multi-millionaire owner of the Red Sox.

Griffith and Yawkey had long been friendly. Bill Yawkey, uncle of Tom, Griffith had known when the former owned the Detroit Tigers. Yawkey entered the room.

"What about this Cronin story, Griff?" asked Yawkey. "Is he for sale?"

"Never!" shouted Griffith emphatically. "I told your man Collins that."

"No hard feelings, Tom. I just don't want to talk about it. Joe isn't for sale at any price," said Griffith.

Yawkey moved toward the door, then turned suddenly. "Would $250,000 bring him, Griff?"

"Quit your kidding."

"I'm not kidding. I said $250,000."

"Tom, no ball player in the world is worth $250,000," said Griffith.

"Well, Cronin's worth that to me."

"No sale, Tom. Nothing doing. I don't want to sell Cronin."

"Well, I just thought I'd leave the idea with you," said Yawkey, departing. "But if you feel that way about it, I'm sorry I brought it up."

Quarter-Million-Dollar Offer Repeated.

YAWKEY ACTUALLY WAS APOLOGIZING for offering a quarter of a million dollars for a ball player!

That he might even consider selling Cronin, never occurred to Griffith. And then he found himself doubting his own mind. He began to wonder if he were doing right by Cronin. Joe had married into the Griffith family and, in the late weeks of the 1934 season, with the Nats hopelessly in the ruck, the grandstand wolves were already making pointed cracks. There was more than a scattering of boos directed toward Cronin.

Perhaps, after all, it might be to Cronin's interest to move out of Washington. At Griffith Stadium, there would always be that troublesome family angle for the grandstand critics to harp on.

But no, it was unthinkable that he should sell Cronin.

"That $250,000 still goes, Griff," said Yawkey.

"Nothing doing, Tom." Griffith felt better after that.

But Yawkey was nothing, if not persistent. Two weeks later, came another long-distance telephone call from the Red Sox owner. "Will you come to New York to see me this week, Griff?" Yawkey asked.

"The Old Fox" was wavering. "All right, I'll be there," he told Yawkey.

With Edward B. Eynon, jr., secretary treasurer of the Washington Club and his trusted adviser, Griffith visited Yawkey at the latter's sumptuous offices in The Tower Building, from which the Red Sox owner conducted his maze of lumber interests and corporation directorates.

With Yawkey was Business Manager Eddie Collins of the Red Sox. Yawkey again made the $250,000 offer.

"Maybe I'd better make the deal," said Griffith. "It's a deal if you toss in Lynn Lary, your shortstop."

"That's murder!" shouted Collins. "Why, we just paid the Yankees $35,000 for Lary."

"I don't care if you paid 35 million for him, we've got to have Lary," insisted Griffith.

"It's no deal," said Collins.

"That's fair enough," said Griffith. "I don't want to give up Cronin anyway. I've never been more than half-hearted about the whole thing."

Biggest Cash Deal in Baseball Finally Made.

FEELING VASTLY BETTER at that turn of affairs, Griffith and Eynon started to leave. Yawkey insisted that they have lunch. After lunch, Eynon reported that they had only 40 minutes to make their train to Washington.

Yawkey turned to his desk, grabbed the first handy sheet of paper, wrote out an agreement to pay the Washington Club $250,000 and include the contract of Lynn Lary in exchange for Cronin. He signed the paper, handed it to Griffith.

"Well, I guess that ends that, Griff," said the young millionaire.

"Not yet, Tom," replied Griffith, soberly.

"Why not. Lord, man, what else is there to do?"

That evening, on his return to Washington, Griffith telephoned Cronin, who had completed his honeymoon trip to San Francisco through the Panama Canal. With some sadness, he explained what had taken place.

"Never mind me," came Cronin's answer. "You take the money. I'll go to Boston. You tell 'em it's a deal."

"They'll give you a five-year contract, Joe, at more than I'm paying you," said Griffith.

Not for long was the Washington Club management less after the sale of Cronin. Griffith's choice was . . . of course . . . Bucky Harris, who had lost his job at Boston in the Cronin transfer. Harris, as the unfortunate victim of the Cronin deal, instantly recaptured the sympathy of Washington fans . . . the same fans who had booed him out of the city in 1928. A city-wide campaign was launched to restore Harris as boss of the Nats. It wasn't necessary. "The Old Fox" had counted on Harris' availability.

Menow 6-1 Favorite in Derby Book

By the United Press.

New York, Feb. 15.—Hal Price Headley's Menow, last year's champion 2-year-old, will rule a 6-1 favorite for the sixty-fourth Kentucky Derby when James J. Carroll, St. Louis betting commissioner, opens his winter book on the May 7 classic early next month.

In installing the Pharamond II colt as favorite in face of its owner's statement that his candidate was only a 50-50 chance to start, Carroll calls attention to Menow's sterling record as a juvenile.

Menow started six times last season, winning three races, finishing second twice and was once unplaced. He topped the money-winning list of his division with earnings of $67,825. His principal victory was the rich Belmont Futurity in which he established a new 6½-furlongs world's record of 1:15 1-5.

Tiger Second Choice.

Tiger, owned by Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Milky Way Farm, will open second choice in futures quotations at "about 8-1," Carroll says and sums up the situation as follows:

"The Kentucky Derby of 1938 promises to be one of the most open in history if Menow fails to round to form. The misfortune he suffered in injuring a knee late last fall may keep him out of the Churchill Downs stakes, but no definite line on his condition is available at present. The colt stands out on last year's record, however.

"It is difficult to separate the top flight candidates of the remaining eligible. Especially so since the nominations will not be known until about March 1.

"Tiger warrants second rating as a 3-year-old prospect. The colt was voted second best to the Headley star in the 1938 Turf and Digest poll and certainly justified that rating.

Menow, H. P. Headley	6-1
Tiger, Milky Way Farm	8-1
Teddy's Comet, Valdina Farms	10-1
Nedayr, W. S. Kilmer	12-1
Fighting Fox, Belair Stud	15-1
Bali Lea, Calumet Farm	15-1
Mountain Ridge, Milky Way Farm	15-1

Pit Bull, A. G. Vanderbilt	30-1
Sun Ezrol, A. C. Compton	30-1
Legal Light, R. Parr	40-1
Do Me, H. P. Headley	40-1

(The quotations are against entries that Carroll feels certain have been made. A full set of prices will be released with the publication of the official nominations.)

Kentucky Derby's Entry List Closed.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 15 (AP).—At midnight tonight the entry list for the 1938 Kentucky Derby closes. Daniel E. O'Sullivan, manager of Churchill Downs, said today it would probably be more than a week before the list of eligibles for the racing classic will be made public.

However, such favorites as Fighting Fox from the Belair Stables, Tiger and Mountain Ridge of the Milky Way Farms and Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Nedayr are among the eligibles.

Welch Will Form Lacrosse Club

Hoping to arouse interest to such a pitch that he can form a local lacrosse club to represent the Capital as well as promote interest in the game, Gus Welch, athletic director of American University, will call a meeting of local enthusiasts tomorrow.

Students of all local colleges or anyone interested in the game have been invited to attend the meeting which will be held at the Lee House, Fifteenth and M streets northwest, at 7:30 p. m.

Should he succeed in organizing a club, Welch said that games would be scheduled with leading college teams in the East and exhibitions staged.

Jean Bauer Wins Palm Beach Meet

Miss Bauer shot a 37 on the first 9 holes to be three-up over her opponent at the turn. Miss Guth rallied on the incoming nine but could not offset the lead of Miss Bauer.

Helen Hicks Weds Arkansas Golfer

The ceremony was performed by the Right Rev. Ernest M. Stires, Episcopal Bishop of Long Island, in the Cathedral of the Incarnation at Garden City, Long Island.

Foes Scarce, Lou Chases Lightweights

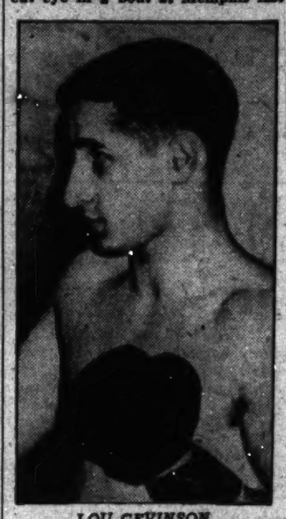
By Lewis F. Atchison.

Unable to obtain suitable matches in the lightweight division, and hounded constantly by the weight bugaboo, Lou Gevinson last night decided to abandon his career as a featherweight fisticuffer and move up into the tougher realm inhabited by lightweights.

Immediate cause of his decision was the postponement of Monday night's scheduled bout with Leo Rodak, of Chicago, who suffered a cut eye in a bout at Memphis last



LOU GEVINSON.

Monday. His manager, Nate Lewis, wired Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn advising him of the injury and requesting a two-week postponement.

Ahearn, however, could not see the appearance of his best box-office attraction and canceled the his way clear to delay that long fight. Efforts were made to obtain a featherweight opponent for Gevinson, but none in the first ten could be obtained. Al Reid, Pete Scalzo, Mike Belloise and Joey Archibald were approached, but gave the proposition a cold shoulder.

Gevinson, meanwhile, decided to move up a notch after discussing the situation with Ahearn, and wires immediately were dispatched to Eddie Cool, Lou Feldman, Irish Eddie Dunn, Irish Eddie Brink and Frankie Klick, offering them the match. Cool is the only one ranked in the first ten, rating the fifth position, but anyone appears capable of giving the local southpaw a run for his money.

Max to Meet Steve Dudas

Bout at Hamburg Upsets Promoter Jacobs.

Berlin, Feb. 15 (AP).—Max Schmeling's third warm-up bout before meeting Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis for the title in the United States this summer will be with Steve Dudas at Hamburg, April 19, Max Machon, Schmeling's trainer, told the Associated Press today.

Contracts for the bout will be signed this week-end.

New York, Feb. 15 (AP).—Promoter Mike Jacobs exploded in the accepted fashion today at news from Berlin that Max Schmeling intended to fight Steve Dudas at Hamburg on April 19.

"I'll send that guy a cable telling him a few things," said Mike. "I want him to be in New York by April 15 to start getting himself in shape for Joe Louis. That fight is in June. If Schmeling wants to fight Dudas in March that's okay, but not in April."

Rockville Beats Charlotte Hall

Free throws by Wootton and Lecklider in the final minute of play gave Rockville its final margin. Jack Woodward led the winners with 12 points while Tom Morris paced the losers with 8.

Browns Get Don Heffner From Yanks

Trade Knickerbocker for Utility Infielder, Plus Cash.

New York, Feb. 15 (AP).—The St. Louis Browns, champion David Harums, of the current big league market, today completed another deal by sending Infielder Bill Knickerbocker to the New York Yankees for Utility Infielder Don Heffner and an unannounced bundle of cash.

There isn't much difference between Heffner and Knickerbocker on the basis of records though the Yankees evidently believe Knickerbocker would be handier to have around for utility than Heffner, whose duty has been confined mostly to the Yankee bench. Last season, Heffner batted .249 and field .980 while Knickerbocker, formerly with Cleveland, batted .261 and fielded .958 in 121 games.

Today's deal was the third completed by the Browns since they wound up last in the 1937 American League race. They have traded three players away, receiving seven players and cash in return.

They swapped Southpaw Elon Hogsett to Washington for Ed Linke, right hander, traded Outfielder Joe Vosmik to Boston for Pitcher Buck Newsom, Infielder Red Kress and Outfielder Buster Mills, and sent Catcher Rollie Hemsley to Cleveland in return for Infielder Roy Hughes, Catcher Billy Sullivan, Pitcher Ed Cole (rookie from the Texas League) and cash.

Hildebrand Signs Browns' Contract

St. Louis, Feb. 15 (AP).—Oral Hildebrand signed a 1-year contract today to pitch for the St. Louis Browns during 1938 and expressed satisfaction with its terms.

The club, as usual, did not disclose the salary paid the tall right-hander, but said Hildebrand did not receive a reduction from his last season's wages.

MacPhail Is Silent On Signed Players

New York, Feb. 15 (AP).—Although Larry MacPhail wants to wait a few more days before he tells how many Brooklyn Dodgers have signed contracts, he admits Buddy Hassett is not yet in the fold and four players haven't been heard from. A contract was sent to Hassett, he said, and came back unsigned, and Buddy hasn't answered invitations to travel from the Bronx to Brooklyn to discuss the situation. Reports have it the Dodgers wanted to cut Buddy's salary $1,000.

Leroy Campbell, Western Md. Ace, To Join Redskins

One of the best southpaw passers developed in Eastern football, Leroy (Sunshine) Campbell, of Western Maryland, last night signed to play with the Washington Redskins, General Manager Jack Espey announced.

Campbell played with the Baltimore Orioles, of the Dixie League, last year, and was one of the circuit's outstanding halfbacks. It was in an exhibition game with the Redskins that he first attracted Coach Ray Flaherty's attention. Flaherty liked his actions and offered him a contract, but Campbell was not free to accept untill after the Dixie League campaign.

"Sunshine" is well remembered by Georgetown and Maryland elevens, for he played against both and helped defeat them by his long, accurate ball-flinging.

Hoya Frosh Beat Maryland, 33-29

Georgetown University's freshman basketball team scored its seventh consecutive victory of the season yesterday, beating Maryland University's frosh cagers, 33-29, at College Park.

The Hoyas led Maryland from the early minutes of play and were never headed. At half time the score was 16-12.

U. S. Against Biennial Play for Davis Cup

British Reported Backing Germany in Move for Fewer Competitions; American Group Points to Success of Annual Event.

By Herbert Barker,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

New York, Feb. 15.—Holder of the Davis Cup for the first time since 1927, the United States Lawn Tennis Association found itself with a battle on its hands today to forestall a formidable attempt to make the international competition biennial instead of annual.

Announcement in London that the British Lawn Tennis Association would support a German move designed to limit Davis Cup competition to alternate years took American leaders by surprise and left them not a little perturbed.

Although they had known for some time that Germany would make the proposal at the annual meeting of the Davis Cup nations in London June 30 they apparently had not expected Great Britain would ally itself with the cause.

The British, as a matter of fact, voted with the United States against the plan when it first was submitted by South Africa in 1934. Nobody was rude enough to mention it, but the fact remains that the British held the cup at that time and, with Fred Perry and Bunny Austin as a first line of defense, looked strong enough to hold it indefinitely. Cup competition plays no small part in the tennis revenues of the nation fortunate enough to hold the trophy.

Walter Merrill Hall, former president of the U. S. T. A. and chairman of the Davis Cup committee, explained that this country had opposed the suggestion from the outset and would continue to do so.

"We take the position," he said, "that when a competition has been eminently successful for 40 or 50 years, the burden of proof lies upon those who want to change the rules. We ought to be very sure of our ground before any radical revisions are made.

"After all, no nation has to challenge for the cup every year. There have been plenty of times when there has been no cup competition. Right after the war, for instance, the United States did not challenge. We did not feel that it would be the sporting thing to do since other nations, perhaps, had suffered much more in loss of manpower than we had.

"The biennial idea undoubtedly

America, Canada In Final Round Of Hockey Meet

Praha, Feb. 15 (U.P.).—Amateur hockey teams of the United States and Canada reached the finals of the international tournament for the world's championship today.

The U. S. squad played to a 1-1 tie with Great Britain qualifying both teams for the final playoffs. Canada scored a 3-0 victory over Czechoslovakia.

Canada, in a bracket of only four nations, beat the other three to go into the playoffs for the championship. In other matches today, Sweden and Austria played to a 1-1 tie, Hungary beat Rumania, 3-1, and Germany blanked Norway, 8-0.

Gaithersburg Five Defeats Damascus

Trailing 17-9 at half, Gaithersburg led by Lyddane and Mills slowly closed the gap and forged to the front, losing the lead shortly before Mills clinched the decision.

Red Raiders Bow, 25-21; Wilson Loses

Lincoln Park Five Wins, 48-33, to All But Clinch Honors.

INTERHIGH STANDINGS.	W.	L.		W.	L.
Eastern	7	1	Tech	5	4
Western	5	2	Wilson	1	7
Roosevelt	5	2	Central	0	6

By Jack Munhall.

Western's dream of another interhigh basketball title suddenly was transformed into a haunting nightmare yesterday as an aroused Tech five whipped the overconfident Georgetowners, 25-21, in the first upset of the series.

Western's unexpected setback coupled with Eastern's 48-33 victory over Wilson in the other end of the twin bill at Tech dropped Western into a tie with Roosevelt for second place and all but clinched the title for Eastern. The Lincoln Park five now holds a 1½ game lead over its two closest rivals and, barring a Congressional act, will coast to its fourth championship in five years.

Western's hope now rests on two unlikely "ifs." If it is to even tie for the championship it must knock off Eastern next week and then repeat the dose to a greatly improved Roosevelt outfit. Should this happen the three, Eastern, Western and Roosevelt, would finish in a deadlock for the crown and a play-off would be necessitated.

Blank and De Leon Star.

Diminutive Eli Blank and towering Vic De Leon, a strange but potent pair, were the young men who probably toppled Western's diadem into Eastern's hands. Blank, a fleet but small guard, and De Leon, awkward but tall center, worked to perfection in the last half to overhaul the flying Westerners and then Blank heaved in the game-winning basket from mid-floor.

Western was nursing a 16-10 lead at the start of the third quarter and was not expecting the startling Tech rally which began when Mr. Blank rammed in a basket from the center of the court.

This lengthy toss reduced Western's margin to 16-12, and it kindled a spirit in the breasts of his mates that was not quenched until victory was theirs. Moe Tannebum picked up Tech's scoring burden to register a free throw and then a basket to leave his team behind, 18-13. Then De Leon and Blank went to work. Breaking fast after an unsuccessful Western shot, Blank took a bullet pass from De Leon and deposited the ball in the cords just as the quarter ended, making the count 18-15.

Tech Takes Lead.

De Leon and Blank reversed positions of passer and scorer to open the last stanza and sent Tech in front for the first time at 17-16. Blank standing near the foul line, aimed a shot but seeing De Leon under the basket shoved him the ball which he pushed in on a difficult shot. Western fought back as Irving Needle slammed one in from the floor and then rushed in the van on another set shot by Bob Holloran.

This 1918 lead was the last advantage Western held, for De Leon fooled Stanton and dropped in a sensational pivot shot and Blank put the finishing touches on the upset when he wound up from midfloor.

Blank and De Leon, besides coming through in the pinches, led Tech's attack with 8 and 6 points, respectively, while Bob Custer, with 6, and Holloran and Saylor, with 4 each, were outstanding for the losers.

Eastern experienced trouble with Wilson only in the first half before drawing far away on deadly shooting by Lee Lusby, Ralph Maters and Clint Quantrille. With Malcom MacDonald, Wilson's set-shot artist, giving an excellent demonstration of his prowess, Wilson trailed by only 7 to 5 at the end of the first quarter, and 19 to 12 at half.

But in the third quarter Eastern sprayed the basket like a firehose as Lusby and his mates drifted through Wilson's defense to repeatedly score on one-hand shots from side court. The Lincoln Parkers were on the right end of a 36-to-22 score going into the fourth quarter and the issue was never in doubt.

Quantrille added to his lead in the individual scoring race by dipping in 13 points but Lusby paced Eastern's attack with 14, while Matera tallied 8. MacDonald chipped in with 11 markers for the losers.

16. Columbia University sprinter who twice bettered world 60-yard indoor mark at thirty-first Millrose A. A. meet, February 5.
17. Johnny Revolta, who is making one of the year's great comebacks.
18. Lou Gehrig, New York Yankee star.
19. Young golf pro from Houston who beat Sam Snead in final of San Francisco Match Play Open, 4 and 3.
20. George A. Munger.

Go Home, at $6.30 Mutuel, Wins Hialeah Feature Race by Half Length

Page Racer Leads Clocks Half Length

By the Associated Press.

Hialeah Park, Fla., Feb. 15.—DeWitt Page's Go Home, a 5-year-old son of Grandace that reached the best form of his career here this winter, today took all the worst of the racing luck and still was good enough to the win the Marianna Purse, a 1-mile test that attracted a number of McLennan Memorial and Widener Cup candidates. The gelding, named for the McLennan but not the Widener, drove first home by a half length, while L. E. Ogle's Clocks saved the place by another half length form Infantry, representing the Millsdale Stable of M. I. Emerich. The others ware well beaten.

Sammy Williams, promising apprentice lad, completed a triple astride the winner, which was a $6.30 for two choice in the field of eight. Go Home, despite being carried very wide at the home turn when Clocks bore out, finished the eight furlongs in 1:38 1-5 under 106 pounds.

Of the horses behind the winner, Clocks, Infantry, Dellor, Two Bob, Pageboy and Thorson are McLennan and Widener eligibles. Robert L. was not named for either fixture.

Go Home, now winner of three of his six winter outings and in the money on the other three occasions, broke second to the bullet-like Clocks, which beat his field away from the stalls. The latter showed the way by daylight and then carried Go Home very wide just when the latter was beginning his victorious challenge. Meanwhile, Infantry, fortunate in getting through all along the backstretch after a tardy beginning, saved considerable ground turning into the front lane.

Williams put up a splendid finish astride Go Home and his mount gamely wore down Clocks. The latter held on well to stave off the fast finishing Infantry.

Williams rode three other winners on the program.

Mrs. Payne Whitney's Cherry Jam, second to Our Mat in his recent debut under silks, graduated from the maiden ranks by scoring a hard-earned victory in today's 2-furlong curtain raiser. The gelded son of St. Brideaux—Cherry Tart, with Eddie Arcaro doing the kicking, hooked up in an exciting duel with Selmalad right after the break and the pair fought it out all the way, well clear of the others. Cherry Jam outlasted his rival and won by a half length to pay $5.80. Selmalad, slight favorite over the winner, beat the even running Our Mat by four lengths for the place. Our Mat was coupled with Higher Bracket. The time was :34.

Schmarr Returns With Pro Cagers

Captained by Hermie Schmarr, one of the greatest athletes in Catholic University's history, the West Virginia Collegians will invade Heurich Gym Sunday to meet the high-flying Brewers.

Negotiations to bring the Collegians here were closed yesterday by Bob McDonald, Heurich manager. The Collegians' roster is made up of members of the great West Virginia team of 1935-36, which played both Georgetown and George Washington.

Schmarr, who is now coach of Clarksburg High School, starred for three years as a Card football and basketball player, leading the District court scorers for two consecutive seasons.

Arrangements are being made to book two preliminaries and a table tennis exhibition between two top-notch players.

Sherwood High School Defeats Laurel, 36-27

Sherwood High School's Five easily defeated Laurel, 36-27, yesterday on the Sherwood court. Dan Ligon, winner's center, was the outstanding player, tallying 12 points. Welzel, with 11, was best for the losers.

†W. Ziegler entry.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHERRY JAM, $5.80, $2.80, $2.20; SELMALAD, $3.80, $2.20; OUR MAT (entry), $2.20.

CHERRY JAM, breaking alertly, assumed a short lead in the run out of the chute and responded determinedly to strong pressure through the stretch and was going clear at the finish. SELMALAD, away forwardly, went in close attendance of the leader while racing straight along the inner rail, but was unable to keep stride with the winner when the final test came. OUR MAT, clear for the entire trip, was easily best of the others.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For fillies and mares, 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from Barr gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 2:30. Off 2:31½. Winner, J. C. Clark's ch. f. (2), by Tail Timber—Nellie Kelly. Trained by W. E. Martin. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:22 4-5, 0:46 3-5, 1:13 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—IRISH OAK, $8.20, $4.40, $3.40; SCOTTISH MARY, $3.80, $3.60; GREY FLUFF, $7.00.

IRISH OAK, quickest to begin, held her opposition safe for speed and steadied in front. And something in reserve when placed to pressure, maintaining her advantage gamely. SCOTTISH MARY, prominent contender from the start, finished courageously but could not improve her position. GREY FLUFF, well up on the outside from the start, closed stoutly in the final drive.

Daily Double, Cherry Jam and Irish Oak, Paid $28.80.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For fillies and mares, 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from Barr gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 3:01. Off 3:03. Winner, H. Loman's bk. m. (5), by Joan's Grier—Frenesi. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23, 0:48 3-5, 1:12 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FREE AGAIN, $5.10, $4.10, $3.10; MAGICIENNE, $8.30, $5.90; MISS OAK, $3.60.

FREE AGAIN easily disposed of CELTIC LEGEND in the first three furlongs, showed seven lengths in front and then held on gamely in the final drive to stave off the threatening bid of MAGICIENNE. The latter was urged vigorously from the start and improved her position gradually and easily held the others safe. MISS OAK raced prominently all the way and had no excuses.

FOURTH RACE—Seven furlongs (out of chute). Purse, $1,000; allowances. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from Barr gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 3:32. Off 3:33½. Winner, Miss E. Biller's br. g. (4), by Jock—Mary Ch. Trained by P. Malfa. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47, 1:12 2-5, 1:25 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LITTLE JOCK, $27.10, $11.80, $6.70; CHALLENGE CUP, $9.10, $4.20; RED BROOK, $8.40.

LITTLE JOCK, keen factor in the run down the backstretch, opened up a big lead rounding the turn while saving ground, but then faltered through the stretch and was strongly urged to maintain his advantage. CHALLENGE CUP gradually worked his way forwardly on the outside, closed gamely through the stretch, but could not overhaul the winner. RED BROOK, blocked while endeavoring to assist through on the inside midway around the turn, swung around the leaders in the last quarter mile and finished stoutly.

FIFTH RACE—One mile (out of chute). Purse, $1,000; allowances. The Daytona Beach, Grade C. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from Barr gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 4:02. Off 4:03½. Winner, T. J. Healey's b. g. (5), by St. Germans—Elf. Trained by J. A. Healey. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24, 0:47 1-5, 1:12, 1:37 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TATTERDEMALION, $5.90, $3.90, $2.80; EARLY SETTLER, $4.20, $2.80; OLD NASSAU, $2.60.

TATTERDEMALION, slow to find his stride, moved into contention rapidly approaching the half-mile pole, came between the leaders entering the stretch and was going away at the finish. EARLY SETTLER, quickest to begin, displayed excellent speed and made a courageous effort, but was not equal to the winner. OLD NASSAU, hard driven, moved around the leaders leaving the backstretch, but was unable to maintain his position in the last quarter mile.

SIXTH RACE—One mile (out of chute). Purse, $1,200. The Marianna. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from Barr gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:34. Off 4:35½. Winner, Maemere Farm's ch. g. (5), by Grand Ace—Last Inning. Trained by G. E. Phillips. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24, 0:47 1-5, 1:12, 1:38 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GO HOME, $6.20, $3.60, $2.50; CLOCKS, $5.80, $3.70; INFANTRY, $2.90.

GO HOME, going in close pursuit of the leader under stout restraint in the early running, was carried out by CLOCKS entering the stretch, but responded gamely when straightened out, took command 70 yards out and won going clear. CLOCKS began fast, displayed good speed in the early running while saving ground, came out suddenly entering the stretch and held on gamely when the final test came, but could not withstand the winner's bid. INFANTRY broke a trifle slow, worked his way up steadily while slipping through on the inside, but then faltered in the stretch run.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from Barr gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:05. Off 5:07½. Winner, W. Wicks' ch. c. (4), by Flag Pole—Chosa. Trained by R. McKeever. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24, 0:49 1-5, 1:13, 1:39 2-5, 1:52.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MONUMENT, $6.70, $3.60, $2.50; OFFICIATE, $9.00, $3.90; INDIAN HEAD, $2.60.

MONUMENT, away forwardly, bore out rounding the first turn, followed the pace under light restraint on the outside until straightened into the stretch, closed with determination and outlasted OFFICIATE in the final drive. The latter displayed the most speed and drew clear in the opening quarter mile, responded gamely to punishment when challenged, but could not stave off the winner's bid. INDIAN HEAD broke well but was outrun going to the first turn, saved much ground the entire trip but could not improve his position.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from Barr gate. Won handily; place driving. Went to post 5:38. Off 5:39. Winner, E. A. Bischoff's red ro. g. (5), by Eley—Alice Pennant. Trained by G. Gould. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24, 0:48, 1:13 2-5, 1:40, 1:53 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—KIEV'S PENNANT, $24.70, $8.30, $3.90; HAMMEL, $3.70, $2.90; ESPINACA, $2.50.

KIEV'S PENNANT, taken in hand rounding the first turn, trailed the field until the last three furlongs, moved up rapidly when called upon and coming to the outside, wore the leaders down to win going away. HAMMEL displayed good speed, but was tired at the pace after entering the backstretch, moved up gamely on the outside entering the stretch and assumed a brief lead, but could not withstand the winner's bid. ESPINACA went in near pursuit of HAMMEL until midway down the backstretch, took an easy lead, saved ground in the final half mile, but faltered when the final test came.

Gonzaga, St. John's Fives Vie Tonight

With the Catholic Prep title as well as the city championship already stowed away, St. John's goes out tonight to again humble its bitter rival, Gonzaga, on the Tech floor at 8 p. m.

Still indefeated in scholastic competition, the Johnnies are a prohibitive choice to spank Orrel Mitchell's impotent purple five for the second time this season.

Lineups follow: for St. John's, Jim Mulvihill and Francis Nattiste, at forwards; Jim Giebel, at center; and Joe Gallagher and Roxy Swagart, at guards; for Gonzaga, Jerry Connolly and Phil O'Brien, at forwards; Lane O'Donnell, at center; and Fred Rice and Joe Hieberger, at guards.

G. W. Five Awaits Bid to National Collegiate Championship Tourney

This Morning

Horse Racing Loses Staunch Friend.

By Walter Haight.

Horse racing in particular and sports in general lost a friend with the passing of Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson. It was in the breeding end of the sport of kings that his chief interest centered, although he raced several outstanding thoroughbreds and his colors, purple blouse and white cap, have been familiar to Maryland and New York trackgoers for many years.

HAIGHT.

The "Physician to Presidents" is credited with doing much to keep the Nation sports conscious during the participation of this country in the World War. It is said that the then food administrator, Herbert Hoover, suggested to President Woodrow Wilson that horse racing be discontinued during the war period to save grain. Admiral Grayson was consulted and he contended that horses consumed more oats when out of training than when racing. Thus racing carried on through the war days.

Admiral Grayson always was ready to discuss horses. A friend said yesterday that last fall he stopped by the physician's box at a Maryland track before the first race. Horses became a subject of discussion, and the two men sat throughout the afternoon talking horses without making a wager.

• • • •

However, Admiral Grayson was a sort of "mystery man" as far as his own interests in horses were concerned. There have been many stories of his being a part owner of this race horse and that stallion, but perhaps the most sensational is a report that he was a half-owner of Bold Venture, winner of the Kentucky Derby. It is a fact that Admiral Grayson kept a financial interest in almost every horse that passed through his barn.

• • • •

Unlike many horse enthusiasts, he undoubtedly made his association with racing pay off in large dividends, particularly through the sale of young horses. Only one yearling in this country ever brought more money at the Saratoga Sales than the $65,000 that Admiral Grayson received for a son of Man o' War out of Star Flight, afterwards named War Feathers. One of the Fisher brothers, of the auto industry, was the purchaser.

Admiral Grayson also sold Broadway Limited to W. T. Waggoner, the Texan, for $50,500.

Around the tracks, he was known as "lucky with horses." It is said that he bought the filly, Florence Nightingale for $2,500. She proved a "bleeder." However, Admiral Grayson kept her and later sold her for $25,000 as a brood mare. At Laurel, a year ago, Admiral Grayson's Happy Dear was entered in a claiming race for $1,500 and a horseman deposited his check for that amount. Happy Dear failed to make the first turn, crashed into the fence and was destroyed. The carcass, under the rules of claiming, was the property of the claimer, who had to pay $10 to have it removed from the track.

• • • •

Admiral Grayson was a prominent figure in the bidding on Playfellow, full brother of Man O' War, but was lucky enough not to win the colt which proved to be a "cribber" and one of racing's biggest "flops" of all-time.

• • • •

The best-known horse to carry his colors was My Own, bred by H. Rozier Dulany, sr., whose farm bordered that of Admiral Grayson just beyond Upperville, Va. In the Purple and White, My Own proved a good money winner but brought Admiral Grayson two disappointments. In 1923, Belmont Park put up a $100,000 purse for a match race between Papyrus, winner of the English Derby, and Zev, outstanding American horse of the year. On the eve of the race, Zev was reported ailing and Admiral Grayson consented to ship My Own from Maryland, despite the fact that the horse was scheduled to run in a $25,000 race the same day.

• • • •

My Own had trouble reaching New York and a rain storm made the course muddy for the race. Zev finally was sent out to leave the English horse far in the rear. Later, My Own failed to make the grade as a sire.

• • • •

Although Admiral Grayson had an interest in High Time, the great sire, he bred most of his horses from Happy Argo, Broker's Tip (Kentucky Derby winner), Rosolio (imported from France), Strolling Player and By-Pass II. The latter two he imported from England.

• • • •

Admiral Grayson's favorite turf story concerns Joe Brooks, Negro trainer and horse owner. Brooks approached him one day and told him to get a bet on Do Tell, Brooks' horse.

"This one just got nipped a nose last time, Sir," said the Negro.

Admiral Grayson looked at the past performance sheet and said, "You must be wrong; Do Tell was beaten four lengths and finished fourth that race."

"I means he got nipped a nose for third money," returned Brooks. "Tell'ya the truth, boss, he'd won if th' jockey hadn't had asthma and given out of wind in th' stretch."

Event Draws Best Teams In Country

Madison Square Garden Scene of Action to Start March 9.

By Bob Garrison.

George Washington University's successful basketball team will be given an opportunity to lay claim to a National Championship if the invitation it expects to receive within the next few days is tendered.

The Metropolitan Basketball Writers Association of New York has listed the Colonial team among the candidates for nomination to the tournament it is planning to sponsor in Madison Square Garden, March 9, 14 and 16.

The tournament would be a handsome reward for the Bill Reinhart team that has lost but three games to date while winning nine against stiff competition.

Coach Reinhart, who returned last night from New York, where he addressed the writers' convention, said he was highly in favor of the affair and should George Washington fare well in the remainder of its games, he would accept the invitation.

"Of course, we have our hardest games before us, including the one with St. John's, in Brooklyn, Friday and our return games with Loyola and Long Island. Then there is the question of the team having to miss many classes to compete. It would require the consent of the G. W administration before the boys could make the trip.

"Every member of the team is willing," he continued, "to play the post-season games, if the honor should be extended. But right now we're busily engaged in completing our schedule and winning the remainder of the games already on the list."

Losing only to Long Island, Loyola, of Chicago, and Toledo, the Colonials have defeated Ohio State, Tennessee, Minnesota, Baltimore, West Virginia, Westminster, Elon and Wayne twice.

Chances to avenge the defeats suffered at the hands of Loyola and Long Island on unfamiliar courts will be presented the Colonials within the next two weeks, however, as the Blackbirds will be met at Tech High gym Tuesday afternoon, and the Ramblers are to play two games here March 1 and 2. Toledo, however, will remain unavenged victor over the Colonials, as no return game is listed with the Rockets.

Permanent Prizes And Trophies Set Up.

New York, Feb. 15 (AP).—The Metropolitan Basketball Writers Association, drafting plans for its first national invitation intercollegiate tournament at Madison Square Garden March 9, 14 and 16, today decided to set up permanent team and individual trophies and suitable medals for all contestants.

The winning team in the tourney, which will include four Eastern and two representative Western colleges, will get a replica of the team trophy. To the outstanding, or "most valuable," player in the three-night competition will go a replica of the individual award. Gold medals will be given to the members of the winning team; silver medals to the beaten finalists, and bronze medals to the others.

Asa S. Bushnell, executive director of the central office of Eastern collegiate athletics, and H. H. Salmon, jr., chairman of the N. C. A. A. basketball committee, accepted invitations to act as advisers to the writers' own tournament committee.

President Everett Morris of the writers' association, informed the members that a preliminary survey of both Eastern and Western teams showed a large number interested in competing. Among the teams either already receptive to invitation or under consideration are:

In the East: Temple, George Washington, Rhode Island State, Worcester Tech, Syracuse and Dartmouth; in the Midwest:: Loyola (Chicago), Marquette, Bradley Tech and Southwestern (Winfield, Kans.); in the Southwest: Oklahoma, Oklahoma A. and M. and Arkansas; in the Rockies: Colorado and Utah State; on the Pacific Coast, Santa Clara.

The Pacific Coast Conference champion was ruled out when a letter from Coach John Bunn, of Stanford disclosed that the conference play-offs are scheduled for March 11, 12 and 13.

Broaca O. K., Hopes Yanks Will Trade Him

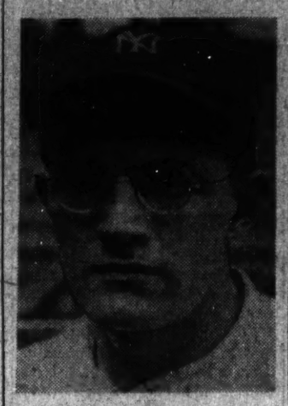
By the United Press.

Lowell, Mass., Feb. 15.—John Broaca, the bespectacled New York Yankees fast-ball pitcher who left the club in Cleveland last summer, said today the power had returned to his pitching arm which troubled him so much the past season.

The 25-year-old Yale graduate, a starting pitcher with the Yankees in 1934, 1935 and 1936, has been working out in a local gymnasium daily for almost six weeks. Because he has been punching the bag, there have been rumors that he may become a professional boxer.

Broaca said, however, he has no idea of embarking on a fistic career.

Apparently Broaca strained his arm last season, but he was accused of loafing by New York writers. He said Joe McCarthy, Yankees' manager, also was displeased early in the season and threatened to trade him if he did not strike out more men.



JOHNNY BROACA.

Broaca won his only game of the season early in April, when he beat Philadelphia, 7 to 2. A few days later his arm began paining him. Finally, Broaca was examined by a doctor, who said that the pain was caused by ossification of his shoulder muscles, although there was nothing structurally wrong with his arm.

"I think the Yankees should pay all my doctors' bills," said Broaca, who will not apply for reinstatement until he is certain what the Yankees will do with him. "The club will spend $30,000 or $30,000 for an untried player, but they apparently won't do much for an experienced starting pitcher."

Broaca said he has no special grudge against the Yankees and is willing to pitch for them again, but feels it might be more logical for the New York club to trade him.

"I'd be tickled to death to play for the Boston Red Sox or Detroit," he said.

America Opposes Biennial Series For Davis Trophy

would reduce not only the public's interest in the competition but also the players'. There would be a heavy loss of incentive, especially among younger players. Generally speaking, a player's Davis Cup career is relatively short—about five years. Under the biennial system, there would not be enough cup competition to keep player interest at its present high level.

"In short, we feel that the arguments in favor of holding the matches annually far outweigh any disadvantages."

Arguments in favor of the biennial system have been based on (1), the expense involved, and (2) the strain placed on the players. At the London meeting, Germany undoubtedly will point to the year-long campaign of its Davis Cup aces, Baron Gottfried von Cramm and Henner Henkel, during 1937 and the first month of the current year.

As matters stand now, it appears the German proposal will be supported not only by Great Britain but also by Australia and South Africa. The American delegates probably will find their allies among the smaller European countries. They helped to defeat the biennial plan four years ago.

Lorraine Gulli Leads El Gees to Pin Honors

Lorraine Gulli led the El Gees to a clean sweep of honors as the Washington Ladies' Bowling League teams rolled last night at the Arcadia Alleys. Miss Gulli won high individual set and game with 365 and 128 while the El Gees annexed high team set and game with 1,478 and 524.

In the Columbia Heights League, Mike Vitale, of Cool's Fountain, captured high game with 175; Ed Wiseman, of Kaplan & Crawford, high set with 393; Ford Electric, high game with 638, and Kaplan & Crawford high set with 1,811.

Sonja Henie Plans Transatlantic Flight

New York, Feb. 15 (U.P.).—Sonja Henie, Norwegian skating star and movie actress, will make a transatlantic flight this summer, Mike Jacobs, promoter of her skating tour, said today. Dick Merrill, veteran of two round trips across the Atlantic, will be her pilot, and they will be accompanied by Miss Henie's mother, Jacobs said. The plan is for the trip to be made as soon as Miss Henie's third movie is completed next June. They would fly to Newfoundland and then take off for Norway.

Terps Meet Washington Five Tonight

The Cardinals will meet John Marshall in a return game at Jersey City, N. J., while the Terps will take a bus ride to Chestertown, Md., to meet Washington College.

It will be the first of a two-game trip for the Brookland boys, who are scheduled to play Long Island University's crack cagers tomorrow night in Brooklyn. They dropped an earlier season game to the Justices in the Brookland gym, while the meeting with the Blackbirds will be the first of a two-game series. Long Island is scheduled to play a return game here next Monday.

Maryland, apparently certain to receive a Southern Conference tournament bid, will be playing the first of two road games listed for this week. After tonight's clash with the Shoremen, the Terps will play Virginia, at Charlottesville Thursday before returning to play Dickinson as part of the final College Park double-header Saturday.

Mid-Atlantic Golf Tourney Date Set

Richmond, Va., Feb. 15 (AP).—Fritz Souder, president of the Midatlantic Golf Association, said the annual Midatlantic amateur golf tournament will be held June 16, 17 and 18 at the Farmington Country Club, Charlottesville.

Georgetown A. C. Girls Win Civic Loop Title

Georgetown A. C. clinched the civic Girls League basketball title and also qualified for the playoff for The Post Trophy last night by defeating United Typewriters, 22-4, in a game played at Wilson gym. In other league games, Sandy Spring beat Jewish Community Center, 27-19, and Secretaries Club walloped Interior, 14-0.

Georgetown will meet Agriculture, winner of the Government League, Friday night at Macfarland in the feature of a three-game program. The main contest which will start at 8:30 will be preceded by a clash between Internal Revenue and Veterans Bureau at 7:30 and followed by an engagement between Interstate Commerce Commission and F. B. I. at 9:30.

New Bowling Record Set by Ollie Pacini

Led by Ollie Pacini, St. Peter's hung up season's best set in the Holy Name Section A League last night at the King Pin Pin Alleys. The score of 1,008 was compiled through games of 608, 616 and 578.

Pacini established an all-time league record for a three-game set by smashing the pins for 455. His string included games of 155, 153 and 147.

Crane Cue Winner.

Irving Crane, of Rochester, N. Y. and runner-up in the recent world's pro pocket billiard championship tournament, turned in a 125-57 victory over William Caldfelt, local amateur last night at the Lewis and Krause Academy. Crane had high run of 39.

Everyone Anxious To Wrestle Victor In Arena Feature

Tomorrow night's wrestling card at the Arena has been completed with the addition of two 30-minute time-limit bouts, and everybody, it seems, wants to meet the winner of the feature bout between Bronko Nagurski and Chief Chewacki.

The prize plum has been promised Dean Detton, whose opponent will be Al Periera, and who dropped two previous matches with the reigning champion. One of these was the time Detton handed over the crown to the former Minnesotan. Detton's match is the semi-windup. The only hitch to a Detton-Nagurski match is that both must win tomorrow.

The two bouts added yesterday find Orville Brown, of Kansas pitted against Walter Podolak, and Chief War Eagle vs. Joe Bonica. Brown whipped Henry Kulkovich and drew with Jim McMillen here recently and seems destined for bigger and better things. Podolak is a California health instructor; War Eagle another Indian sensation, and Bonica a Pennsylvania coal miner.

Last, but by no means least, is the Ram Singh-Hans Steinke match, in which the aged German is expected to make a sensational comeback.

'Whizzer' White Refuses $15,000

Boulder, Colo., Feb. 15 (AP).—Byron (Whizzer) White, Colorado University's all-American back said tonight he had refused an offer of $15,000 to play one season with the Pittsburgh Pirate team in the National Professional Football League.

K. of C. '600' To Herbert By 2 Yards

N. Y. U. Wins 8th Race of Season; Johnson Equals Mark.

By the Associated Press.

Providence, R. I., Feb. 15.—Jim Herbert, of New York University, tonight scored his eighth consecutive indoor victory in winning the "Invitation 600" at the Knights of Columbus games in Rhode Island auditorium in 1 minute 15 1-10 seconds.

Charles Beetham, of the New York Curb Exchange, was second, and Howard Borck, of Manhattan, who fell at the finish, third. Herbert won by 2 yards, Beetham's closing bid being hampered by a collision with Borck near the finish.

A new record was established, and the old mark tied twice in the 45-yard high hurdles by a new timber-topping star, Walter Hall, Boston College freshman, who was the Boston English high 600-yard schoolboy champion last year.

Hall slid over the Barriers in 5.8 in his semifinal for the new mark and in his trial and final heats matched the old mark of 5.7. He defeated Sam Allen, the record holder, late of Oklahoma Baptist, in his semifinal and final. Tom McFarland of B. C. was third.

Ben Johnson equaled the world 40-yard record in his semifinal heat, running the distance in 4.4. He won the final by a yard from Perrin Walker, of the New York A. C., with Enos Hicks, of Xavier University, New Orleans, third.

Mighty Glenn Cunningham continued his mastery over the Nation's milers, winning the Bishop Francis P. Keough mile by 5 yards from Gene Venzke, who, in turn, was 30 yards ahead of Don Lash. Archie San Romani and Joe McCluskey trailed. Cunningham's time of 4:14.8, the fastest mile ever run in Rhode Island, was considered exceptional under the conditions.

Manhattan's speedy relay quartet trounced Rhode Island State, Dick Lundell, Joe Zeitler, Lou Burns and Howard Borck reeling off a 3:29 mile. New York University, represented by Milt Glass, Curt Giddings, Edgar Stripling and Jim Herbert, ran a 3:33 mile in defeating Boston College by 20 yards. Brown won the other varsity relay in 3:33, defeating Boston University. Joe Finklestein, J. O. Syren, H. A. Kile and J. C. Constable comprised the Brown team.

Lloyd Thompson, Xavier University student, triumphed, in the high jump, soaring to a new 1938 nidoor ceiling record of 6 feet 7⅛ inches. Les Steers, Palo Alto schoolboy was second, and Mel Walker, of Ohio State, third.

Sports News at a Glance

Sarron Beats Britton.

Coral Gables, Fla., Feb. 15 (AP).—Petey Sarron, of Birmingham, Ala., former World's featherweight boxing champion, won an easy 10-round decision over Bobby Britton, of Miami, tonight. Sarron weighed 134 and Britton, 136.

Sarron's buzzsaw tactics gave him every round but the third and seventh, which the judges scored as even. There were no knockdowns.

Giants Off to Camp.

In the party were Pitchers Hal Schumacher, Don Brennan and Bill Lohrman, Catchers Ted Dusy and Jimmy Sheehan and Secretary Eddie Brannick and Treasurer Leo Bondy.

Field Trials.

Holly Springs, Miss., Feb. 15 (AP).—A score of coveys was moved today as aspirants for the open all-age stake of the United States Field Trial Association meet worked a rain-drenched course.

Dr. L. D. Johnson's champion, Air Pilot's Sam, made a bid for the honors claimed yesterday by Hugh White and Scalper by finding birds in 18 minutes after the breakaway.

Oil Reserves In U. S. Mount To Record High

Proven Total January 1 15.5 Billion Barrels in Completed Fields.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Feb. 5.—The American Petroleum Institute made public today a report showing a new high total of proven petroleum reserves in the United States on January 1, this year, 15,507,268,000 barrels. This is 2,443,868,000 barrels more than the estimate of January 1, last year. This estimate was contained in a report filed with the institute by its committee on petroleum reserves. J. Edgar Pew, of the Sun Oil Co., Philadelphia, is chairman of the committee.

The estimate makes no allowance for possible reserves in untested areas. It represents only the amount of crude oil which may be extracted by present known methods from fields now completely developed or drilled, or sufficiently drilled and explored to permit reasonably accurate calculation.

New reserves discovered in 1937 were estimated at 928,742,000 barrels, making the total 16,784,932,000 barrels. From this the committee deducted 1,277,664,000 barrels as an estimate of oil produced in the United States in 1937. The report breaks down the proven reserves into four principal divisions, as follows:

California, 3,063,142,000 barrels; Rocky Mountain States, 399,839,000; Central and Southern States 11,508,265,000, and Eastern States 536,063,000 barrels.

The reserves of Texas were estimated as the largest, amounting to 8,247,928,000 barrels. California's reserves were second and Oklahoma—with 1,440,692,000 barrels—was third.

Selling Erases Cotton Rally

New York, Feb. 15 (AP).—After advancing into further new high ground for the movement early today, cotton eased in sympathy with the action of stocks and grains. May sold off from 8.98 to 8.81 and closed at 8.87, with final prices 5 points net higher to 4 lower.

Bullish foreign views of Senate passage of the farm bill late yesterday and of the Treasury's modified gold policy, were reflected in opening gains of 8 to 11 points. Prices advanced a few points further, but heavy realizing developed around the 9-cent basis.

Copper Consumption Increases in January

Apparent world consumption in the month was 139,526 tons, compared with 121,966 tons in December. Domestic consumption was 24,881 tons, against 18,103 in December.

Baldwin Orders Rise.

Philadelphia, Feb. 15 (AP).—The Baldwin Locomotive Works and subsidiary companies, including the Midvale Co., announced today the dollar value of its January orders was $3,941,328, compared with $2,234,861 for January, 1937. These orders were almost wholly outside of the locomotive field.

Failures Increase.

New York, Feb. 15 (AP).—Business failures in the United States for the week ended February 10 rose to 306, compared with 286 in the preceding week and 172 in the comparable 1937 week. Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

Fourth Quarter Profits Drop 33.7 Per Cent

But for Full Year 274 Concerns had a Net Gain of 13.7%.

New York, Feb. 15.—Net profits in the final quarter and in the year 1937 on the latest summary fall about in line with the earlier estimates.

According to a compilation, the first 84 industrial corporations had an aggregate net income in the fourth quarter of $116,280,000, a decrease of 33.7 per cent from $175,189,000 in the corresponding quarter of 1936.

For the whole of last year, 274 companies showed total net profits of $1,187,945, a rise of 13.7 per cent over the $1,043,081, in the preceding year. A total of 243 industrial concerns reported earnings for the year of $781,954,000, a gain of 21.2 per cent, while 31 public utility corporations were 13.7 per cent higher on the year.

Leading companies to report last week included: Radio Corporation of America, S. S. Kresge, Continental Can, American Can, Gillette Safety Razor, United States Tobacco, General Fireproofing, Union Oil of California, United States Gypsum, Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator, Western Union Telegraph, Yellow Truck & Coach, Cream of Wheat, Childs Company, Eureka Vacuum Cleaner, Scott Paper, Blaw-Knox, Consolidated Steel and Irving Air Chute.

Curb Prices Sag With Liquidation

New York, Feb. 15 (AP).—The curb market started off on an even keel today, but encountered increased offerings and ended with narrow changes evenly divided, except in a group of specialties.

Pepperell Mfg. was an outstanding example of strength, following reports of increased activity in the textile industry. It ended 4½ higher at 69½. Others gaining small sums included Pittsburgh Plate Glass, 81½; Lake Shore Mines, 58, and Apex Electric, 2½.

Finishing unchanged to lower were Newmont Mining, Pan-American Airways, Sherwin-Williams, Singer Manufacturing, Aluminum Co. and Electric Bond & Share.

Transfers totaled 136,000 shares, compared with 125,000 yesterday.

John Hancock Assets Gain 7.36% in Year

Boston, Mass., Feb. 15.—President Guy W. Cox, in his annual report to the policyholders of the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co., today announced that the John Hancock holds for its 5,000,000 policyholders $95,000,000 of U. S. Government bonds, $123,000,000 of bonds of States and civil divisions thereof, and $310,000,000 invested in public utilities, railroads, real estate mortgages and varied forms of industry and agriculture.

Assets at the close of the company's seventy-fifth year in business are $854,035,385, a gain of 7.36 per cent over the previous year. Increase in insurance in force was $283,574,282, bringing the total insurance in force to $4,099,237,552, the highest in the company's history.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively
A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Work Lower in Light Trading; Bonds Hold Firm; Wheat Tumbles.

New York, Feb. 15.—The Treasury's motion for still easier money gave United States Government obligations a slightly firmer tone, but trading activity slackened. Stocks milled around with little change of price on balance in a sales volume of a little above 800,000 shares. Commodities worked higher. May wheat closed 2¾ cents lower at 92 cents a bushel.

Stocks opened with small fractional gains but without much increase in activity and by the end of the first hour prices were below where they had closed yesterday. The firm tone of the past day or two, during the period of conferences between Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Chairman of the Federal Reserve Board Eccles probably was the result of an attempt to anticipate some inflationary action. Plainly enough the outcome of the meetings was a compromise. Announcement that the $30,000,000 of gold which has come into the country since the first of the year will be shoved into the money market and that beginning with the first of last month all incoming gold to the amount of $1,000,000,000 every three months will be allowed to work its way with credit, already redundant, gives the form if not the substance of victory to the inflationists.

Eccles Scores Point.

Once known as an advocate of sound finance, balanced budgets and orthodox economy, Chairman Eccles recently has turned ardent inflationist. He has publicly denounced attempts to balance the budget and has proposed huge additional expenditures. Presumably some of his Western easy money and high-spending political friends have been talking to him. On the other hand, Secretary Morgenthau, who has leaned heavily to the side of the New Dealers, turned orthodox last autumn. He called for a balanced budget and he is understood to have opposed further experimenting with gold. So long as the gold imports are negligible, no inflationary effect will be felt from the latest operation, and the $30,000,000 of gold that has come since the first of the year already has entered the money market.

Last autumn $300,000,000 in gold was released from sterilization, but to increase the supply of cheap money is one thing and to make frightened businessmen and market speculators use it is another. Business is poorer now than ever; excess bank reserves are tremendously high. No need exists for more or cheaper credit. The old horse was doped with inflation for three years and by 1936 he was acting as though he might get out of hand. The ration was restricted with doubling the bank reserve requirements and sterilization of gold. Deprived of that which had made him canter the animal went dead on his feet last year. It may take many a dose of inflation to revive him again.

Dodging Real Issue.

What interested the financial community mainly was the fact that, in a test of strength, the decision went to the inflationary side. This time we are going to have just a little more inflation. Many a mickle makes a muckle and no doubt we will get a muckle before we are through. The Administration has had grand opportunity to do some constructive work with a thoroughgoing revision of taxation, with stopping its senseless and huge waste of public money, with a balancing of the budget and with the taking of a fair position toward business. Apparently it is determined to follow the easier course of giving the cheap money and inflation answer to all questions.

On the practical side the new monetary step will relieve the Treasury of any necessity of increasing the debt to take care of gold that might come in. Rather it is hoped that a rise in bank excess reserves will make it still easier for the Treasury to secure the funds for financing the huge armaments program and the higher relief requirements, to say nothing of the prospective farm and other bonuses.

Sterilization Effect.

All that could be said of the policy of sterilizing gold was that it had a faint touch of deflation. Every dollar of incoming gold added a dollar of deposits against which a reserve had to be maintained. Through sterilizing the Treasury took the dollar of gold out of the market, but left the deposit, against which the reserve was still required. The process slightly decreased excess reserves by increasing required reserves. This theoretical deflationary effect of the sterilization process has had purely academic interest since September, when the Treasury released $300,000,000 idle gold. In the meantime returning holiday currency has boosted excess reserves still further.

Bargain Pounds.

Although the rate for sterling has been above $5 for quite a while, the Postoffice Department is still providing money order buyers with sterling at the bargain rate of $5, not necessarily at a loss because the postoffice stocks up ahead on its sterling. On Friday the postoffice rate will go up to $5.05 to the pound. The postoffices sell money orders in pounds up to $100, but there is no limit to the number of orders an individual may purchase. If a speculative rush develops the Postoffice Department may do as it did some years ago when there was an avalanche of speculative buying of lire; require buyers to sign a statement declaring the purchase not for speculative purposes.

Units.

United Corporation Stockholders met at Wilmington today to vote on the proposed reduction of capital from $197,109,220 to $138,000,000. Voting on the proposal was originally scheduled for February 1, but the special meeting was adjourned because of lack of a necessary majority of common stock. It is believed that the holders of a large block of United stock were not in agreement with the proposal on February 1 have since changed their minds.

Exports of U. S. Corn Heaviest in 10 Years

United States exports of corn from the beginning of the marketing year on October 1, 1937, to the week ended February 5, this year, were more than 17,000,000 bushels, according to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace. The export movement of corn during the current marketing year, the Secretary said, was the heaviest since 1928-29 and may exceed exports of any year since 1922-23.

Wheat Prices Topple as Rain Ends Drought

Stop-Loss Orders Caught With Drop of 3⅜ Cents a Bushel.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—Indications that drought in domestic drought areas southwest and west had been broken by widespread rains smashed Chicago wheat prices down 3⅜ cents a bushel today.

Brisk trading in wheat here accompanied the fall of values, with execution of many stop-loss selling orders accelerating the market collapse. Adding impetus to the price tumble was a forecast of more rain or snow throughout virtually the entire United States winter wheat area.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were at about day's bottom prices, 2⅝ to 3⅝ cents under yesterday's finish: May, 91⅞ to 92; July, 87½ to 87¾. Corn, ⅝ to ⅞ down; May, 59 to 59⅛; July, 60. Oats, unchanged to ⅜ off; rye showing 1¾ to 2 cents drop, and provisions unchanged to 7 cents advance.

SEC Calls Hearing On Mo. Pac. Stocks

The Securities Commission called a hearing yesterday for March 1 on the question of suspending New York Stock Exchange trading in two issues of Missouri Pacific Railroad stock. This action was taken, the SEC said, because of misleading and false statements in MOP's registration application.

The commission's move was its first use of this power under the securities act against a railroad. It said the registration statement failed to disclose a $14,000,000 liability "and did not correctly reflect the true financial condition of the company."

The stocks involved are the 5 per cent cumulative convertible preferred and the common, both of $100 par value.

The commission said that the $14,000,000 liability arose from a contract Missouri Pacific made to purchase certain stocks from Terminal Shares, Inc. The contract was disaffirmed by the railroad's trustee in bankruptcy. The road has been in receivership since March, 1933.

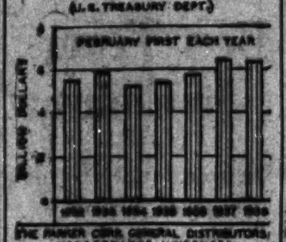
Per Capita Cash Dips From Year Ago



Boston, Mass., Feb. 15.—The total amount of money in circulation the first of this month was $48.71 per capita or 52 cents less than that in circulation a year ago. With the exception of last year, however, the total money in circulation on February 1 was a record amount for that time of year.

Goodyear Sales Rise, Net Drops

Akron, Ohio, Feb. 15.—While sales showed a gain of 16 per cent over 1936, net profit of Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. last year dropped 33 per cent as result of a $10,842,743 writedown in raw material inventories, commitments and rubber and cotton content of in-process and finished products.

Net profits after the writedown was $7,237,287 as against $10,831,032 in 1936. This was equal after preferred dividend requirements on stock outstanding at the year-end to $1.94 a common share. Earnings in 1936 applied to present capitalization would have amounted to $3.68 a common share. Profit in 1937 before inventory adjustments was $17,800,030 or the equivalent of $8.97 a common share.

Directors declared a dividend of 25 cents on common payable March 15 to stock of record February 25. Last year the company paid four dividends of 50 cents each, plus an additional dividend of 50 cents in the fourth quarter.

Owens-Illinois Glass.

Toledo, Ohio, Feb. 15 (AP).—Net sales, royalties and other operating revenues of the Owens-Illinois Glass Co. and subsidiary companies in the year ended December 31, 1937, amounted to $91,841,003 as compared to $78,714,827 in 1936, stockholders were informed today in the yearly report. Net income for 1937 was $9,381,827 compared with $10,090,131 in 1936. Assets at the end of 1937 totaled $87,562,230 compared with $72,975,512 at end of 1936.

Building Shows Recovery Signs

New York, Feb. 15 (AP).—Industry's sleeping giant—construction—shows faint signs of stirring again after a bad relapse last year.

A recent gain in construction awards, building men say, may be only seasonal preparation for the spring campaign, as outdoor work resumes with the return of warmer weather. Nevertheless, hopes in business quarters, disappointed by the 1937 setback, have risen for resumption of the forward stride by the sprawling, sluggish building industry.

The Engineering News-Record reported today engineering construction awards for the first six weeks of the new year totaled $315,825,000, a gain of 28 per cent over the $247,538,000 awarded in the comparable period last year. Private projects, totaling $131,601,000, showed the biggest gain, amounting to 35 per cent.

New Plan Is Filed By Wabash Railroad

St. Louis, Feb. 15 (AP).—Receivers of the Wabash Railroad filed a new plan of reorganization in Federal Judge Charles B. Davis' court today, reporting at the same time approval had not been given to it by any of the various groups of security holders because of many controversial matters that had arisen.

The plan differs only in details from the outline plan filed last July, chiefly in that it provides for slightly greater reductions in capitalization and fixed charges and for continuance of the Ann Arbor Railroad as a subsidiary. Consolidation of the Ann Arbor and Wabash had been proposed in the first draft.

Business Free Play Built U. S., Bank Declares

Disaster Follows Radical Remedies, Says First National of Boston.

Boston, Feb. 15.—"There is no royal road to recovery," says the First National Bank of Boston in its monthly letter. "Any recovery program to be effective must conform to the fundamental principles that underlie the great industrial progress of this country. Radical departures from the tried and true principles that have been our guide for 150 years have always brought disaster. The reasons for this are obvious: the American system provides free play for individual energy and initiative while our democratic form of government guarantees to every citizen the right of freedom and opportunity. Under such a stimulus, great creative powers have been released that have been largely responsible for our amazing and unparalleled material progress. With only about 7 per cent of the world's population, this country accounts for nearly as much wealth as all of the other countries combined.

Results.

"The keystone of this progress is mass production, with the resultant economies passed on to the consumer. The widespread use of electricity is primarily due to the steady decline in price, which is now about 40 per cent below 1913. The cost of sending a long-distance telephone message 970 miles has been reduced from $7.50 in 1926 to $2.75 in 1936, while the average time required to establish connection between cities has been reduced by about 70 per cent during this period.

"Since 1925 the price of the small-sized electric refrigerator has been cut by more than 50 per cent. The price per horsepower of automobiles is only two-thirds of the 1927 figures. Today the average life of a good tire is about 20,000 miles as compared with 3,000 miles in 1915, while the cost is only a fraction of the earlier period. All of these goods have been produced or services rendered by so-called 'big business.'

Profit the Incentive.

"The prospect for profits is the mainspring for business activity. If private enterprise is to be maintained there must be possibilities of a fair return on the capital invested. Without such prospects, managers of business will not make long-term commitments on an extensive scale nor will investors be willing to buy corporate securities to finance capital expenditures. Destroy the incentive for profits, then the source of capital dries up and in the course of time the Government would inevitably be forced to take over all forms of economic activity.

"The restoration of confidence is imperative that business may make long-term commitments. There has accumulated during the depression period a huge potential demand for goods and services of all kinds. According to a study made of this situation by Brookings Institution, 'the mere process of making good deferred maintenance and expanding production sufficiently to provide an increased population with the usual types of consumption goods would tax the Nation's productive energies for some years. The opportunity for a great expansion along clearly defined, established lines has never been greater than it is today.'"

Bob Burns Says—

I always thought the people in my part of the country were carefree and easy going—until I came to Hollywood. Some of these people out here will go in for pretty near anything as long as it ain't too much trouble and don't call for too much risk.

The other day on the set a couple of young extras were talkin' to me and they told me they was gonna get married. I says, "Well, are you sure you love each other?" and the boy says, "Well, not exactly, but it won't cost nothin'—my father's a preacher." So I asked the girl if she was sure she loved the boy and she says, "No, but what have I got to lose—my father is a lawyer."

SAYS PEGLER ABOUT LEONARD LYONS

Leonard Lyons scoops other Broadway writers because he isn't a swivel chair columnist. He really makes the rounds, as Pegler remarked. Lyons' column, The Post's New Yorker (on the amusement page), speaks for itself when it comes to the low-down on Broadway.
